THE REPUBLIC ALL SHAKEN

Reports Say, However, That Loss of Life Was Confined to Cartago.

CAPITAL LITTLE DAMAGED

Wrecked City of 10,000 People Lies at Foot of Volcano, and Has Suffered Similarly Before.

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, May 5.—A large part of Cartago, Costa Rica, was destroyed last night by powerful earthquake shocks. Details are very meagre, as the telegraph wires have been leveled betwen San José and Cartago. The operators at the latter place were killed.

It is known, however, that at least 500 persons are dead and many hundreds injured. Scores of buildings were thrown down, among them the Palace of Justice erected by Andrew Carnegie. The wife and child of Dr. Bocanegra, the Guatemalan magistrate in the Central American Arbitration Court, have been killed. Panic reigns, as the earthquakes continue.

San José has been also shaken, some of the buildings being damaged, but no deaths are reported in that city. Some were slightly injured.

Earth shocks were felt also at several points in Nicaragua, near the Costa Rican frontier. Reports reaching here state that there is much suffering and destitution at Cartago, consequent upon the disaster.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 5.—Earthquakes destroyed Cartago last night. Many lives were lost, but the extent of the damage can only be guessed. The earthquake extended to San José, but did trifling damage here.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Central American diplomats were thrown into consternation to-night over the news of the destruction of Cartago. At the Costa Rican Legation here, Minister Calvo received word that the city had been practically destroyed, 500 persons were dead, and many hundred injured as a result of the disturbance. Further, the Minister was informed by the Department for Foreign Affairs, the shocks have now ceased and the damage and loss of life is confined to Cartago.

When informed that the Palace of Justice had been destroyed, John Barrett of the Bureau of the American Republics said that Mr. Carnegie on his recent visit to this city, on the occasion of the dedication of the beautiful marble home of the bureau, toward the construction of which he contributed $750,000, had inquired eagerly as to the progress being made in the erection of the Palace of Justice. Both Mr. Barrett and Minister Calvo had told Mr. Carnegie all they knew of the matter.

Mr. Carnegie said he would not be able to go to Costa Rica in the Fall, when the building was to have been dedicated, but that he would probably send a representative.

Mr. Barrett expressed the opinion that Mr. Carnegie would do his share, if called upon, toward paying for the rebuilding of the structue. He gave the entire $100,000 needed for the building, which was about three-fourths completed.

CARTAGO OFTEN SHAKEN.

Cartago, one of the oldest towns in Costa Rica, and until 1823 the capital of the republic, lies about twelve miles to the southeast of the present capital, San José.

It is built upon the Cartago River dangerously near the base of the volcanic mountain called Irazu, which is probably the cause of the present disaster. Irazu is a more or less active volcano, and the town of Cartago has been evacuated more than once in its checkered history on account of the eruptions of its restless neighbor.

In the year 1841 Cartago was completely wiped out by a violent earthquake in sympathy with Irazu's eruptions. A number of people were killed, but not the great number that would have met their end had the town been built at that time, as it was latterly, of stone.

The city was partly or in greater part destroyed also in 1723, 1803, 1825, 1851, and 1854. On April 13 last a series of earthquakes, varying in intensity, swept over Costa Rica, doing considerable material damage but practically without loss of life. San José suffered most severely, while both Cartago and Port Limon felt the force of the disturbances.

The town, or "city," as it has always been called, was a very picturesque old place. Like its younger but more beautiful and wealthy sister, San José, it is situated on a tableland about 5,000 feet above sea level. It is joined with Costa Rica's greatest port, Port Limon, by a railway which, passing through Cartago, goes to San José and right across to the Pacific port of Punta Arenas.

After the removal of the seat of Government from Cartago to San José the old capital seemed to be a dying town. The population fell to about 3,000 in 1890. The completion of the railway, however, and the extensive banana in-

SHOT READING TAFT LETTER.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—James Pleasants, a clerk at Baldwin's Locomotive Works, shot and instantly killed Mrs. Agnes Eachus to-night in the parlor of their boarding house, 650 North Seventeenth Street. Then Pleasants blew out his brains and fell across the body of his victim. In the adjoining room at the time of the shooting two special policemen were discussing a robbery at the place last week. As they entered the parlor they saw Pleasants fall and caught the revolver as it flew out of his hand.

Mrs. Eachus was only 24 years old and a professional nurse. When Pleasants shot her she was reading a letter from President Taft commending her on her bravery in saving the life of little Frances Pleasants, the 18-month-old daughter of her slayer. Mrs. Eachus was the wife of Amos Eachus, who worked in the Torresdale Filtration Plant.

A week ago Pleasants's child pulled a lamp from the table on a stair landing. The oil spread and the baby's gown caught fire. The little one had been in bed and Pleasants was away. Mrs. Eachus, on returning from work, saw the child's danger and rolled the baby in her coat, saving her but burning herself badly. Red Cross officials were written to about the bravery and thus the President heard of her deed.

Pleasants was in love with Mrs. Eachus, who had shown much kindness to his motherless child.

On receiving Mr. Taft's letter Mrs. Eachus, overflowing with joy, forgot the unwelcome attentions of Pleasants and thought only of the child, who was really the cause of it all. She hugged the baby to her breast and extended her hand to Pleasants. He repeated his professions of love, and she reproached him. Then the tragedy occurred.

FOOT CAUGHT, TRAIN HIT HER

Girl's Shoe Fast in Track Frog as an Express Rushes Down.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 5.—Miss Eleanor White of Scudders Falls, above this city, is in a serious condition at Mercer Hospital to-night, suffering from a mangled foot and from shock, as the result of her right foot having been caught in a railroad frog and crushed by an express train, as she was walking along the tracks.

When Miss White heard the train approaching she made haste to get off the tracks, but in her hurry she stumbled and her foot got caught in a frog. She made frantic efforts to remove her shoe, but fear rendered her fingers powerless. Finally summoning up all her courage, Miss White threw her body to one side as the express thundered down upon her.

A rush, a roar, and a moment of blankness was all she experienced as the heavy locomotive tore away the flesh and crushed the bones of her foot to a pulp.

William White, her father, who was working near by, saw the accident, but did not realize it was his daughter who was injured until he ran to her rescue after the train had passed. He was horrified to find it was his own daughter with her foot terribly mangled. Gathering her in his arms he carried her home and dispatched a man for a team of horses and carriage.

The anxious father drove his horses at top speed to Trenton to save the unconscious girl from bleeding to death. He arrived at the hospital within an hour. The victim's foot was amputated above the ankle. She is in a serious condition to-night, but the hospital physicians have hopes of her recovery. Her mother was prostrated over the accident and is in a critical condition.

SENATORS AID WAR NURSE.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Her Uncle Sam will not reimburse Eliza Hoskins Parris, "the angel of the hospital," for self-sacrificing devotion to the Union cause, even though at 84 she is in want. Nevertheless Senator Bradley, her lifelong friend, has now in hand $1,050 which he will send to her immediately.

It is a pretty, human interest story, dramatized to-day amid the grind of the Senate machinery. Senator Bradley had a bill to appropriate $1,000 for her. It went to the Committee on Claims, from which few bills emerge. He told that hardened committee the story of the woman's services for the Union and that she was now living at Lancaster, Ky., alone and failing rapidly. The committee, however, would not favor the bill. It would set a bad precedent.

Senator Smoot, a member of the committee, who did not vote for the bill, suggested a subscription for her to Senator Bradley, and offered $100. Mr. Bradley put his name down for a similar amount, and soon the list contained hundred-dollar subscriptions from Senators Guggenheim, Elkins, Bourne, Du Pont, Depew, Smith of Michigan, Oliver, and $50 from Carter, Bulkeley, and Briggs.

The "angel of the hospital" will get the deserved relief and no bad precedent will be established to haunt the Senate.

SMART DETECTIVE WORK.

Hamard Searches 800 Paris Houses and Captures a Supposed Murderer.

PARIS, May 5.—M. Hamard, Chief of Detectives of Paris, accomplished one of the cleverest pieces of detective work in recent criminal annals in the arrest to-day of the supposed murderer of a poor girl, Eliza Vandamme. The girl's head was found in a sewer six weeks ago, and subsequently her hands, feet, and other portions of her body were discovered in different places.

M. Hamard, with only the vaguest clue, doggedly searched 800 houses, and finally found the key of the girl's room in the bureau of an ex-convict named Ferdinand, who had recently escaped from the penal colony in French Guiana.

When confronted with the evidence Ferdinand broke down and confessed to cutting up and disposing of the body, but he asserted that the girl had died from natural causes.

RUSSIAN-JAPANESE ACCORD.

Two Powers So Friendly That a Far East Convention Is Probable.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 5.—It was officially stated to-day that there had as yet been no negotiations between Russia and Japan looking to a convention affecting the Far East.

The relations between the two Governments, however, are now so friendly that the desirability of reaching a definite understanding upon Far Eastern questions is apparent, and exchanges along that line are regarded here as quite possible at an early date.

COPPER POOL LOANS USED FOR DIVIDENDS

INSIDERS PAID MONEY BACK

And Eventually It Was Returned to the Heinze Bank—Accountants Make Disclosures.

In the last half hour of yesterday's session in the trial of Fritz A. Heinze before Judge Hough in the United States Circuit Court on charges of misapplication of funds and overcertification during his Presidency of the Mercantile Bank in connection with the United Copper pool of 1907, United States Attorney Wise turned loose his heavy ordnance with disastrous result to the breastworks of legal assumption erected by the defense. He put on the witness stand for examination by his assistant, Felix Frankfurter, the Government's accountant, John P. Fernsler, to start telling the discoveries on two years' work on such books as the Government has obtained of the various corporations involved in the case.

Briefly stated, the Fernsler evidence comprised a demonstration from the cold figures themselves that the big United Copper common dividends of April 29 and Aug. 6, 1907, upon the strength of which, largely, the pool that F. A. Heinze says he wasn't interested in or aware of was operated, were derived from no earnings whatever. In so far as real money was needed to pay the dividends on the small part of the common stock in the hands of the public it was borrowed, as Mr. Fernsler's tabulation demonstrated, by Fritz A. or other members of the Heinze camp; the dividends on the enormous holdings of the "insiders," which the Government has already shown had been withdrawn from the market, were paid through an obvious process of kiting checks and loans.

The defendant, Fritz A. Heinze, figured in many stages of the Fernsler disclosures. In the case of the August dividend it was he, the President of the United Copper Company, who borrowed the money out of which the outside stockholders got their distribution, and in both cases, F. A. Heinze's own dividend check went in with those of the rest of the "insiders" to make possible the general process of kiting by which the payment of the dividends was accomplished. And the Mercantile National Bank, of which, also, F. A. Heinze was President, occupied the very centre of the operation.

Connects F. A. Heinze with Pool.

The defense had lost its rigid confidence when the members of the Heinze family, their lawyers, camp followers, and sympathizers left the courtroom last night. For the Fernsler testimony supplied the connecting links for many things the Government has succeeded in getting piecemeal into the record during the earlier days of the trial, which, as they have come one by one from the mouths of unwilling and evasive witnesses, have but distantly indicated the connection between the defendant and the United Copper speculation his bank's funds went to support. Last night the operations of three years in United Copper stock, admittedly involving the interest of F. A. Heinze to the close of 1906, stood connected not only with each other, but with the boosting of United Copper dividends in 1907 which the pool depended upon, as it hiked the common stock up to $70 a share on the Curb.

Chronologically, this chain of facts goes back to 1905, according to the evidence of Max F. Schulze, the broker for the pool of 1907, and partner of A. P. Heinze, who managed it. It begins with the acquisition of 225,000 shares of the common stock of the United—one-half the entire issue—by a pool F. A. Heinze still represented in 1907, which withheld this stock from the market. It continues with another pool in 1906, of which F. A. Heinze was a member. This pool wound up its purchases and sales on Nov. 12 of that year, but was not distributed, and continued as a holding syndicate through 1907, furnishing some of its assets for A. P. Heinze to use as collateral in the 1907 operation, and through A. P. Heinze running an open account with the latter.

Coming now to the year 1907 itself, the Government has shown 345,533 of the 450,000 shares of common stock of the United Copper Company, necessarily including the 225,000-share pool and part, at least of the 1906 pool, in the hands of F. A. Heinze and his family or those of the Heinze dummies, on April 29, when the first dividend was paid within the limits of time specified by the indictment. These holdings were not substantially changed prior to the August dividend or prior to October, when the attempt to corner and squeeze the short interest in the remaining shares ended so disastrously. The dividends on this stock, according to the records of the United Copper Company and the meagre admissions of Schulze, went into some kind of a pool which Schulze operated.

How the Dividends Were Made.

Yesterday the story of the pool came out in the record of loans and kited checks, which explained how the dividends were really "earned" and paid. It was begun with testimony from Fernsler, based on the books of the United Copper Company which have not been made away with or mutilated, showing that at the time of the April 29 dividend, the "insiders," or Heinze holding syndicate, received on their 345,533 shares $634,688, of which $509,832 went into Max H. Schulze's dividend pool account in the Mercantile National Bank.

The situation had been about the same in January, when was paid the first dividend on United Copper common, following the winding up of the 1906 pool the preceding November. Fernsler showed that the "insiders" had 346,241 shares in January, and got on them $605,879 in dividends, of which Schulze turned $529,241 into his pool account in the Mercantile National Bank. The holdings of the "insiders" were not substantially different, although, as the history of the August dividend showed, only $334,131 of their $604,682 dividend distribution at that time went into Schulze's Mercantile National Bank account, where the kiting process centred.

Herewith is printed a table which tells the story of this dividend manipulation. It represents in the summary of the tabulations which Accountant Fernsler put together from the books of many firms and institutions, in the face of all the obstacles which the Government has met in the way of missing and mutilated books and hostile witnesses. John B. Stanchfield, the leading counsel for the defense, fought his hardest to keep this evidence out yesterday, but did not succeed.

One who examines the table will see that in the case of the April 29 dividend the real money needed to pay the outside

EXPLOSION IN MINE ENTOMBS 145 MEN

SHOCK IS FELT FOR MILES

Mail Carrier Near the Mouth Was Caught, Hurled Into a River and Killed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 5.—Forty-five white and 100 negro miners are entombed to-night in No. 3 coal mine, at Palos, Ala., as the result of a terrific explosion to-day. It is believed all are dead. The mines are owned by the Palos Coal and Coke Company of Birmingham. Three bodies have been found, but it is thought that few can be recovered before morning.

The flames from the explosion shot 200 feet into the air and the shock was felt for miles. Timbers were hurled several hundred feet from the mouth of the mine. Rocks from the roof caved in and made access difficult. The fan machinery was damaged, but air is being pumped into the mine in the hope that some of the men are still alive.

Residents in Palos, which is forty miles west of Birmingham, began at once to help, but relief work was not started in earnest until a special train from Birmingham reached Palos late to-day. This special train carried State Mine Inspector James Hillhouse, J. J. Rutledge, Government expert in charge of the geological station at Knoxville, Tenn., who was in the district investigating the recent disaster at Mulga; eight physicians and surgeons, four undertakers, and a number of special helpers. The hospital relief car of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company brought helmets and all other necessary paraphernalia for entering gaseous mines. Mr. Rutledge, as well as Mr. George F. Rice, another official of the Geological Survey, had been instructed to render immediate assistance from Washington as soon as the survey was notified of the accident.

Rescuers who first went into the mine after the explosion were overcome by fire damp and had to be carried out. Mr. Rutledge was among them. After working his way 1,400 feet down the slope he found the second right entry caved in.

James Gousby, a mail carrier, was caught by the explosion thirty feet from the mouth of the slope and his body was hurled into the Warrior River. He was walking along the railroad track, and was directly in front of the mine mouth when the explosion occurred. It was judged from this that the force of the explosion was such that none of the men in the interior could remain alive. The only hope that some have escaped is the possibility that they were far enough away from the explosion to have missed its main force.

There are a number of mining camps within two or three miles of the Palos Mine, and within a short time a great crowd had gathered around it. Among them were hundreds of women and children, wringing their hands and crying piteously.

The Palos Mines have been worked for a number of years and the entries were extensive. To-day's disaster, coming so soon after the Mulga explosion of April 21, when forty-one men lost their lives, has plunged the mining settlements in grief.

H. A. Brennan, Treasurer of the Palos Coal and Coke Company, to-night said that the company was fully insured against loss from explosions. The company was one of the first in this field that employed union miners only.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—When members of Congress heard of the disaster their thoughts turned at once to the measure now in conference for the creation of a Bureau of Mines in the Interior Department. One of the chief purposes of the passage of such a bill was to provide for a thorough study of the causes of mine explosions with a view to preventing them them as far as possible through Federal regulation.

Senator Scott, who had charge of the bill in the Senate, immediately took steps to get the conferees together for the adjustment of the differences between the Senate and House. The bill will become a law as soon as the conference report is adopted, and the act is signed by the President.

BRIBER HAS BRAIN TROUBLE.

President of Pittsburg Bank Released to Get Treatment in Germany.

PITTSBURG, May 5.—Stating that he is suffering from congestion of the brain, Emil Winters, President of the Workingmen's Savings and Trust Company, who recently pleaded no defense to a charge of bribery in giving a former City Councilman $20,000 to be used in influencing Councilmen in the naming of his bank as a city depository, filed a petition in Criminal Courts to-day asking that he be excused from appearing on May 14 for sentence and that he be permitted to leave the jurisdiction of the court until September and go to Carlsbad, Germany, for treatment.

The court granted the prayer and released the banker in $50,000 bail.

Two graft juries are locked up to-night considering the cases of Councilmen who have been tried for bribery. The jury in the case of Councilman T. J. Moran has been out since yesterday noon, while that in the second trial of former Councilman A. V. Simon was charged late to-day and retired. Neither had reached a conclusion at the adjournment of court for the night.

WOMAN OF 40 ADOPTED.

Judge's Order Makes Her the Daughter and Heiress of Childless Woman.

PITTSBURG, May 5.—Judge John D. Haymaker made an adoption order in an unusual case to-day which makes Ida Selma Light, 40 years old, the daughter of Mary L. McIntosh, who is 76. Neither woman has ever married nor has any heirs.

The order of court gives the adopted woman the rights of child and heiress, and directs that she shall be subject to the duties of such child.

RIERDON'S DENIAL SWORN TO

And Gaynor Says He Believes Clerk—Hearst Is Now Suing Publishers and A. P. Manager Personally.

Ex-Mayor George B. McClellan cabled to THE TIMES yesterday from Florence, in answer to an inquiry, that he "verbally directed" Chief Clerk Rierdon before leaving office on Jan. 1 to submit to Mr. Gaynor, the incoming Mayor, the warrant for the payment of $48,000 for legal services to Daniel F. Cohalan, which he, Mr. McClellan, had received in the closing days of his administration.

A direct question of veracity has now arisen, for Mayor Gaynor, in learning Mr. McClellan's reply to THE TIMES's inquiry, said yesterday that Rierdon had declared positively that he did not receive any such instruction from the outgoing Mayor, and consequently did not submit the matter to the incoming chief Executive; that Rierdon had further made an affidavit to this effect, and that he (Mayor Gaynor) believed Rierdon.

So far as Mr. Cohalan is concerned he issued a statement yesterday—his first since the controversy arose—declining to contribute to it, but asserting that the services he rendered to the city were worth the $48,000 paid for them, and he welcomed the beginning of a "restitution" suit against the city executives as offering him the means of proving this.

The Times's Inquiry of McClellan.

THE TIMES's message to ex-Mayor McClellan was sent on Wednesday night after the issuance of City Chamberlain Martin's statement that he personally returned the warrant to Mr. McClellan on Dec. 31. Here is the message:

New York, May 4.

George B. McClellan,
Hotel Bristol, Florence, Italy.

Cohalan warrant bears Curtin's signature and date Dec. 31. Martin says he personally returned it to you at 3:30 that afternoon, at your request. Will you kindly cable just what you did with warrant after its return and what instructions you gave, verbal or written, and to whom, for its disposition? O'Brien and Willis say they know nothing. Rierdon refuses to say anything. Gaynor says he never saw warrant.

NEW YORK TIMES.

Curtin is James T. Curtin, the clerk in the Mayor's office who as part of his duties signs city warrants in the absence of James A. Rierdon, the chief clerk. Frank M. O'Brien was Mr. McClellan's private secretary, now gone back to private life. William A. Willis was Mayor McClellan's executive secretary, whom Mayor Gaynor removed on charges. He is now a reporter on Mr. Hearst's American.

Verbally Told Rierdon, He Replies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Time lacking for an investigation, I verbally directed Rierdon to submit the warrant to Gaynor. The date is of no significance.

McCLELLAN.

A TIMES reporter showed the message to Mr. Rierdon yesterday afternoon and invited him to make a statement as to what he remembered of the warrant, but he declined to make one.

Contradiction by Rierdon.

Then the reporter carried the message to the Mayor and asked him, in view of this direct statement from Mr. McClellan, to instruct the Chief Clerk to reply. At first the Mayor was loath to make any further statement in the matter. He finally decided, however, to answer his predecessor, and dictated this statement:

"Now I do not wish to be bothered with this matter further. Every one knows that I had nothing to do with it whatever, and Mr. Rierdon not only informs me, but has made an affidavit that Mayor McClellan never requested him to show me the warrant or say anything to me about it whatever, and I think Mr. Rierdon is telling the truth."

The Mayor would add nothing to this. To complete the roster of the men in authority in his office, the reporter asked Robert Adamson, the Mayor's private secretary, who came into City Hall with him on Jan. 1, if he knew anything about the whereabouts of the warrant between the time ex-Chamberlain Martin says he brought it back from his office to Mayor McClellan late on the afternoon of Dec. 31 and the afternoon of Jan. 4, when it appeared again in the Chamberlain's office and was signed by Deputy Chamberlain Walsh.

"No," replied Mr. Adamson, "I never saw the warrant until after this controversy started. I never heard of it until a reporter from The Sun asked me about it several days after the first of the year. I did not see the warrant or know of its existence until after Jan. 4."

Cohalan Welcomes Test Suit.

Daniel F. Cohalan's first statement in the controversy over the payment of his fees is this:

I have taken no part in the controversy which has been carried on in the newspapers during the past week over the payment to me by the City of New York of $48,000 for legal services in the franchise tax cases formerly in my charge. I do not make it a practice to try my cases in the newspapers. But a taxpayer's action has been started, and I desire to say that I will welcome the trial of this action, as I believe it will determine the reasonableness of my charge and settle my full right and title to the money which was paid me. It will enable me to prove in a court of law, with definite charges made and with my defense a matter of record, the entire regularity and propriety of the payment.

I may add that the work in these matters covered a period of more than two years. The suits involved a total of more than $20,000,000. My bill as rendered was carefully considered by the proper city authorities, and the amount to be paid by the city thereon was determined after an investigation and consideration of all facts.

I have no doubt as to the result of this action, tried, as it must be, in the courts and not in the headlines of newspapers, and I shall do everything in my power to facilitate its trial.

It was noted with interest about the City Hall that Mr. Cohalan made this statement a short time after Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, had called on the Mayor and had a long talk with

KITE RISES 23,800 FEET.

Weather Bureau Kite Exceeds World's Record—29 Below Zero Registered.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The world's record for kite flights, held by the Weather Bureau observatory at Mount Weather, Va., was exceeded this afternoon by that observatory by about 700 feet.

Ten kites were used, carrying over nine miles of wire. The head kite reached an altitude above sea level computed at 23,800 feet, at which point a temperature of 29 degrees below zero was recorded. This is the lowest temperature ever registered by a kit-carried instrument.

The previous record was made on April 11, 1910, when an altitude of 23,100 feet was reached, with a temperature of 17 degrees below zero.

BRYAN NOT A CANDIDATE.

Says He Never Expects to be Again—Awaiting Developments.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 5.—Commenting in the forthcoming issue of his Commoner on The Chicago Tribune's Presidential poll of Democratic editors, W. J. Bryan says he is not a candidate for President and never again expects to be. Nevertheless Mr. Bryan expresses his pleasure at the compliment paid him by the editors. He says:

"While Mr. Bryan appreciates most highly the compliment paid him by these editors, who express a preference for his renomination in spite of three defeats, he regards the vote merely as an indication that a larger number of editors are still uncertain as to who will be most available—they had not yet decided on a candidate. As Mr. Bryan is not a candidate and never expects to be a candidate again, he can, without being misunderstood, commend the attitude of those who are awaiting developments. He is in that attitude himself."

AUTO TRUCK RAMS A CAR.

Wrecks It and Injures Three Passengers, One of Them a Baby.

A heavy auto truck of the Francis Leggett Company, grocers of West Broadway and Franklin Street, turning sharply north into Ninth Avenue from Ninth Street, Brooklyn, last night, crashed into a north-bound Vanderbilt Avenue car. The car was struck amidship, its side stove in, and most of the windows shattered. Three passengers were badly cut and bruised by splinters and glass.

Policeman Shea of the Fifth Avenue Station, who saw the accident, called an ambulance from the Seney Hospital. Dr. Smith dressed the wounds of the injured, none of whom went to the hospital. They were: Helen Ferris, two months old of 473 Twelfth Street, Brooklyn, contusions about the head; Mrs. Mary Higgins, 157 Palmetto Street, Brooklyn, contusions of the body; Mark Walters, 1,712 East Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn, contusions of the head.

WOMAN NOVELIST INSANE.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Mrs. Margaret Potter Black, better known as an author under her maiden name, Margaret Horton Potter, to-day was declared insane at a secret sitting of the County Court and ordered committed to a sanitarium.

Mrs. Black is a daughter of the late steel manufacturer, Orrin N. Potter. She is the author of half a dozen novels. When scarcely more than a school girl she wrote a novel, which was said to have so thinly veiled the identity of its characters in real life that the entire edition was bought up and suppressed.

Miss Potter was born in 1881 and in 1902 was married to John Donald Black, a son of Gen. John C. Black, President of the United States Civil Service Commission and Past Grand Commander of the G. A. R.

T. W. KING IN DIVORCE SUIT.

Mrs. King Files One Against Him and He Brings Counter Action.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 5.—Mrs. Cornelia P. King has filed a libel for divorce against her husband, Thomas W. King of New York, alleging intoxication, and asks for the custody of their child Cornelia. Mr. King has filed a counter suit, in which he names Wentworth C. Bacon.

The case will go on the trial list next week and sensational testimony is expected, as the Kings are prominent socially.

Mrs. King was Miss Cornelia G. Peabody. Mr. King is a New Yorker, a member of the Meadow Brook, St. Anthony, Turf and Field Clubs, and a graduate of Yale of 1903. The Kings have a place, Maplehome, at Greenfield.

SMUGGLER GOES TO PRISON.

The trial of Philip Phillipsen, Mary S. MRS. BATH'S DIVORCE ILLEGAL

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 5.—Supreme Court Justice Putnam ruled to-day that a divorce obtained in Connecticut by Mrs. Raymond Bath on June 1, 1906, could not be recognized as legal in this State, as the summons had been served on Bath, then a resident of Brooklyn, only by registered letter.

Her divorce having been ruled illegal, Mrs. Bath's marriage to David Baylis of Elmont is annulled and Baylis is free. He had brought a suit for annulment of his marriage, and it was this which brought the legality of Mrs. Bath's divorce into court as a question for settlement.

Mrs. Bath is the mother of a child by Baylis, and it is understood that she will have the custody of the infant.

KING EDWARD SERIOUSLY ILL

SPECIALIST IS CALLED IN

QUEEN HURRIES TO LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, May 6.—King Edward VII. is seriously ill. In the words of a medical bulletin issued at 7:30 o'clock last evening at Buckingham Palace, announcing that he is suffering from bronchitis, his condition causes "some anxiety." In the minds of his subjects that anxiety is of the deepest kind.

When it became known yesterday afternoon that his Majesty had been unable to go to the station to meet his consort on her return from the Continent it was considered certain that something more than slight indisposition was required to prevent the King, the most punctilious of monarchs, from paying this courtesy to his Queen, and the official explanation was dismissed as inadequate, particularly when it was coupled with the Queen's hurried journey.

Apprehension deepened into alarm when the medical bulletin was issued. The news was spread about London by special editions of the evening papers, which displayed placards announcing the King's illness in terms not calculated to allay anxiety.

To the most considerable section of London's population the disquieting reports about his Majesty's health which have been current for some time past were absolutely unknown, and to the crowds pouring out of the theatres at the close of the evening performances the sight of the yellow posters telling of King Edward's serious illness came as a bolt from a blue sky.

Scenes in London.

People stood in groups as they came out, gathering round some purchaser of a paper and discussing the news regardless of waiting carriages and the efforts of the police to maintain the circulation of traffic. That curious phenomenon which seems to make a crowd one personality, moved by a common thought and impulse, made itself felt unmistakably. Alarm, deep and poignant, had the throngs which filled the streets in its grip.

I chanced to meet a well-known physician who is frequently in attendance at Buckingham Palace, though not on the King, and who had been there yesterday, as I crassed Shaftesbury Avenue from the Globe Theatre. "Is it serious?" I asked him. "Yes, it is serious," he replied, "but not serious enough to make all this fuss about."

By "fuss" he referred not so much to the glaring posters and special editions as to the evident apprehension and excitement of the crowds.

The King arrived in London from Biarritz on April 27 and attended a performance of "Rigoletto" at the Opera the same evening. A NEW YORK TIMES dispatch the following Saturday told how little benefit he appeared to have derived from his sojourn at Biarritz. Last Friday he went to see "Alias Jimmy Valentine" at the Comedy Theatre, and next morning took a train to Sandringham, whence he returned to Buckingham Palace on Monday morning. Since then he has not left the palace.

The King in Good Spirits.

Notwithstanding his illness, his Majesty is in good spirits, and last evening received several members of the Royal family. The three physicians who signed the medical bulletin met again late last night and visited the King. At a late hour it was stated that he was resting comfortably.

The Times this morning prints the following details of his Majesty's illness, derived from responsible sources:

"When his Majesty went to view the pictures at the Royal Academy a week ago it was observed that he looked tired and a little pale, and there were some fears of a return of the throat and chest trouble. The week-end visit to Sandringham was, it is understood, designed principally to combat the threatened attack by change of scene and air and comparative rest from affairs of State. His Majesty returned apparently better, but it is believed that the sudden changes of weather have affected his health."

Although the King has been confined to his room, he gave audiences and attended to matters of business, and up to last evening he was still about. It was stated last night that no further bulletin would be issued until to-day, and then probably not much before midday.

It is remarked that in the first po-

tice of the King's illness issued from Buckingham Palace it was stated that his Majesty was suffering from a "severe bronchial attack." In the bulletin signed by the three attendant physicians the word "severe" was omitted.

Queen Alexandra was advised of the King's indisposition when she reached Calais yesterday on her return from her Mediterranean trip, and instructions were given for her journey across the Channel to be made as quickly as possible. A storm, however, delayed the royal yacht Alexandra, and one of the accompanying destroyers reached Dover a quarter of an hour in advance of her, and conveyed instructions to the port and railway authorities to have everything in readiness for the speedy departure of the train by which her Majesty traveled to London. The courtesies incidental to her Majesty's arrival home were cut as short as possible, and the Queen arrived at Buckingham Palace at 5:30 o'clock last evening. She was met at the station by the Prince and Princess of Wales. The Prince, who had passed most of the day at Buckingham Palace, remained until a late hour in the night.

Sir Ernest Cassel, who returned during the day from abroad, was quoted last night as saying that while he was not in a position to state anything definitely, he understood that the King's condition was "somewhat grave." How it is regarded in the newspaper world is evident from the fact that most of the staffs of the leading papers were mobilized in force in the afternoon to await developments.

Sir Francis Laking, who slept at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday night, remained there throughout yesterday, with the exception of a visit of less than an hour's duration, which he made to his own residence.

Apart from the political, national, and personal aspects, the illness of the King has cast a dark shadow over the brilliant prospects of the London season, now in its opening stages. Gloomy apprehension now holds sway in quarters where a few hours before hopes of one of the most successful seasons in London's history reigned supreme.

All the papers this morning make editorial reference to the King's illness. The Times says that the feelings of universal regret and sympathy which the news of the King's indisposition will awaken "must inevitably be intensified by the reflection that we are entering upon a constitutional crisis of exceptional gravity."

The Daily Mail says: "No sovereign was ever held in such universal affection by his people as King Edward VII. Nothing could be more disquieting than the news of his illness at this most critical moment in the affairs of State, when his moderating influence and supreme tact and experience are so sorely required."

The Daily Express says: "Everything else sinks into insignificance beside this emergency. Controversies cease, politics disappear. The King's subjects are united in fervent prayer for his early and complete recovery. God save the King!"

News Was Unexpected.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Friday, May 6.—The Kingdom was thrown into consternation last night by the totally unexpected announcement that King Edward was suffering from bronchitis in a form which caused some anxiety to his physicians, two of whom are sleeping in Buckingham Palace, as this telegram is sent, to be on hand in case of need.

The first intimation that anything was amiss was the failure of the King to meet the Queen, who returned from the Continent last evening. It has been the King's invariable rule to be present on the Queen's arrival from any out-of-town journey, and his absence last evening was the subject of general comment immediately it was noted.

The Queen hurried to the palace, and soon afterward the public learned by an official announcement that the King had been ill for two days. The fact that his illness had been thus concealed from public knowledge increased the alarm when it became generally known.

The King suffered from a similar attack at Biarritz, where he stayed for seven weeks, owing to the inclement weather and cold winds, but it was supposed that he had completely recovered, especially as he attended the opera at Covent Garden within three hours of his arrival in London from Biarritz on Wednesday, April 27.

The King Busy Last Week.

On the following day the King was very busy. He gave audiences to Field Marshal Lord Kitchener and Premier Asquith and visited the Royal Academy. On Friday also he gave several audiences, entertained Lord and Lady Gladstone at a farewell luncheon on their departure for South Africa, and went to the theatre in the evening.

This social activity tended to reassure the public mind, but it was noticed that while his Majesty was viewing the pictures at the Royal Academy he looked pale and fatigued and lacked his customary zest and sprightliness, and the members of his entourage feared that this might betoken a return of the throat and chest trouble.

The King spent the week-end at Sandringham, with the object of combatting the threatened attack, and returned aparently better, but the sudden changes in the weather this week were very trying to him, and finally compelled him to keep indoors. He still attended to State business, however, and granted audiences, including among others on Tuesday an audience to Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, and another to Lord Roberts. On Wednesday he entertained the Grand Duke Michael at luncheon.

Physicians' Bulletin.

In fact, it was only yesterday that his physicians were able to induce the King with great reluctance to keep to his bedroom and take a complete rest. The bulletin issued at 7:30 o'clock last evening showed that the eminent specialist, Sir Richard Douglas Powell, Bart., President of the Royal College of Physicians, had been called in. He, with the King's physicians, Sir Francis Laking and Sir James Reid, signed the bulletin, which read:

> The King is suffering from an attack of bronchitis and has been confined to his rooms for two days. His Majesty's condition causes some anxiety.

Lord Knollys, secretary to the King, on leaving the palace late last night, said that no further bulletin would be issued until to-day.

Every precaution has been taken to prevent the patient from being disturbed. The quadrangle of the palace and the carriage approaches have been covered with peat to deaden the noise. His Majesty's apartments are on the first floor, overlooking the grounds and Constitution Hill.

The King is in good spirits, despite his illness, and in addition to long visits from members of the royal family, he received in audience yesterday morning Lord Islington, the newly appointed Commander in Chief of New Zealand, and other Colonial officials. Both Sir Francis Laking and Sir James Reid remained in Buckingham Palace throughout the night. It is stated, however, that this was merely a precautionary measure, as the King's illness is not grave. A consultation was held late last night, but no bulletin was issued, it being merely reported that the King was resting comfortably.

A court circular which was sent out about 8 o'clock stated that his Majesty was unable to meet the Queen because he was suffering from a severe cold.

The Prince of Wales has been in constant attendance for the past two days, and last evening the Duchess of Argyll (Princess Louise) was summoned to the palace. The Duke and Duchess of Teck also went there, but all the visitors left Buckingham Palace before 11 o'clock, and, according to the latest report, the King's condition at midnight was more reassuring.

Anxiety will continue, nevertheless, as it is known that his Majesty is subject to serious fainting spells.

stockholders came through a loan of A. P. Heinze in the Riverside Bank for $200,000, and that the fictitious credit against which the dividend checks of the insiders were to be kited was started on April 27 by having Max Schulze draw his check for $650,000 and give it to A. P. Heinze. A. P. Heinze then loaned $810,000 to the Montana Ore Purchasing Company, out of which that company declared a dividend to the United Copper Company of $808,330. There being $160,000 real money represented by this dividend—derived from the loan of A. P. Heinze in the Riverside Bank—the United Copper Company was able to transfer $158,000 over to the Hudson Trust Company for the dividends to the outside stockholders, and then make a loan of $650,000 to Schulze, completing the first cycle.

If the transaction had been bona fide, this would still have left the United without funds for its dividends to outsiders. But it was merely a matter of credits in F. A. Heinze's own bank. The kiting of the loan gained a day's time with a credit of $650,000 in existence. The United could make out its dividend checks for $634,688 to the insiders and then have the credits created through the deposit of these checks by Schulze and the others who got them come around again to complete the second cycle. It will be noticed that $40,000 of the loan of real money made by A. P. Heinze and some part of $150,000 in real money which Otto Heinze & Co. got in the Mercantile National Bank came into the operation. This accounts for the fact that when it is complete Schulze seems to be $160,000 better off than he was at the beginning.

In the case of the August dividend the process was a little different, but the fundamental theory was the same and the result was the same. Here, as the table shows, F. A. Heinze produced the real money by borrowing $300,000 from the Empire Trust Company; the loan of $600,000 to Frederic Eckstein by the Mercantile National Bank made Aug. 5 to this clerk of the Heinzes on his unsecured note produced the credit enabling the circulation of the stage money around among the insiders. The $200,000 from F. A. Heinze and Eckstein's $600,000 went to the Montana Ore Purchasing Company, which, with some small credits, was able to turn out dividends of $808,330 to the United. The United paid $150,000 to the Hudson Trust for the real money dividends, and $604,682.75 for the stage money dividends, returning a small matter of $8,000 to a subsidiary which that company had previously advanced to the Montana Ore Purchasing Company, and came out just where it began.

It merely remained now to get the checks around the circle again. How they were gathered in through the accounts of Schulze, Arthur P. Heinze, and Otto Heinze & Co. in the Mercantile National Bank, the National Park Bank, the National Bank of North America, and the Bank of America, the table clearly shows. In the end, with the aid of a check of $30,050 from F. A. Heinze, one of $60,000 from Otto Heinze & Co. and some miscellaneous small checks that came in from brokers in whose names pool stock was temporarily registered, Schulze had to the credit of his Mercantile National Bank account $647,346, and was able to meet out of this on Aug. 7 his check for $600,000 given to take up the Eckstein loan.

As a collateral line of evidence bearing upon the same situation came Mr. Fernsler's figures showing the activity of the bank accounts of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company and the United Copper Company around the dates in question. Taking the April dividend, for instance, the account of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company had a balance at the opening of business on the 27th of $7,211. That day it received deposits of $810,000 and checked out $650,000. On the 29th it checked out $158,000 more, with no further deposits, bringing it peacefully back to $8,881, some $1,600 stronger than before it began its dividend payments.

The United Copper Company began business on the 27th with $45,736 to its credit in the Mercantile National Bank. It took in that day $703,261 and paid out $650,130. It began the 29th with a balance of $98,867, received $701,906 as the stage-money dividend checks began to come back, suffered withdrawals of $634,688, and had a balance of $166,084 against which, on Tuesday, the 30th, it checked out $160,000 to Schulze on a loan, leaving a balance of $6,084 when everything was over.

Before the Fernsler testimony was reached yesterday there were several further attempts made by the Government, while William F. Weiss, an accountant employed by F. A. Heinze, was on the stand, to get at the actual values standing behind the stock of the United Copper Company, which, as to its common issues, underlies the whole case of the prosecution. It is the contention of the prosecution that this stock was not worth in excess of $20 a share in 1907, when the pool had boosted it up to $70, and in the morning session Mr. Frankfurter tried to put Weiss under a series of questions on this line, in connection with the books of the United Copper Company and with statements which Weiss prepared for F. A. Heinze, showing his assets on Dec. 31, 1907.

The Government has a long line of evidence ready for submission the moment the court opens to it the examination of the value of the stock of the United Copper Company, not the least important fact in which is that the producing companies of the Heinze concern were sold to the Cole-Ryan syndicate in 1905, while the 225,000-share pool was being accumulated in United Copper common stock. Yesterday, however, Judge Hough held that before this lengthy chapter of the case can be entered into, he will have the opposing sides submit their arguments as to whether the evidence shows a legal connection between F. A. Heinze and the 1907 pool sufficient to warrant the counts of the indictment to which this connection is vital as supplying the intent, to go to the jury.

There is no way of telling how soon those arguments will be made, for the Government yesterday, when finally pressed hard against this position by Judge Hough, immediately put on Mr. Fernsler, with his tabulation of the payment of the dividends on United Copper in April and August, 1907.

Weiss was not a satisfactory witness to the prosecution. He disclaimed any memory of his discoveries in the course of an examination of the United Copper books, F. A. Heinze's personal books, or certain books from Otto Heinze & Co., between Oct. 14, 1907, and the Spring of 1908. Weiss prepared a statement of F. A. Heinze's financial condition as of Dec. 31, 1907, which he said he discussed with the defendant and with the representatives of two banks, but Judge Hough declined to allow this statement to be introduced in evidence, and ruled similarly on two particular pages of it.

There was one interesting incident in connection with the argument over the introduction of this paper. Judge Hough asked Mr. Frankfurter what the page proved which Mr. Frankfurter was trying to introduce in evidence.

"It proves that A. P. Heinze—" Mr. Frankfurter began.

"Never mind who," said the court. "It proves that a certain person who wasn't considered very good owed money to the defendant on Dec. 31, 1907. I fail to see that it is material."

The remainder of the testimony of Weiss is fairly represented by the answer he made to a question by Mr. Frankfurter whether he remembered seeing anything about dividends on United Copper common stock in the books that he had examined for F. A. Heinze.

"My best recollection is that I do not recall," the accountant explained.

The case will continue this morning.

UTICA BANK'S LOSS MAY REACH $100,000

APPARENTLY A MODEL MAN

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, May 5.—The police say that Howard J. Lowery, the missing assistant cashier of the Utica City National Bank, has been stealing almost constantly since he entered the bank in 1904, and that $4,000 he is alleged to have taken with him on the morning of his departure, now over a week ago, is simply a drop in the bucket. Whether the total loss of the bank has been fully determined is not known. The books have been undergoing a careful examination and the whole bank force has been working nights since the disappearance of Lowery.

The bank officials make no statement as to the amount, though some of the stockholders have said that it would go above $50,000, while others declare that it is nearer $100,000. Whatever it is, it will not in the least impair the credit of the bank, which is one of the strongest in the central part of the State.

Lowery was apparently of excellent habits and from a family that has long been known in Utica. He was trusted implicitly. So far as known, he did not have a single entanglement or anything to his discredit. He never drew all his salary, leaving some part of it each month to add to his interest account. He has been heard to speak warmly against buying stocks on margin and has often advised customers and other young men in the bank to keep away from bucket shops. He was attentive to a young woman in the city, but she was an entirely respectable girl and he spent no considerable sums upon her entertainment. Since his disappearance it has been learned that she and Lowery were married about three years ago; but she kept her position as a stenographer, earning a good salary, and they lived apart.

Lowery had a few thousand left him from the estates of his father and mother, which were well invested and which he did not interfere with in any manner, but the money lost by the bank, it is alleged, all went to bucket shops, though his fellow-employes and most intimate friends did not know that Lowery was "playing the market."

The day before Lowery disappeared an examiner had been through the bank and had found everything in proper shape, apparently. But he took away from the bank one of the slips and at his leisure footed the column with a pencil. The machine total was $600 more than his total, and the examiner could not make it come out any other way. The next morning the examiner again went to the bank, and when he entered the room at 9 o'clock Lowery must have realized that discovery was at hand. Five minutes later Lowery left the room, quite unconcerned, but in his pocket, it is alleged, was a package of nearly $4,000 in currency that he had picked up from the supply he was bringing out for the day's transactions.

Lowery is said to have lighted a cigar in the lobby and to have gone immediately to a gallery, or mezzanine floor, that overlooks the working departments of the bank. Here he posted himself and kept watch for nearly an hour of what was going on below. Then he saw that inquiries were being made for him and he borrowed a key from a scrub woman and left the bank through the cellar, evidently not wishing to venture a return by way of the lobby.

It is maintained by friends of Lowery that he is insane and that he went away to commit suicide. He has a brother in the Utica State Hospital. Another brother committed suicide near Oneida Lake a few years ago, and it is argued that insanity is the only explanation of his behavior.

However that may be, Lowery has never shown any indications of insanity, and he prepared on going away to take a considerable trip. He concealed his exit from the city with great care, for nothing has been heard concerning him except that he hired a liveryman to drive him from Rome to Canastota, stopping at a village along the way to buy a cap and discarding his derby.

BOY AIDS IN CATCHING TWO FOR FLAT THEFTS

Youngster Sticks Close to Them Until He Passes a Policeman, Then Begins a Chase.

AUTO PRESSED INTO SERVICE

Two swarthy men fingered the bell buttons in the vestibule of a five-story apartment house at 1,142 Intervale Avenue, the Bronx, yesterday, aroused the suspicions of twelve-year-old Willie Frew, who was returning from school to his home on the top floor of the house.

When he asked them what they were doing, he says, they told him they were looking for some one named Smith; but Willie knew that there was no Smith living in the house. So he hurried downstairs and told the janitress. When he returned with her the two men were gone.

"Their pockets were bulging," said Willie. "I'm sure they were burglars. I'm going to arrest them."

Then he ran out of the house. At the corner of 167th Street he saw the two men walking rapidly eastward. Willie followed, with shorter but quicker strides. Two blocks on, at Fox Square, the men passed a police box, where Bicycle Policeman Kessler of the Morrisania Precinct was telephoning to his station. As Willie passed him he plucked the policeman by the coat.

"Them fellows are burglars," he said. "I caught them at my home. Their pockets are full of loot."

Then he hurried on.

Kessler looked after him a moment. Then he hung up the receiver, dropped his bicycle, and strode after the boy and the men. The younger of the two men walked with a limp, and as Kessler and the boy neared them the could hear the older urging his companion:

The fugitives turned south in Southern Boulevard, never once looking at their pursuers, now swelled to several hundred. At 162d Street the younger and limping fugitive, badly winded, slowed down, and Kessler overtook and grabbed him.

An automobile driven by George Davis of 300 Intervale Avenue came bowling along just then and Kessler hailed it. Without more than a moment's pause, he collared his prisoner by the scruff of the neck, threw him into the automobile, and ordered Davis to give chase after the other fugitive. When he looked around, the policeman found Willie Frew squatting ecstatically in the rear seat of the tonneau, still shouting "Stop, thief!" with all the power of his lungs.

The fugitive had now turned east in 162d Street and was cutting through the wilder and less populated territory toward the Bronx River. Reaching this, nearly a mile from where the chase began, he paused, apparently undecided where to turn. The automobile was only a few yards away, and the howling crowd not far behind. Kessler, bidding Davis hold the prisoner, jumped from the car and rushed at the fugitive.

Suddenly, when Kessler was less than a yard away, and just about to lay his hand on the man's shoulder, the man whipped out a revolver and shouted:

"One step nearer, and I'll blow your brains out!"

The man squinted as if for aim. Just then Kessler's own revolver barrel flashed under his nose, and the man dropped his revolver with a cry of terror at the policeman's feet.

A moment later he was handcuffed and bundled beside his companion in the automobile. At the Morrisania Station the first prisoner said he was Morris Cohen of 273 Monroe Street. He was charged with burglary. The other, who said he was Frank Smith of 150 East 105th Street, was charged with burglary, felonious assault, and carrying a concealed weapon.

In their pockets were found two large envelopes filled with jewelry—watches, chains, diamond and emerald rings—worth apparently several thousand dollars. When news of this reached the crowd outside of the station they dispersed anxiously to their homes with uneasy presentments of robberies there. A few minutes later Mrs. Helen Hyde of 1,339 Intervale Avenue hurried into the station, crying that burglars had pried the door of her flat on the fifth floor of the building and had stolen all of her jewelry, worth about $400. She identified the articles among the jewelry taken from the two prisoners. When they were led before her she identified them as the two men she had seen in the vestibule.

While the crowd was still thick outside the station, Mrs. Elizabeth Frew, mother of Willie, the small burglar hunter, rushed into the station, crying that her home had been entered and robbed of jewelry during her absence downtown.

"Hooray!" shouted Willie.

Then he helped her look over the parcels of jewelry on the desk, from which she picked out a watch and an emerald ring as articles belonging to her, and thereafter Willie told her how he had "captured the burglars."

MRS. MACKAY RESIGNS.

Quits Roslyn School Board Because She Can't Attend Meetings.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 5.—Members of the Roslyn School Board were surprised to-day by the announcement in the evening papers of the resignation of Mrs. Clarence Mackay from the board on account of her inability to attend all the meetings.

The report of Mrs. Mackay's withdrawal from an active part in Roslyn school interests has often been circulated before, and in the absence of any word from Mrs. Mackay members of the board questioned its authenticity this time. Dr. Joseph H. Bogart, President of the School Board, however, said the resignation would probably be presented at a meeting of the board on Thursday evening.

MAURETANIA HERE IN EARLY MORNING

Bond Street Dressmaker Had a Branch Shop Aboard with Live Models in It.

WINSTON CHURCHILL, TOO

Tom L. Johnson, Health Improved, Says He's in Politics Till He Dies—Other Passengers.

The Cunarder Mauretania reached her pier a few minutes after midnight last night, having made the trip in 4 days 15 hours and 49 minutes.

The feminine first class passengers reported that they had had an unusually interesting trip because a Bond Street dressmaking house had shipped an agent, three unusually pretty young women models, and a number of beautiful gowns. The agent, on the first day out, sent the three models to the ladies' cabin. The models tried on the gowns before the eyes of the fascinated feminine passengers and then invited the latter to try the robes on for themselves. Several of the women passengers gave the enterprising agent large orders, and every one had a good time.

One of the first passengers down the gangplank was Tom L. Johnson, former Mayor of Cleveland, who has been abroad for his health.

"I am in politics till I die," said ex-Mayor Johnson. "I went away a sick man. But I am now much better, though not entirely recovered. Before returning to Cleveland I shall stay in New York for a few days."

While ex-Mayor Johnson was busy with his baggage, an overzealous newspaper photographer tried to take a flashlight picture of him. The explosion of the flashlight in his ear so incensed ex-Mayor Johnson that he smashed the photographer's hat over his head and dashed his camera from his hand.

J. P. Morgan, Jr., was on the pier to meet Vivian Smith, a partner in the English Morgan firm. Mr. and Mrs. William Leslie, whom the younger Morgan has visited in Scotland, were also on board.

W. W. Rockhill, former Minister to China, and now our Ambassador to Russia, returned on two months' leave of absence.

Mr. Rockhill left St. Petersburg on Tuesday morning of last week, making a record trip of only a little over nine days. Other passengers were: dustry of the United Fruit Company stirred it to life again.

Money flowed into the country, and an alien population, principally Americans and Jamaican negroes, arrived. At the time of this latest disaster the population had increased to over 10,000. The town was of considerable size, and during the past fifteen years had become modernized by the influx of Americans and American money. It had some very fine old buildings, including the Municipal Palace, the Cuartel, and the College of San Luis, which was at one time considered the finest building in the republic. There is also the College del Carazon de Jesus and the very ancient Church of the Angels.

Besides this church there are about a dozen others of various denominations, at least six of which are built of stone. The churches of San Francisco, Carmen, an San Nicholas are of solid Gothic architecture. There was also a parochial church which cost about $60,000 to build.

Cartago was one of the few towns left in South America where innovation could not wipe out the atmosphere of Old World antiquity. Its streets suggested ancient Spain, and on a busy day they presented a motley of race and color. Negroes, Hindus, Indians, Chinese, and Americans mingled in the straight, paved streets and in the plazas. Beggars were like flies, even more than is the case in all Central American towns. They sold native fruits and Indian curios, an amazing number of the latter including little gold images, having been unearthed from time to time in the Indian tombs in the vicinity.

The Cartago collections of Indian relics are about the largest and finest known. The little Indian gods found there showed that beyond all doubt the Aztecs possessed a high degree of art.

Mention has been made of the Church of the Angels, (Los Angeles.) It is not improbable that this old church has withstood the earthquake, as it survived many another. There is a strange story attached to Los Angeles.

In the middle of the seventeenth century, in the latter part of which the church was founded, an Indian woman, going to a spring for water, found a little golden image on a rock where the church now stands. She took it home and placed it in a safe place. Next day, upon going for water, she discovered a similar image on the same rock. Taking it home and being about to place it with the first, she discovered that the first had vanished. This happened several times, in each case the image vanishing from the niche and appearing on the rock. She reported the matter to a priest. Under the belief that this was a divine sign, the Church of the Angels was founded upon that rock.

The City of San Jose, the capital of the Republic, which is also reported to have been shaken by the earthquake, has grown enormously in recent years. It is surrounded by remarkably fertile lands and is the centre of a vast agricultural and mining business which has developed in the last twenty years. It is very modern, and its inhabitants are as gay as New Yorkers or Parisians. Indeed, it vies with Caracas in the claim to the title of the "Paris of South America."

Its principal buildings are the National Palace, the Presidential Palace, the Palace of Justice, the Bishop's Palace, the University, the seminary college, the College of Zion, the Orphan Asylum, the Cuartel, and the National Liquor Factory. There is also a beautiful cathedral.

CARNEGIE'S PEACE PALACE.

The erection of the Central American Peace Palace, or "Court of Justice," as it was officially called, followed several years of activity on the part of Andrew Carnegie directed toward bringing the Central American republics close enough together to make it inconvenient for them to keep constantly at war.

Mr. Carnegie's interest was aroused in Costa Rica and adjoining Governments as "horrible examples" of what war can do. At the time he was busy promoting The Hague Peace Tribunal movement, and was issuing pamphlets upon peace as an outgrowth of civilization in contrast to war as a product of barbarity, it occurred to him to show by the example of South and Central America what a reformatory movement could really accomplish.

On May 6, 1907, accordingly, he dispatched to Central and South America two special peace envoys. They were Prof. W. R. Shepherd of Columbia University and Diego Mendoza, former Minister of Colombia at Washington, to whom he had become attached because of his interest in the peace propaganda.

The first result of this mission to the centres of the warring zones, was a conference of Central American republics at Washington. One of the things the conference did at its meeting on Dec. 7, 1907, was to decide upon a Central American Court of Justice, to be established at Cartago, to decide by arbitration matters in dispute between Salvador, Guatamala, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Costa Rica, or any two of them.

On May 8, 1908, the Court of Justice was duly established at a conference in Cartago, at which W. I. Buchanan represented the United States and Enrique C. Creel represented Mexico, both as visiting delegates only, who were to have no permanent voice in the court's affairs. The sensation of the conference was the reading of a telegram from Andrew Carnegie offering $100,000 to erect a Court House for the Justices.

Mr. Buchanan, who read the telegram, became the hero of the hour and the day, and a fête of the Cartago people was held in his honor.

The $100,000 offered was made immediately available, and the erection of the peace palace followed during the Summer of 1908. One of the promises made in establishing the Court of Justice was that the United States and Mexico would be joint sponsors for the continued peace of the countries over which the court's decisions were to hold, and would see to their enforcement. It was this fact that gave the court its principal power in Central American affairs.

The Bureau of Latin-American Republics, established in Washington in another palace donated by Mr. Carnegie, was part of the peacemaker's same general scheme for supplanting war in the Western Hemisphere with arbitration. Following the tour of Elihu Root, when he was Secretary of State, through the South and Central American countries, Mr. Carnegie donated to Hamilton College, Mr. Root's Alma Mater, a special memorial fund of $200,000 to commemorate the journey.

The Cartago Court has held several stormy sessions. Ex-President Zelaya of Nicaragua became the storm centre of a bitter controversy growing out of one of the court's decisions. It was charged that he was seeking to avoid the court's rulings and was trying through indirect political methods to control the Justices, and his quarrel with the United States was said to have originated in the State Department's efforts to secure his co-operation with the wishes of the Cartago court.

During the recent use of "shotgun diplomacy" toward Nicaragua by the State Department Mr. Carnegie held several conferences with Secretary Knox, and during one of them offered, it was reported, $20,000,000 if it would accomplish the work of bringing permanent peace in the area of trouble.

SENATE REGULARS CLAIM 45 VOTES

Have Plan Also to Keep Taft in Washington and Save Railway Bill.

THINK NEXT WEEK CRITICAL

Presidential Western Trip and Prospective Visit to Passaic Monday Cause of Much Criticism.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Legislation was suspended in the Senate to-day, and while both Republican factions busied themselves in efforts to win over Democratic votes, speeches were made on irrelevant subjects in an obvious effort to kill time. So anxious are the Republicans to stave off all action until both the President and Senator Aldrich are again on the scene that Mr. Elkins this afternoon tried to get the Senate to adjourn over until Monday, but was so ridiculed by Senator Bacon of Georgia that finally Senator Lodge said he would be prepared to speak on the railroad bill to-morrow, and a session was accordingly decided on.

The Regulars to-night are saying that they have forty-five Republican votes for the defeat of the Cummins revised amendment and the Dixon amendment embodying the long and short haul clause into the bill, with enough Democratic votes to make certain the defeat of the two Insurgent propositions. Following their rally last night the Regulars are speaking confidently of drawing up a new Administration programme with the President to-morrow and then holding their men in line to put it through the Senate.

The first move of the Regulars will be to try to induce the President to cancel the engagement to attend a banquet at Passaic, N. J., on Monday evening. The President's absence at a critical time has already caused much uneasy comment, and it is felt that next week will see the fate of the whole Railroad bill decided. There is even talk that Mr. Taft has telegraphed Mr. Aldrich to return to-morrow instead of on Tuesday, and that at luncheon to-morrow the two men will discuss the situation and arrange a programme. This report, however, is discredited in informed circles.

A List of 45 Faithful.

The following is given as the list of the forty-five Republican conservatives who have undertaken to stand together to establish a firm control of the Senate proceedings and put through what remains of the Administration programme:

Aldrich,
Bradley,
Brandegee,
Briggs,
Bulkeley,
Burnham,
Burrows,
Burton,
Carter,
Clarke, (Wyo.,) Crane,
Cullom,
Curtis,
Depew,
Dick,
Dillingham,
Du Pont,
Elkins,
Flint,
Frye,
Gallinger,
Guggenheim,
Hale.

Heyburn,
Jones,
Kean,
Lodge,
Lorimer,
McCumber,
Nixon,
Oliver,
Page,
Penrose,
Perkins,
Piles,
Richardson,
Root,
Scott,
Smith, (Mich.,)
Smoot,
Stephenson,
Sutherland,
Warner,
Warren,
Wetmore.

As utterly impossible for the conservatives to reach, the regulars have classed Beverdige, Bristow, Clapp, Cummins, Dolliver, and La Follette.

The men on whom the regular Republicans are still working and who will receive the attention of President Taft include:

Borah, Bourne, Brown, Burkett, Crawford, Dixon, Gamble, and Nelson. All of these men have voted with the insurgents from time to time. They have refused, however, to be called insurgents, and have been found in the ranks of the regulars at least half of the time.

It was reported to-day, although no confirmation of the report could be obtained, that Senator Dixon would vote with the regulars as soon as the long and short haul amendment to the Railroad bill was disposed of. Senator Borah, it was stated, would also join in the line-up for the Taft programme, provided he were given assurance of support for his bill providing for the issuance of $30,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness to provide money to complete reclamation projects. Senators Bourne and Nelson, it was said, would also be found in the conservative ranks if the new legislative programme takes cognizance of certain measures favored by them.

The purpose of the regular Republicans is to get a majority of the Senate so that the charge cannot be made that they formed a coalition with the Democrats to put through party measures. At the same time they assert they can count on certain Democratic votes when needed

Difficulties of Postal Savings.

Most of the stalwarts speak confidently of overturning the long-and-short-haul clause, but none has anything to say as to other items of the Taft programme. Many of the regulars, who against their judgments voted for the Postal Savings Bank bill, are watching with undisguised pleasure the slow course of that bill in the House, and they are cheerfully announcing that it looks now as if it will take a vote of the House to bring the bill out of committee. The committee members seem to be overwhelmingly opposed to the measure, and it is said that whenever it is taken up for consideration and a few lines read, proceedings are at once interrupted by the half-serious, half-jocular cries of the members: "That's Socialistic! We can't stand for that!"

Many details in the Railroad bill are still undecided, and in the polls of votes announced it must be borne in mind that any of these polls may be modified by some change in the subject of the proposed vote. Thus not until the President is consulted to-morrow will it be known whether or not the sections relating to stock and bond issues will remain in the bill, and other sections are in the same situation.

The comment on the prolonged absence of President Taft at this juncture has already been mentioned. This criticism was increased by the announced intention of the President to go on two other trips next week, when the fate of the whole bill will be at issue. On Monday the President is due at Passaic to attend a banquet of the Board of Trade and various commercial organizations, returning to Washington next morning. Then on Wednesday he will go to New York to assist at the launching of the battleship Florida.

The Bill in the House.

The House when it adjourned had reached Section 12, the merger section of the bill, which has already been knocked out in the Senate. It was agreed between the majority and minority members of the House that the section and all amendments, which include one to strike out the entire section, shall be voted upon after one hour's debate to-morrow.

TAFT MAY SPEAK OUT

If He Finds That Insurgents' Action Has Changed Railway Bill Too Much.

CINCINNATI, May 5.—President Taft passed through here this afternoon on his way back to Washington. He is due in the capital early to-morrow morning, and has already indicated his purpose of devoting Friday and Saturday to important conferences regarding the Railroad bill.

That Mr. Taft has been in touch with the situation to the limited extent which telegraphic and long-distance telephone communications allow, and that he is heartily in sympathy with the aggressive attitude of the regular Republicans in the Senate in casting aside all further attempts to win back to the party measure the support of the more radical insurgents cannot be doubted.

The President himself may adopt the policy announced at the Senate conference presided over by Senator Aldrich yesterday. In fact, he is said to feel that he has been patient quite long enough in listening to promises of insurgent support in the Senate, only to find "the insurgents' knife out" for much of the legislation he has proposed as a compliance with party platform pledges. Mr. Taft is contemplating making a speech at Passaic, N. J., next Monday evening—if he finds the situation in Washington what he thinks it to be—that will disclose to the country a number of facts and incidents that the Chief Executive has heretofore kept to himself.

The President has repeatedly expressed himself as being willing to stand criticism for apparent inaction and lack of vigorous methods in dealing with Congress so long as he felt this policy would accomplish some good in the end. So, if he finds as a result of his conferences in Washington that there is still a fair prospect of securing some progressive legislation in the Railroad bill, he may not adopt the weapon of publicity, so effectively used by Mr. Roosevelt.

On the other hand, if the President finds that the attitude of the insurgents is such that the whole Railroad bill is likely to fail, or to be put up to him in such shape that a veto will be the only action he can take upon it, he will undoubtedly take advantage of the opportunity at Passaic to let the country know just where matters stand.

There was more than a smile behind the President's reference yesterday to "Democrats, Republicans, and insurgents."

The President is making a straight run from St. Louis to Washington, not being scheduled for any stops en route. He slept late this morning, resting up from the "bully day" he had in the Missouri city yesterday. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Norton is accompanying the President to Washington.

PARKERSBURG, West Va., May 5.—President Taft passed through here at 6 o'clock to-night. He had spent a quiet day in his car during the long run from St. Louis and appeared on the back platform for a few moments. He shook hands with several persons at Chillicothe and Athens, Ohio. The President is due at Washington at 6:30 to-morrow morning.

M'CLELLAN AFFIRMS; RIERDON DENIES IT

him. Mr. Murphy refused to discuss the nature of his visit, and the Mayor also declined to talk of it.

Hearst Begins More Suits.

Mr. Hearst began suits yesterday against sixteen more newspapers and their publishers who printed the Mayor's speech at The Associated Press dinner, including the Mayor's declaration that "two State prison felonies, namely, forgery and falsification of a public document, were committed in the eagerness of this publisher and editor [Hearst] to wrong the Mayor of the City of New York."

Last week he sued THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Brooklyn Eagle for $100,000 each and The Associated Press for $500,000. Yesterday he began suits against Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of THE TIMES; Herman Ridder, publisher of the Staats-Zeitung and President of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association; Melville E. Stone, General Manager of The Associated Press, and Henry Watterson, editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal. The other suits begun were against The Courier-Journal, the New York Staats-Zeitung, seven Boston papers, and The Call, Bulletin, and Chronicle of San Francisco. In each action $100,000 damages is asked.

Clarence J. Shearn, Mr. Hearst's personal counsel, said that still more actions would be brought. When asked the reason for the bringing of the personal suits he replied that the complaints, which will be drawn to-day, will allege that the men in charge of the dinner of The Associated Press were aware of the nature of Mayor Gaynor's speech several hours before the dinner, yet failed to give Mr. Hearst an opportunity to state his side of the case. The complaint against Mr. Stone will allege that orders were given in The Associated Press after the copy of the Mayor's speech was received at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, according to the complaint, that it should not be transmitted to The American until 9 o'clock in the evening.

"All we want is a square deal,'" said Mr. Shearn yesterday. "If the papers had given us a fair statement of our side of the case, there would have been no trouble. We are not looking for the money represented by the damage suits we are bringing; we simply want to catch up with the publication of the Mayor's remarks over the country. He classed Mr. Hearst as a low criminal and his words were published without giving him an opportunity to reply. I think we are catching up with the publication here in this city, but we intend to continue until full justice has been done."

Mr. Shearn was asked if he knew "Julia Smith," in whose name the suit against the Mayor, Chamberlain Hyde, and Mr. Cohalan has been brought for the restitution of the greater part of the money paid out on the warrant.

"No, I do not," he replied. "I am trying to find out who she is."

"Do you know Mr. Epstein, her lawyer?"

"No. And I am also looking him up. I want to know who is back of this suit, if any one. If Gaynor is trying to test this case himself I want to know it, and if some one else is, I want to know who it is and all about them."

Mr. Shearn had announced his intention of applying to the courts yesterday for an order to compel the City Chamberlain to produce for examination all his office records of the warrant. Mr. Hyde notified him early yesterday that this was not necessary. Soon afterward two American reporters and a photographer appeared at the Chamberlain's office and demanded to see the records. They said they particularly wished to see and photograph the warrant book in which was the entry showing that the warrant was re- after it had come from his office on the afternoon of Dec. 31. Mr. Hyde was then absent at the City Hall, and his Deputy, Mr. Walsh, did not wish to grant the permission without him. Mr. Hyde was informed of the presence of the representatives of The American, and promptly returned. He found among the Hearst contingent Harry Klein, the reporter who engineered the photographing of the original warrant, the reproduction of which without the date Dec. 31 started the controversy. Mr. Hyde immediately ordered Klein out of the office. When Klein attempted to argue the point the Chamberlain called in his policeman. Then Klein departed.

The warrant book was examined by THE TIMES reporter. The entry described by ex-Chamberlain Martin and Mr. Hyde in his letter to the Mayor was found with the initialed receipt under it, dated Jan. 4, of John T. Birmingham, the Chief Disbursing Clerk of the Controller's office, who paid the money to Mr. Cohalan. The whole sheet, on which warrants totaling $71,000 were entered, was receipted by him on Dec. 31.

The return entry, it was learned, was written by Abraham Rossman, Chief Warrant Clerk of the Chamberlain's office. He was asked yesterday if he knew in what manner the warrant was returned from the Mayor's office to the Chamberlain's office and replied in the negative.

Deputy Chamberlain Walsh, who signed the warrant on Jan. 4, just before it went to the disbursing clerk, was then consulted. He replied that he found the warrant on his desk and signed it "in the regular course of business, as he has thousands of others."

"I do not know how the warrant came from the Mayor's office to our office," he added. "I do know, however, that I did not receive any instructions from Chamberlain Hyde to sign the warrant."

Controller Prendergast, who has taken a position throughout the controversy, more or less opposed to the Mayor, declared yesterday that he did not believe his stand would mean any break in the harmonious action of the two in the Board of Estimate.

"As far as I am concerned, this controversy will not mean any break between myself and the Mayor," said he. "I was elected on a platform that called for good government, and on that platform I stand and shall continue to stand. I have nothing but the most profound contempt for the man who measures his official actions by his personal prejudices and differences of opinion."

BALLINGER GRILLED BY GLAVIS'S LAWYER

Secretary Refuses to Tell Why Hitchcock Was Consulted About Alaska Land Appointments.

COMMITTEE BACKS REFUSAL

Taft Letter Read Which Declares Pinchot's Trouble Is Failure to Admit High Motives in Others.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 5. — Secretary Richard A. Ballinger and Attorney Brandeis crossed swords before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee to-day, and if the fencing in which they indulged and the occasional thrusts which each made may be taken as indicative of what is to follow, there is likely to be a fierce encounter between the two men before the cross-examination of the Secretary is concluded by the counsel for L. R. Glavis, one of his chief accusers.

Mr. Ballinger concluded his direct testimony with the statement that his every official act had been with the sole idea of fulfilling his trust.

"I defy any one to put his finger on anything that I have done while in the public service which was not in line with my duty and in accordance with my trust," he said.

As though in acceptance of the challenge, Attorney Brandeis then took up the cross-examination of the witness. Within five minutes the expected clash between them had taken place, and on his very first question Mr. Brandeis had to appeal to the committee to "request" Mr. Ballinger to answer it.

The question involved Postmaster General Hitchcock, whom Mr. Brandeis called the "official pie distributor" of the Administration. Mr. Brandeis wanted to know why Mr. Ballinger had wired Chief of Field Division H. H. Schwartz to wait until he had talked with Hitchcock before he made the appointment of ten special agents to be employed in the Alaskan coal cases investigation. Mr. Ballinger said that fact had no political significance and declined to answer more explicity. A wrangle between Mr. Brandeis and the members of the committee ensued, and the result was a record vote by which the committee decided that Mr. Ballinger need not answer more fully.

Mr. Ballinger had explained that the appointments in question were outside the classified service and in the event that there were two or three persons possessing equal qualifications, he desired Mr. Hitchcock to decide. This answer did not satisfy Mr. Brandeis, and he wanted to know a further reason, to which Mr. Ballinger had replied with some spirit: "I have given you all the reason you are going to get, unless the committee directs otherwise."

Mr. Brandeis dropped this line of inquiry to take up a letter which Commissioner Dennett had written to Mr. Carr, private secretary to Mr. Ballinger, while they were on the Western trip. In this letter Mr. Dennett referred to "an old fossil" in the department. Mr. Brandeis remarked that it was largely intended for Mr. Ballinger, although addressed to Mr. Carr.

"That's not true," exclaimed Mr. Ballinger; "you are wrong in that, as you have been in almost everything else in this hearing."

Mr. Brandeis next called attention to the fact that Mr. Ballinger had not produced before the committee the correspondence which had preceded his acceptance of the Secretaryship of the Interior. He had been "silently modest" about that, Mr. Brandeis said. Mr. Ballinger said he would produce it "with pleasure," for it showed that he had not sought the office and had tried to keep out of politics.

Mr. Brandeis also sought to show that Mr. Guggenheim of Colorado had been especially active in retaining Fred Dennett as Land Commissioner, although John F. Vivian, Chairman of the State Republican Committee of his own State, was a candidate for the office.

Mr. Brandeis brought up the matter of the charge of disloyalty to his chief which had been made against Mr. Glavis, and asked Mr. Ballinger if he had ever considered that Glavis in being personally disloyal to one man had perhaps been loyal to 90,000,000 of American people.

"I'll not argue that question with you," shouted Mr. Ballinger, "there are no facts which warrant any man in accusing me of improper motives."

In his direct testimony Mr. Ballinger testified that since Pinchot's dismissal there had been a complete reversal of the forestry policy of the Government, and said he believed it would keep a great many Americans from emigrating to Canada, and would result in the development of many portions of the forest reserves.

Mr. Ballinger then read a letter which he said the President had written to him from Beverley, Sept. 13, 1909. In it he said:

> I have studiously refrained from mentioning Pinchot's name in the matter because I do not wish to make it impossible for him to remain in the service. I value him highly as a public servant, and believe his capable of further great usefulness. His weakness has been his inability to credit high and honorable motives to those who differ with him as to his method of doing things when he is pursuing a worthy object with all the enthusiasm of his nature. I have every confidence in both you and Pinchot.

Mr. Ballinger said he had remained silent under all the abuse and had instructed his subordinates to do likewise. As a result, he said, Glavis had gone to Collier's Weekly with what he called his "scurrilous screed," and which they had "rehashed in the style they usually publish their scurvy matter."

Mr. Ballinger contradicted two statements made by Secretary Garfield in his letter of Nov. 6, 1909, to President Taft. In that letter, which is in evidence, Mr. Garfield said that the co-operative certificate plan of the reclamation service had been approved by the Senate Committee on Irrigation, and Mr. Ballinger read a certificate from the Secretary of that committee stating that a careful search of the minutes of the committee since 1903 had failed to show any reference to the co-operative certificate plan.

In the same letter Mr. Garfield told the President that Secretary Ballinger had instructed Director Newell and Engineer Davis of the Reclamation Service to make the restoration of lands withdrawn under Garfield slowly in order not to reflect on the previous Administration. Mr. Ballinger said he gave no such order, and recalled that no such suggestion had been made.

UNFEELING SING SING.

Lawyer Protests That His Vegetarian Client Has to Eat Meat There.

A tall and distinguished-looking person, who said he was Alfred Ennis, a lawyer, and whose white hair was all the whiter for the shiny black hat that sat upon it, called on District Attorney Whitman's private secretary yesterday and asked him flatly:

"Why, my dear Sir, is so little consideration shown at Sing Sing for the feelings of vegetarians?"

"I bite," said Mr. Crannell cheerfully, "what's the answer?'"

"I do not understand you," his visitor said stiffly. "My client, one Charles Barry, has been sentenced there for from one to five years, and they feed him nothing but steaks and roasts. Nothing," he added plaintively, "but steaks and roasts, and he a vegetarian! I urge upon you that he be transferred to the Tombs, where fresh greens can be sent him daily."

Smith Gray & Co.
Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.

The character, the individuality, the harmony of construction, the distinctive identity, the completeness of a Smith Gray garment are the cumulative result of the experience gained by 65 years of best clothes building.

Smith Gray styles are, as the result of catering exclusively to the most discriminating and critical New York's best dressers for more than three generations, the accepted standard of New York styles, just as the values have come to be accepted as the standard New York values.

Smith Gray & Co. Suits and Spring Coats in generous assortment and in many exclusive designs, range in price from 18.00 to 50.00.

Hundreds of Smith Gray & Co. Suits and Spring Overcoats, regularly priced 20 and 22.50, 15.50

Hundreds of Smith Gray & Co. Suits and Spring Overcoats, regularly priced 22.50, 25 and 27.50, 18.50

Since tailoring costs in the Smith Gray shops are lower, due to our long experience in good clothes building, than is possible elsewhere, the prices are in direct relation to the cost and, in consequence, a standard of value results.

These values set at naught a time-honored tradition, the special pricing of regular lots at the season's very height when highest prices usually obtain, and instead of holding our small lots until midsummer, as custom demands, we offer now special priced regular lots, and all one, two or three of a kind, that the excess values may bring to Smith Gray stores those whose appreciation shall make them regular patrons.

Included are suits of Blue Serge and fancy weave Blues, Grays, Stone and Steel shades in Worsted Velours and Cassimeres, Pin Checks, Glen Checks, Stripes and neat Mixtures.

Overcoats are in smart Grays, Tans and Olive shades. Many decidedly new weavings are to be found.

In both Suits and Overcoats you will find sizes and models for men and young men of every style idea.

Motor clothes for owners and chauffeurs.

You are going to buy a Spring Suit

Possibly several. Will you be content with merely "good" clothes, or do you want something more than the price usually pays for? Quality of cloth is no longer a bugaboo. That question was long ago thrashed out. Everybody knows now that the self-respecting maker of men's apparel will use none but pure wool fabrics—and few shops have the temerity to offer aught else. But the finest fabric ever loomed, in the hands of unskilled designers or indifferent craftsmen, will make a shapeless suit, while the same materials manipulated by a master of the craft will produce a garment that closely approaches perfection.

Our Suits for Men

are designed and made by our own exclusive organization. There is no middle profit—but one price stands between you and the makers, and that price is based upon a modest profit only. Price for price, we can—and do—give more than you get elsewhere—more conscientious craftsmanship, better finish—and decidedly more individuality of style.

ROOSEVELT WANTS LEAGUE OF PEACE

ADDRESS IN CHRISTIANIA

Norwegian Monarchs Present — Ex-President Is Privately Urging Action for Peace on European Statesmen.

CHRISTIANIA, May 5.—Notwithstanding an occasional giving way of the voice, ex-President Roosevelt made a deep impression on the audience which gathered to-day in the National Theatre to hear his address on "International Peace" before the Nobel Prize Committee. The members of the committee describe it as the most notable assembly since the Nobel Prize was founded.

It was the Nobel Prize Committee, the members of which are elected by the Norwegian Storthing, that in 1906 conferred upon the then President of the United States its medal and money award in recognition of his services in bringing to a conclusion the Russo-Japanese war.

King Haakon and Queen Maud were present, as well as all the members of the Government, who occupied seats on the stage, and the entire Parliamentary body, among whom was Miss Rogstad, the first woman to be elected to the Norwegian Storthing. The overture by the orchestra at the opening of the session was specially composed by the royal bandmaster, Johann Halverson, who dedicated it to Mr. Roosevelt. The theme embodied "The Star-Spangled Banner" and Norse folk songs and melodies.

The stage was bordered with flowers, and no Norwegian flag was visible—only the Stars and Stripes, a special compliment to Mr. Roosevelt. The audience stood up when the King and Queen and Mrs. Roosevelt took seats in the royal box, and rose again when Mr. Roosevelt entered from the back of the stage, escorted by J. G. Loevland, the ex-Premier and Chairman of the Nobel Prize Committee. Mr. Loevland introduced Mr. Roosevelt, who read his speech. From time to time, however, he departed from the text, to repeat in the same words, or in somewhat different words, the ideas he had just expressed.

"I wish to pronounce a tribute," he said, "to the great Norwegian who has just died—"

The whole house arose and stood with bowed heads for a moment, and Mr. Roosevelt continued—"whose death leaves a gap in the literature of the whole world."

He alluded to Björnson as a man who had always stood for the right as he conceived the right to be. As Mr. Roosevelt proceeded with his address the Norwegians commented upon the resemblance between the ex-President and Björnson—the similarity in their style of public speaking, the same favorite gesture, with the clenched hand.

Mr. Roosevelt's Address.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

"It is with peculiar pleasure that I stand here to-day to express the deep appreciation I feel of the high honor conferred upon me by the presentation of the Noble Peace Prize. The gold medal which formed part of the prize I shall always keep, and I shall hand it on to my children as a precious heirloom. The sum of money provided as part of the prize by the wise generosity of the illustrious founder of this world-famous prize system, I did not, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, feel at liberty to keep.

"I think it eminently just and proper that in most cases the recipient of the prize should keep for his own use the prize in its entirety. But in this case, while I did not act officially as President of the United States, it was nevertheless only because I was President that I was enabled to act at all; and I felt that the money must be considered as having been given me in trust for the United States. I therefore used it as a nucleus for a foundation to forward the cause of industrial peace, as being well within the general purpose of your committee; for in our complex industrial civilization of to-day the peace of righteousness and justice, the only kind of peace worth having, is at least as necessary in the industrial world as it is among nations. There is at least as much need to curb the cruel greed and arrogance of part of the world of capital, to curb the cruel greed and violence of part of the world of labor, as to check a cruel and unhealthy militarism in international relationships.

The Great End in View.

"We must ever bear in mind that the great end in view is righteousness, justice as between man and man, nation and nation, the chance to lead our lives on a somewhat higher level, with a broader spirit of brotherly good will one for another. Peace is generally good in itself, but it is never the highest good unless it comes as the handmaid of righteousness; and it becomes a very evil thing if it serves merely as a mask for cowardice and sloth, or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy. We despise and abhor the bully, the brawler, the oppressor, whether in private or public life; but we despise no less the coward and the voluptuary. No man is worth calling a man who will not fight rather than submit to infamy or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong. No nation deserves to exist if it permits itself to lose the stern and virile virtues; an dthis without regard to whether the loss is due to the growth of a heartless and all-absorbing commercialism, to prolonged indulgence in luxury and soft effortless ease, or to the deification of a warped and twisted sentimentality.

"Moreover, and above all, let us remember that words count only when they give expression to deeds or are to be translated into them. The leaders of the Red Terror prattled of peace while they steeped their hands in the blood of the innocent; and many a tyrant has called it peace when he has scourged honest protest into silence. Our words must be judged by our deeds; and in striving for a lofty ideal we must use practical methods; and if we cannot attain all at one leap, we must advance toward it step by step, reasonably content so long as we do actually make some progress in the right direction.

"Now, having freely admitted the limitations to our work, and the qualifications to be borne in mind, I feel that I have the right to have my words taken seriously when I point out where, in my judgment, great advance can be made in the cause of international peace. I speak as a practical man, and whatever I now advocate I actually tried to do when I was for the time being the head of a great nation, and keenly jealous of its honor and interest. I ask other nations to do only what I should be glad to see my own nation do.

"The advance can be made along several lines. First of all there can be treaties of arbitration. There are, of course, States so backward that a civilized community ought not to enter into an arbitration treaty with them, at least until we have gone much further than at present in securing some kind of international police action. But all really civilized communities should have effective arbitration treaties among themselves. I believe that these treaties can cover almost all questions liable to arise between such nations, if they are drawn with the explicit agreement that each contracting party will respect the other's territory and its absolute sovereignty within that territory, and the equally explicit agreement that (aside from the very rare cases where the nation's honor is vitally concerned) all other possible subjects of controversy will be submitted to arbitration. Such a treaty would insure peace unless one party deliberately violated it.

"Of course, as yet there is no adequate safeguard against such deliberate violation, but the establishment of a sufficient number of these treaties would go a long way toward creating a world opinion which would finally find expression in the provision of methods to forbid or punish any such violation.

"Secondly, there is the further development of The Hague Tribunal, of the work of the conferences and courts at The Hague. It has been well said that the first Hague Conference framed a Magna Charta for the nations; it set before us an ideal which has already to some extent been realized, and toward the full realization of which we can all steadily strive. The second Conference made further progress; the third should do yet more. Meanwhile the American Government has more than once tentatively suggested methods for completing the Court of Arbitral Justice, constituted at the second Hague Conference, and for rendering it effective.

"It is earnestly to be hoped that the various Governments of Europe, working with those of America and of Asia, shall set themselves seriously to the task of devising some method which shall accomplish this result. If I may venture the suggestion, it would be well for the statesmen of the world, in planning for the erection of this world court, to study what has been done in the United States by the Supreme Court. I cannot help thinking that the Constitution of the United States, notably in the establishment of the Supreme Court and in the methods adopted for securing peace and good relations among and between the different States, offers certain valuable analogies to what should be striven for in order to secure through The Hague courts and conferences a species of world federation for international peace and justice.

"There are, of course, fundamental differences between what the United States Constitution does and what we should even attempt at this time to secure at The Hague; but the methods adopted in the American Constitution to prevent hostilities between the States, and to secure the supremacy of the Federal Court in certain classes of cases, are well worth the study of those who seek at The Hague to obtain the same results on a world scale.

Wants Armaments Kept Down.

"In the third place something should be done as soon as possible to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments, by international agreement. No one power could or should act by itself; for it is eminently undesirable, from the standpoint of the peace of righteousness, that a power which really does believe in peace should place itself at the mercy of some rival which may at bottom have no such belief and no intention of acting on it. But, granted sincerity of purpose, the great powers of the world should find no insurmountable difficulty in reaching an agreement which would put an end to the present costly and growing extravagance of expenditure on naval armaments. An agreement merely to limit the size of ships would have been very useful a few years ago, and would still be of use; but the agreement should go much further.

"Finally, it would be a master stroke if those great powers honestly bent on peace would form a League of Peace, not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force if necessary, its being broken by others. The supreme difficulty in connection with developing the peace work of The Hague arises from the lack of any executive power, of any police power to enforce the decrees of the court. In any community of any size the authority of the courts rests upon actual or potential force; on the existence of a police, or on the knowledge that the able-bodied men of the country are both ready and willing to see that the decrees of judicial and legislative bodies are put into effect. In new and wild communities where there is violence, an honest man must protect himself; and until other means of securing his safety are devised, it is both foolish and wicked to persuade him to surrender his arms while the men who are dangerous to the community retain theirs. He should not renounce the right to protect himself by his own efforts until the community is so organized that it can effectively relieve the individual of the duty of putting down violence.

"So it is with nations. Each nation must keep well prepared to defend itself until the establishment of some form of international police power, competent and willing to prevent violence as between nations. As things are now, such power to command peace throughout the world could best be assured by some combination between those great nations which sincerely desire peace and have no thought themselves of committing aggressions.

"The combination might at first be only to secure peace within certain definite limits and certain definite conditions; but the ruler or statesman who should bring about such a combination would have earned his place in history for all time and his title to the gratitude of all mankind."

Tribute to Mr. Roosevelt.

The address was broken by abundant applause, in which the King joined. At its conclusion John Lund, Vice President of the Nobel Prize Committee, paid a tribute to the speaker and to the country from which he came. After referring to Norway's interest in America and American affairs, Mr. Lund said:

"But it is not Norway alone, but the entire civilized world which has reason to be grateful to the United States. Millions upon millions from Europe, poor and often downtrodden, but capable, have found in the New World that happiness and prosperity which the Old World was unable to afford them. In many ways the United States has reached the goal for which Europe is still sighing. There all peoples, all races, and all religions can unite peacefully in mutual industry under a common flag. Many ideals for which Europe has striven for more than a thousand years have been grasped by the youngest continent in the course of two or three hundred years."

Mr. Lund praised many features of the life of America, citing its industry, agricultural development, and school system, and dwelt upon the position of the American woman and the popular respect for the worker. Addressing Mr. Roosevelt, he said:

"Your journey through the Old World, Mr. Roosevelt, has been a triumphal procession. Everywhere fathers have taken pleasure and pride in bidding welcome to so worthy a representative of their sons yonder in the West." The speaker reviewed Mr. Roosevelt's activities on behalf of peace, referring especially to his share in the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan, and added:

"I have no doubt that the future will still afford you opportunities for adding to your splendid achievements. Long live Theodore Roosevelt!"

The Queen stood and joined the audience in giving nine short cheers for Mr. Roosevelt. The Colonel proposed three cheers for Norway and led the cheering, but the house broke away and gave nine, following the Norwegian custom. The audience then sang the Norwegian national anthem and dispersed.

The King and Queen received Mr. Roosevelt in the reception room outside the royal box and congratulated him warmly. On leaving the theatre the King, with Col. Roosevelt at his right, drove in one carriage to the palace, while the Queen and Mrs. Roosevelt occupied another.

This was a holiday in Christiania, and the people gathered on either side of the broad drive to the palace in such numbers that Mr. Roosevelt was moved to remark that he had not seen such immense crowds anywhere else in Europe on this trip.

The ex-President to-day gave the sculptor Vigland a forty-five-minute sitting for a statue, which his admirers in North Dakota intend to erect. Col. Roosevelt wrote to Representative Louis B. Hanna, who has the matter in hand, that he did not believe in putting up statues to living men, nor until a considerable time after they were dead, but, he added, if his friends were going to have a statue he thought it ought to be typical of his early days in North Dakota, either as a frontier farmer or a cowboy. The main thing was the right sort of picture—whether it were a likeness of him or not did not matter.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the explorer, paid a visit to Mr. Roosevelt to-day, and recalled the fact that he had told Mr. Roosevelt ten or twelve years ago that if any American discovered the north pole he would pick Peary as the man.

The municipality of Christiania to-night gave a dinner in honor of the ex-President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Ex-Minister of War Bratlie presided. Covers were laid for 350 guests. Mr. Loveland proposed the health of the King and President Taft. Mr. Bratlie recounted ex-President Roosevelt's services in the cause of peace.

In toasting the Storthing and the Nobel Prize Committee, Mr. Roosevelt reviewed at some length the policy of the United States, while he was President, regarding Cuba, Panama, the Philippines, and Santo Domingo, affirming that his acts toward those States and colonies had worked for true peace and order.

Premier Konow spoke of what the United States has done and is doing. American Minister Peirce eulogized Norway and the Norwegians.

In the lecture to-day Mr. Roosevelt's voice plainly showed the effect of the strain to which his vocal organs have been subjected by the daily speechmaking since March 1. To-day it failed him several times, and toward the close of his address, which was delivered with unusual emphasis, he had difficulty in making himself heard. This morning he consulted a throat specialist, who suggested a rest from speaking as the best remedy.

What Mr. Roosevelt said in his lecture constituted the bases of private conversations which he is having with the statesmen of Europe, as occasion arises, concerning the practical possibilities of collective action by the various Governments for the enforcement of universal peace.

ASSEMBLY REJECTS STATE INCOME TAX

Votes Down Resolution Indorsing It and Providing for Investigation of Its Feasibility.

PRIMARY BILL REPORTED

Meade-Phillips Measure to be Considered with Others Next Week—Senate Against "Third Degree."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 5.—The Assembly refused to-day to commit itself to the principle of an income tax for State purposes, or to sanction the appointment of a committee to investigate and report upon the feasibility of such a tax. The question came up when the Rules Committee reported a resolution providing for the appointment of an investigating committee. The resolution was rejected, 56 to 54, seventy-six votes being required to pass it.

When the resolution was before the House Mr. Parker of Washington County offered a substitute, which was a copy of a resolution on the same subject introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator Hamilton of Chautauqua. It declared that the Legislature was in favor of the principle of a State income tax, and provided also for the appointment of a committee to inquire into the question of caryingit into effect. Mr. Parker's substitute was lost by a vote of 60 to 52.

When Senator Hamilton introduced the resolution in the upper house it was referred to the Finance Committee. Senator Grady objected to its introduction as out of order yesterday, declaring that it was an effort to "befog the issue as to the Federal income tax," which thus far the Judiciary Committee had failed to consider.

When the Assembly Judiciary Committee reported the amended Meade-Phillips Primary bill to-day Assemblyman Bennett of New York attacked the report bitterly and objected to its receipt.

"What is the real purpose behind this?" he inquired. "I charge that if the Hinman-Green Direct Nominations bill, which I believe would pass this House if it is given a fair chance, should fail, this measure is not in such shape that it could possibly become a law at this session.

"The committee had this bill two months ago, and in the closing days of the session, it embodies some amendments that do not appear in the Meade bill. If the Senate passes the latter, does any one think for a moment that at this late date the measure now offered could become a law?"

Mr. Phillips defended the action of his committee, declaring that every member of the House would have an opportunity next week of voting on each of the three direct primary bills.

The report was finally accepted. In its present form the Meade-Phillips bill provides for an official primary ballot, the election at the primaries of party committeemen, and all delegates by the enrolled members of the party; for an enrollment throughout the State on registration day in places where personal registration is required and elsewhere on election day, with a provision that any elector who does not enroll on that day may do so the following May or June by filing with the custodian of primary records a signed statement declaring his party affiliations. It also provides for 150 State committeemen, one from each Assembly district.

In the Senate to-day Mr. Wainwright tried to amend the Parker bill affecting the powers of the Public Service Commissions by restoring the clause stricken out in the Assembly which would empower them to regulate commutation and mileage rates.

"I offer this amendment at the suggestion of several of the Public Service Commissioners," Senator Wainwright said. "The question of commutation rates is a most important one, especially in the county which I represent, where so many are obliged to use the railroads in going to and from work. I call attention to the fact that the New York, New Haven & Hartford road has just increased its commutation rates, and it is reported that the New York Central is about to make a similar increase. To us this is more important than the question of regular rates."

Senator Grady made the point that the amendment was proposed in the wrong order of business, and Senator Wainwright said he would move the amendment at another time.

Casualty insurance underwriters gained their point in the Senate to-day when the Insurance Department measure requiring standard provisions for accident and health policies was amended by making the opinion of the Superintendent of Insurance as to whether the companies' policies comply with the law subject to review by any court of competent jurisdiction on the petition of any company. It was declared that the clause inserted had been omitted from the bill at the suggestion of Gov. Hughes on the ground that the courts should not be called upon to determine administrative matters.

Supt. Hotchkiss said to-night that he could not say whether or not Gov. Hughes would veto the bill if it was sent to him with the amendment providing for a court review.

Several other insurance bills were ordered favorably reported to-night by the Senate Insurance Committee. One of these gives the Superintendent of Insurance power to weed out objectionable Lloyds companies. Another removes the $150,000,000 limit on the amount of new business life insurance companies may do in one year.

The Senate passed the Hubbs bill, designed to abolish the "third degree." One of the provisions of the measure prevents a confession made by a person under arrest being used against him unless made in the presence of his counsel.

The Senate passed Assemblyman Whitney's bill increasing from $600,000 to $1,000,000 the amount to be expended for the acquisition of Saratoga Mineral Springs for a State reservation.

Senator Hubbs succeeded to-day in amending the Merritt bill, which empowers a commission to select a site for a new State prison to take the place of Sing Sing, so that Long Island shall be excluded as a possible site for such an institution.

RAPID TRANSIT ACT CHANGED.

New Law Permits Moving Platform Subway Under Thirty-fourth Street.

The Public Service Commission considers of the greatest importance the bill amending the rapid transit law, which Gov. Hughes signed yesterday. It will permit the construction of the proposed experimental moving platform subway under Thirty-fourth Street and authorize the purchase of power by a rapid transit operating company, and it has other important provisions. Among the latter is a clause declaring that rapid transit easements shall not be considered encumbrances preventing the investment of trust funds in mortgages on the property concerned.

This difficulty is obviated by the new law.

GERMANS HEAR MOHAWK YELL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 5.—Otji Jatekha Brant Sero, a full-blooded Mohawk, lectured yesterday with great success before the Royal Saxon Geographical Society at Dresden on "The History and Character of the Mohawk Tribe." He spoke partly in English and partly in German.

Mr. Sero welcomed his audience, which included some prominent scientists, with a number of Mohawk yells. It is said to have been the first time a real American Indian ever addressed a European scientific body.

TSAI TAO SAILS AWAY TIRED BUT GRATEFUL

Chinese Prince and His Suite Start for Europe After Four Strenuous Days Here.

THEY ALL HAD A GOOD TIME

Uncle of Emperor Says He Is Amazed at Our Progress—Language Inadequate for American Women.

After four busy days of sightseeing and entertainment in New York Prince Tsai Tao, the young uncle of the Chinese Emperor, sailed yesterday for Europe on the North German Lloyd liner George Washington, accompanied by the officers of his suite. The Prince was escorted to the pier in Hoboken by Col. W. S. Schuyler, Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A., and the two Government detectives who joined the party at San Francisco.

The pier was gayly decorated with German and Chinese flags, and the imperial dragon of China floated from the main truck of the George Washington, with the German flag at the fore. Capt. Wettin, commander of the liner, was waiting in full dress uniform at the flag-draped gangway to greet the Prince when he stepped on board.

The "Emperor's suite," on the starboard side of the lower promenade deck, had been reserved for the Prince, and six other suites in various parts of the ship were reserved for his staff officers. The George Washington was crowded with passengers and their friends who had come to see them off.

The Prince was asked, through his interpreter, if he would give his farewell impressions of his trip through the United States. He said:

"I thank the American people for the many courtesies extended to us since our arrival at San Francisco, and I hope our visit here will promote the friendship already existing between the Chinese Empire and the United States. I hope the ties will become closer every day. Especially I thank the newspapers and the newspaper men for the way they have treated us. I admire the American newspapers for their freedom and because of their informality. I have been amazed at the progress of this land as compared with the Old World. The buildings of New York are wonderful."

When the Prince was asked to say something about the American women both he and the officers of his suite laughed, and Lord Li Ching Mai, son of Li Hung Chang, said: "The Prince would say that words cannot express his admiration for the American woman. He has already said much, which is nothing, for it is beyond language."

Among the gifts received by Prince Tsai Tao before sailing was an album containing photographs of the Prince taken on his travels in this country.

You would cheerfully pay a man $10,000 a year who could SAVE you $20,000 yearly and at the same time increase the facilities of your business. Here is a chance to have this done for you at a cost of ONE CENT.

¶ You would be very glad to employ and pay very highly a man who had made money or saved money, for, say, six concerns in your line of business. By sending us a postal with the word "HOW" and your address on it you can receive data, facts and figures which show just how we have saved money and made money for concerns in your line. These concerns were formerly situated exactly as you are NOW, and we can do for you just what we have done for them.

Saving Money:

The first saving is in insurance. Some concerns were paying $5.00 for insurance—we brought it down to 20c. Some were paying $3.00—we brought it down to 10c. We can make a corresponding saving for you. Want to know "HOW?" Write and ask us—cost one cent. Saving? Oh, only about $5,000 to $12,000.

A second saving is on cartage. Some concerns in your line had to truck incoming goods from the railroads to their lofts or factories. They had to load the truck, pay cost of moving the truck to their place of business, pay the cost of unloading. Then when the goods were resold or the raw material made up and reshipped they had to pay the cost of loading a truck, trucking the goods to the dock and the cost of unloading the truck. We cut off all this trucking cost at once—saved every penny of it. We did it for them; we can do it for you. Want to know "HOW?" Write and ask us—cost one cent. Saving? Oh, only about $5,000 to $10,000.

Third saving? Payroll—we can reduce it.

Fourth saving? Light.

Fifth? Power.

Yes, there are more, but we haven't room to tell them all here.

Making Money:

These concerns in your line say that through us they have been able to get a higher grade of labor at the same price. They say that they have increased output with a smaller payroll—that their operatives produce a higher quality of goods—that this in turn brings more orders—more business.

This is important for you to know about fully. Write and ask for the data. We would like to send it to you.

These concerns say that their shipments get on the car wheels—get going—quicker, that this reduces cancellation—that it prevents dissatisfactions—that it helps hold trade. They say it is worth many thousands yearly.

How much have you suffered from delay? From cancellations? Some of the concerns have piece workers who make $1 a week more now than formerly—because the conditions we provide are so much better. Salary payroll production is increased just as much—one-sixth, or 16%. Big, isn't it?

We can't begin to tell it all—or a half—or a quarter—here.

Write and ask us "HOW." We'll send you the facts and figures which will show you WHAT we can do for you and "HOW."

Write us NOW—it may save you $20,000

H. P. TOLER'S BODY FOUND IN THE RIVER

GAVE HIS ALL TO CHURCH

Wall Street Man, Once Prosperous, Lost His Reason After Breaking with Mrs. Stetson.

A letter from the secretary of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, head of the Christian Science Church, found in the clothing on the body taken from the East River at Sixtieth Street, led yesterday to its identification as that of Henry Pennington Toler, the former broker, who on Feb. 1 escaped from the Manhattan Hospital for the Insane on Blackwell's Island and committed suicide by jumping into the river. The identification was made in the Morgue by Hugh H. Toler, a broker, of 25 Broad Street, brother of the dead man.

The letter from Adam H. Dickey, secretary to Mrs. Eddy, was apparently written to Mr. Toler just before he was committed to the insane asylum and in the period in which he was striving to regain his reason.

Mr. Toler was at one time a student of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the ex-communicated leader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, but quarreled with her following the writing of a book in which Toler told of his plans to get control of a large part of Harlem which he thought he owned. After his break with Mrs. Stetson Toler wrote many letters to Mrs. Eddy. The one from her secretary was apparently in reply to one of Toler's. Although some of the words were obliterated by water the police were able to make out this:

> Dear Mr. Toler: Your letter to Mrs. Eddy has been received by me. Let me assure you in our leader's loving behalf * * * treasured up against you by reason of anything you have ever done or said. You do not know me personally, but my heart goes out to you in your present condition, and I will surely do all in my power to help you regain your health and strength.
> It is now your place to do everything you can that will assist you in getting well, instead of worrying about the past. Remember that evil is not power, and you are already free from any supposed power it may claim to have over you, because it is powerless * * * nothing.
> Be of good cheer: God is with you and will surely deliver you. Sincerely yours,
> ADAM H. DICKEY,
> Secretary to Mrs. Eddy.

Several years ago Henry Pennington Toler was a successful broker. He was a member of the firm of Toler & Higgins, and was reputed to be rich. It was while he was still a broker that Toler became interested in Christian Science. He soon became an ardent believer, and was for a while a member of the so-called "inner circle," over which Mrs. Stetson presided in the First Church of Christ. He was regarded as one of Mrs. Stetson's closest friends and allies.

Toler is said to have given some $50,000 to Mrs. Stetson and her church. When he had nothing more to give, Toler was not so popular in the "inner circle." He fell out with his partner in the brokerage business and quit the financial district. Toler also became estranged from his family because of Christian Science, so his friends said.

In the month preceding his stay in the insane asylum Toler was obsessed with the idea that some malign influence was being exerted against him. It was the influence which the Christian Scientists call "malicious animal magnetism."

BOSTON, May 5.—Alfred Farlow, Secretary of the Christian Science Publication Committee, when informed of the finding of the body of Henry Pennington Toler, said to-day:

"Mr. Toler had been mentally afflicted for a number of years. His trouble seems to date from the time when he was trying to work out his plan to recover that part of New York City which was formerly called New Harlem. He said he was one of the heirs of that property. I have been told that he spent a fortune on this plan and that the matter weighed heavily upon him.

"I had a long talk with Mr. Toler about two years ago, and I found that he had entirely departed from the teaching of Christian Science and was in great confusion, but I was not able to reason with him or convince him of the error of his hallucinations."

SURE SHE ENCOUNTERED M. A. M.

Miss Milmine Thinks X-Science Force Was Invoked Against Her Work.

Miss Georgine Milmine, who recently wrote a life story of Mary Baker G. Eddy and a history of Christian Science, which has proved very unpopular to Christian Scientists, says that the so-called "Malicious Animal Magnetism," which came to light in the investigation of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson by the Mother Church authorities in Boston, was exerted against her when she was gathering material for her publication.

Miss Milmine says that while she was gathering her data the Christian Scientists learned that many facts which were considered adverse to the sect had been obtained. She had difficulty, she says, in getting the information she wanted, and representatives of the Church, she says, sought to discredit her work and attempted a boycott.

"At about this time I met a Christian Scientist who had been very close in the councils of the New York First Church, but who had then withdrawn from active work," said Miss Milmine. "He informed me that at the daily conferences held in that church I was one of the subjects regularly submitted for 'adverse treatment.' I also received inquiries from other Christian Scientists and from mental scientists concerning my health, and offers to treat me for 'protection' against 'M. A. M.,' which they felt sure was being exercised against me. I still receive such offers from well-meaning healers. I was constantly warned against 'accident,' against 'lies put out to your injury,' and other forms of disaster. And I have received thinly veiled threats of more or less vague calamities and innumerable letters of indignation and protest."

CHILD WELFARE EXHIBIT.

Beginning with an exhibit of models showing the percentage of child deaths in New York, and ending with a moving-picture show in which the ability of flies to carry contagion was realistically portrayed, the General Committee in charge of the Child Welfare Exhibit, which is to be held at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory in November, gave a dinner at the Harvard Club last night. When the speeches began, George E. Ide, who presided, almost immediately introduced Dr. Walter L. Hervey, who said, in part:

"It is the intention of this committee to send all New York to school. It has laid out a curriculum. It has organized a Faculty. It has almost established an endowment fund. We propose to teach the people of New York how to take care of children. We propose to do this in a concentrated course of one month, but if anybody wants to take a post-graduate course after that it can be arranged.

"For a faculty we have obtained the co-operation of 186 people. Five hundred institutions are interested in the work. This includes schools, churches, settlements, and charities. At the Washington Irving High School the pupils are making ideal baby clothes for the exhibit. Dresses are being made at the Hebrew Training School. Hats are being made at Pratt Institute.

"Four hundred and ninety-five people are working for us altogether, and all of these, but thirteen, are giving their labor. We propose to bring together from all sides an exhibit which will show the way in which the childlife of the community can be in every way improved."

Prof. Seligman of Columbia University was the next speaker. He is Chairman of the Committee on Recreation and Amusements. He told how New York was ninth in a list of the ten largest cities of America in park space. He deplored the fact that the roofs of New York were not utilized to their full value. Then he read statistics about indoor amusements, and spoke of the bad character of amusements offered at the theatres and the bad ventilation in the many picture houses.

Then the moving pictures were exposed on a screen. They graphically told the story of how flies travel from tainted matter to babies' milk bottles and lumps of sugar. In the outer corridor one model showed that one child's funeral cost $50. Another one showed that a child died every fifteen minutes in New York.

SNUFF ROUTS FAIRBANKS

With More Than 100 Others at National Missionary Congress.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Former Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, Bishops of various denominations, ministers of the Gospel, and more than 100 delegates to the Men's National Missionary Congress, together with other guests, were routed from the lobby of the Congress Hotel last night when Oriental snuff was scattered by some one whom the house officers failed to find.

Shortly after Mr. Fairbanks entered the lobby the sneezing and coughing began. The lobby was deserted, and the guests did not return until the entire floor had received a thorough airing.

NOT GUILTY, SAID THE FREAK.

So "The Arkansas Turtle Boy" Replied When Asked If He Was Married.

"Not guilty," said George Williams, the "Arkansas Turtle Boy," a dime-museum freak, when Assistant Corporation Counsel J. G. Britt asked him:

"Are you married?"

Williams lost a $10,000 damage suit against the city for personal injuries yesterday in Justice Goff's part of the Supreme Court. He was pitched from his go-cart while being wheeled to a vaudeville engagement and alleged that the accident was due to a defect in the sidewalk.

The Lion Is Now Columbia's Mascot

The lion was adopted yesterday as the official mascot of Columbia by the Student Board. The king of beasts now takes rank with the Princeton tiger, the Yale bulldog, and the wolverine of Michigan, the latter all members of long standing in the college jungle. Some of the Columbia students preferred the eagle or the Harlem goat as the college mascot, but they didn't get their way.

ASK MAYOR TO CLEAR STREETS OF CHILDREN

Highways Protective Association Joins the Movement to Obtain Playgrounds for Them.

OLD SCHOOL LOTS AVAILABLE

Need of Measures to Clear the Streets Too Imminent to Await Legislative Action—Plans to Use Vacant Lots.

Mayor Gaynor will be appealed to in a few days to co-operate with a committee appointed yesterday by the National Highways Protective Association in a plan which the officials of the association believe will result in providing many additional playgrounds for children at practically no cost. The Mayor is to be asked to use his influence with the other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in getting the board to allow the poor children of the city to use most of the city's unoccupied lots as well as the plots of ground which were formerly occupied by public schools, but which have been closed owing to newer schools having been built near by.

A committee of five was appointed at a meeting of the National Highways Protective Association yesterday afternoon at 6 West Twenty-eighth Street. It was composed of Lorillard Spencer, Jr., who represents the automobile interests; A. K. Wing of the New York Transportation Company, Thomas D. Walsh of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Miss Leverich of the Public School Athletic League, and Miss Trenholm of the East Side Settlement House. Just before naming the committee Col. E. S. Cornell, Secretary of the National Highways Protective Association, said that he was sure that Mayor Gaynor was trying to do all in his power for the children of the city and that he had the interests of the poor at heart.

"Mayor Gaynor, I am sure, will be willing to co-operate with this organization and the other organizations represented on our various committees if he were appealed to and shown the chaotic conditions regarding the care and safeguards of the children which exist at present," said Col. Cornell. "Last month there were thirteen children killed in the streets here—stricken down, simply because they had no place to go except the street, where they could get a breath of fresh air. This committee which I am about to name can go to the Mayor with something specific. The committee can obtain maps showing the city's vacant lots. From the Board of Education it can obtain lists showing the school sites which have been abandoned for other public schools where the land could well be used as playgrounds for the poor children in the warm weather, with absolutely no expense to the city.

"While the subject of keeping the children off the streets is one which will probably have to be taken up seriously by the Legislature in the near future, the pressing need for some immediate step will not brook the necessary delay of a legislative act. Therefore, it seems advisable to request the Mayor to co-operate in obtaining for them the use of the city's property which is not at present occupied."

Many other ways of keeping the children off the streets this Summer were discussed at the meeting yesterday. The question of the feasibility of closing some of the city streets to traffic in certain hours of the day was referred to. W. H. Page of the Law Committee of the Automobile Club of America said that the closing of streets could not be brought about except by an amendment to the city charter, which would give either the Aldermen or the Board of Estimate power to close streets. He said that under the present charter the Aldermen could regulate, but not prohibit, traffic in the streets. Mr. Page suggested that the matter be brought to the attention of the revisors of the charter. He suggested that the National Highways Protective Association write to the committee of the Legislature which has the Charter Revision bill in hand.

Mr. Wing of the New York Transportation Company spoke of the proposal to turn vacant lots over to the children in the Summer. He said that many of the lot owners had brought up the question of their liability in case of accidents to the children or in the event of such makeshift playgrounds being declared nuisances. He said that one way around such an objection would be to prohibit any children more than eight years old playing in the lots and to have the patrolman held responsible for the safety of the children. Mr. Wing said that it had been proposed that the city should agree to indemnify the owners of the vacant lots in case of liability.

John C. Coleman of the West End Association said that he did not think the city charter would allow such an indemnity plan and suggested that the charter revisors be asked to consider such an amendment to the charter.

"If such a clause were enacted, I do not see how the city could object to being responsible for its own children," said Mr. Page of the Automobile Club of America.

Mr. Wakeman of the Children's Aid Society of Brooklyn told of the way in which Detroit, Mich., has solved the playground problem and offered to write to the Detroit authorities for specific information, which could be put before Mayor Gaynor by the committee.

Dr. Crampton of the Board of Education announced at the meeting that permission had just been obtained from the Department of Docks and Ferries to use the upper stories of the recreation piers for athletic fields for school boys. Dr. Crampton said that some 300 boys are now using the piers for athletics and that soon an arrangement would be made whereby girls would be allowed to exercize there.

Secretary Cornell announced yesterday that a plan was on foot whereby hundreds of boys were soon to be taken off the streets and sent into the country to advocate good roads. He said that under the European system, inaugurated by Baden-Powell, the National Highways Protective Association was arranging for the organization of troops of boys under the command of Col. Peter C. Bomus of the Ninth Cavalry, retired. By midsummer the plan will be in operation on a small scale. The boys, in addition to being drilled in a military way, will study the topography of the country and will work for good roads at all times.

COREY SAILS, OPTIMISTIC.

Steel Trust Head Thinks This Will Be a Prosperous Year.

William E. Corey, President of the United Steel Corporation, sailed for Europe yesterday on the George Washington, and expects to be away two months. Just before sailing he said:

"There is nothing in the business situation that would warrant pessimism. The underlying conditions of the country in general are sound, and with fair average crops the current year should be one of the most prosperous in its history.

"Recently," Mr. Corey went on to say, "there has been a satisfactory improvement in the steel business, and in view of the large unfilled tonnage on the books of the corporation, amounting approximately to 5,500,000 tons, with average orders the steel mills of the country should be kept active for the rest of the year. Prices for steel are holding firm, and from present indications we shall obtain average prices this year which will assure manufacturers a reasonable margin of profit."

EIGHT FOR LUSTIG JURY.

Prisoner Accused of Poisoning His Wife—Letter Led to His Arrest.

Eight men were chosen yesterday for the jury that is to try Maurice M. Lustig for the murder by poison of his wife, Rhoda, who died in their home at 14 East 116th Street on Oct. 28. The death was ascribed at that time to tubercular spinal meningitis, and Mrs. Lustig was buried in the family plot at Milroy, Penn.

It was an anonymous letter to the Coroner that led to the husband's arrest and indictment for murder.

Shortly before her death, Mrs. Lustig had surprised her husband in the company of another woman. In the preceding June he had insured her life with three policies amounting to $3,000, which he had tried unsuccessfully to increase the early part of October.

Assistant District Attorney Nott promises to show that late in October Lustig tried to purchase strychnine at two drug stores. He will call as a witness Dr. E. E. Smith, the toxicologist now in Kansas City attending the Swope trial.

WANT MURRAY'S IN OPERA CAFE ASSETS

Assignee Claims the Roman Gardens for the Benefit of Restaurant Creditors.

BELIEVES $800,000 MISSING

But the Proprietor Declares New Place Indebted to the Old—Exchanged His Stock.

John L. Murray, President of the United States Restaurant and Realty Company, owners of the ill-fated Café de l'Opéra, was examined yesterday in the Supreme Court before Justice Whitney. Attorney W. C. Rosenberg of 149 Broadway, representing the Hunter & Trinn Company, creditors of the restaurant, which recently assigned to Anton H. Meier, its Secretary, is making an attempt to have Murray's Roman Gardens in Forty-second Street included in the assets and placed in the hands of the assignee. Mr. Murray said last night that he did not believe this would be possible, because he regards himself and his personal restaurant venture as creditors of the Café de l'Opéra.

Under examination by Mr. Rosenberg Mr. Murray testified that the United States Restaurant and Realty Company was originally organized for $600,000, of which $550,000 was paid in. Subsequently the capital stock was increased to $1,100,000.

The most striking part of his testimony and that which proved the greatest surprise to those interested in the restaurant business about Times Square was that in October Mr. Murray, the sole owner of the $100,000 capital stock of Murray's, Incorporated, owners and operators of Murray's Roman Gardens, turned over this capital stock to the Standard Trust Company as trustee, to be held for the United States Restaurant and Realty Company. In return Mr. Murray said he had received $200,000 of the capital stock and $100,000 of the first mortgage bonds of the Café de l'Opéra enterprise.

It is on this testimony that Attorney Rosenberg hopes to force Murray's Roman Gardens into the hands of the assignee. On the other hand, Mr. Murray said he had taken legal steps to foreclose on his mortgage bonds and recover his stock of Murray's, Incorporated. He said he would continue as usual in the management of his Roman Gardens and that he did not see how these could be closed.

Attorney Rosenberg said that he had learned that while the Café de l'Opéra was in business the receipts were $300,000. About $130,000, he said, was turned over to the Phipps estate for construction expenses. He declared that his examination of the affairs of the United States Restaurant and Realty Company led him to believe that some $800,000 assets should be accounted for. This amount includes the $550,000 paid-up capital. One of the debts of the restaurant is $350,000 for furnishings supplied by Stern Brothers.

Mr. Murray's examination was ordered under the assignment act. Orders have been issued for the examination of Anton H. Meier, the assignee, Louis Stern of Stern Brothers, and Edward H. Cahill, Treasurer of the Café de l'Opéra. Mr. Murray refused yesterday to produce the receipt books of Murray's Roman Gardens, and Norbert Heinsheimer, his attorney, obtained an adjournment of his examination until Friday, May 13. Mr. Meier, the assignee, will be examined on Tuesday.

It is Mr. Rosenberg's contention that the mortgage bonds cover not only the Café de l'Opéra, but also Murray's Roman Gardens. This Mr. Murray emphatically denies, and the issue will be the subject of a bitter legal fight next week in the Supreme Court.

COTTON INQUIRY CENTRES ON PATTEN

Drag Net Laid with the Brokers Who Received Cotton on Bull Pool's May Contracts.

MANY SUBPOENAS SERVED

Those Summoned Are Ordered to Produce All Records of Transactions Going Back to November, 1909.

The Federal inquiry into the alleged conspiracy of the leaders in this season's bull campaign in cotton has been arranged to include James A. Patten. Two weeks ago practically all of the Stock Exchange and Cotton Exchange brokers who had been doing business for the spot cotton and other bear interests were summoned to give testimony in proceedings in which Frank B. Hayne and William P. Brown were made defendants. Wall Street was fairly flooded with subpoenas yesterday in a similar proceeding brought against James A. Patten and others.

Apparently every broker who received cotton last Monday on the May contracts of the bull pool has been cited to appear. The form of subpoena covers minutely, in printed form, practically every item of information which a broker could be supposed to have concerning the business of his principal. The date set for the taking of testimony is May 9, and there are indications that a drag net has been laid out.

The inference is plain from the names of the men summoned yesterday that the Federal authorities have waited for the termination of Cotton Exchange contracts for the May option to learn the identity of those who have been acting for the bull leaders. These contracts on which 173,900 bales were tendered on notices issued by the deliverers of cotton on April 30, are practically the only definite source of information as to the final recipients of the cotton sold by the bear interests. Where the Federal authorities got these names from remains a question, but the associates of the bull leaders regard the Government's possession of the information as a further confirmation of the charges made when the proceedings against Hayne & Brown were started that the cotton bears were urging the Government on.

The firms which issued notices of delivery of May cotton, most of whom represent the McFadden bear interests, and the number of bales tendered by them were:

	Bales.
Shearson, Hammill & Co.	11,400
Hayden, Stone & Co.	28,900
Craig & Jenks	100,500
George H. McFadden & Brother	16,400
S. Gruner & Co.	12,000
Siedenburg & Co.	500
H. Mohr & Co.	300
Tolar, Hart & Co.	100

The text of the subpoena, after reciting the usual form of command that the witness "attend before the Grand Inquest of the Body of the People of the United States of America," in which James A. Patten and others are defendants, requires each witness to bring with him all records, books, papers, telegrams, cablegrams, contracts, agreements, notices, and memoranda, or copies thereof, including authorizations and directions to purchase and sell raw cotton relating to and showing as follows:

"First, the aggregate number of bales in the legal possession of —, the broker, or their agents, at the close of business on the thirtieth day of November, 1909, for the account of C. W. Johnson, Charlotte, N. C.," or any firm, copartnership, corporation, syndicate, pool, or association of which he is a member, officer, or Director, or which has acted as agent for Johnston.

Johnston is a large cotton factor of Charlotte, and it is presumed that he has been acting for the Southern mills who are charged in the proceedings against Hayne and Brown with having made an agreement with a bull pool to hold cotton delivered to them until the close of this season.

The fixing of the date on Nov. 30 is taken as an indication that the agreement with the mills began about that time, although the agreement named in the original proceedings is spoken of as of the date of Fe' 24.

The subpoena goes on to recite half a dozen other specific items of information to be furnished by the witnesses. These include "the aggregate number of bales of spot cotton bought and the date and number of bales of each day's purchases" by the brokers or their agents since the close of business on Nov. 30, 1909, for Johnston's account or any account in which he is interested. The third item calls for the aggregate number of bales bought to be received on contracts for future delivery in New York City during the months from December, 1909, through to August, 1910, the end of the present cotton season.

The next demand is for the aggregate number of bales of cotton bought on contracts covering the same months, specifying the number of bales of spot cotton sold, but not delivered, at the close of business on Nov. 30; the spot cotton sold and delivered, and the date and number of bales of each day's sales and deliveries since the close of business on Nov. 30; the aggregate number of bales of spot cotton in the legal possession of the brokers or their agents since the close of business or which has been shipped or disposed of by them by any other means than sale and delivery, and the date and number of bales in each of such shipments, consignments, transfers, or dispositions by other means than sale and delivery; the bales of spot cotton sold but not delivered on April 30, and, finally, the bales of cotton on future contracts sold to be delivered on Nov 30, or during any of the months up to August, 1910.

In addition, the subpoena demands information of the date and amount of every payment made in any form to or by the brokers or their agents for the account of Johnson, and all vouchers, receipts, canceled checks, and other negotiable instruments evidencing business done for the account of Johnston since Nov. 30, 1909.

SHOT HERSELF IN A HOTEL.

Girl Stenographer Puts a Bullet in Her Side at the Knickerbocker.

Miss Cannon, floor clerk on the eighth floor of the Hotel Knickerbocker, heard the reports of two revolver shots yesterday morning as she passed the room occupied by a young woman who had registered at 1 o'clock on Wednesday as Mrs. John W. Snow of Savannah, Ga.

The clerk called Assistant Manager Stack, who opened the door and found the young woman in bed with a revolver beside her. One bullet had missed its mark, but the second entered the young woman's side, and Dr. I. L. Hill, the house surgeon, removed it from under her fifth rib.

As the doctor worked over her the young woman, who was conscious, said that she had written to her brother, an ex-Princeton baseball player, now employed in this city, asking him to call at the hotel at 9 o'clock to prevent her body being taken to the Morgue. The young man did not appear, but at the New York Hospital, whither the young woman was hurried, a woman, who said she was Mrs. Reinsilier of 497 Park Place, Brooklyn, called to see the victim of the shooting.

Mrs. Reinsilier said at once that the girl was Miss Estelle Ryder, daughter of Charles Ryder, a well-to-do farmer of Ossining, N. Y. Mrs. Reinsilier said that Miss Ryder had been living with her for two weeks, and was employed in Manhattan as a stenographer. Her mother is dead, said Mrs. Reinsilier.

With Mrs. Reinsilier were two young girls, who declined to give their names, but the hospital authorities gained the impression that one of them was related to the wounded girl. Mrs. Reinsilier said that Miss Ryder had no love affair, and that she attributed her attempt at suicide to worry over the health of her father and her grandmother, of whom she was very fond.

BROKER EXPLAINS KNABE LOAN

Accounts for Uncertain Disposition of $1,150 by Saying He Got It.

Walter A. Mason, the broker employed by the Knabe Brothers in negotiating with the Metropolitan Trust Company in August, 1908, the loan of $115,000, secured by a surety bond of the Empire Surety Company of Baltimore, made a statement last night in which he removed the uncertainty previously existing as to the disposition of $1,150 deducted from the commission paid on this loan to the Metropolitan Trust Company.

In evidence taken by State Insurance Superintendent Hotchkiss it appeared that over and above the 6 per cent. interest charged by the trust company on this loan $6,900 was deducted from the proceeds of the loan and placed in Mason's hands after the principal of the loan had been paid over to the Knabes.

This $6,900 was collected by Mason in cas hat the Metropolitan Trust Company, and he testified before Supt. Hotchkiss that he had placed a large part or all of this money in an envelope which he left on the desk of Vice President Chew of the trust company, who had negotiated the loan on behalf of that institution. The books of the trust company showed a credit in commission account of only $5,750, which left the sum of $1,150 being 1 per cent. on the face of the loan unaccounted for as between Mason and Vice President Chew.

Mason's statement last night contained this explanation:

"About the mysterious 1 per cent.: There is no mystery at all. I got it. I was the broker in this case, and it was so stated in the signed articles by the Messrs. Knabe now in my possession. My contract with them, dating back two years, contemplated such commisions. I don't know what anybody else is going to do about it."

The testimony taken before Supt. Hotchkiss shows that the Superintendent made an effort to get from Mason an exact statement of the amount of money in the envelope which he placed on the desk of Vice President Chew. Mason at that time said that he did not remember the exact amount and that there might have been some adjustment of interest. He made no mention of his contract with the Messrs. Knabe.

COMET SEEN FROM FERRIES.

Halley's comet, poised above the city in the eastern sky, was seen by all who looked up from the harbor in the lower bay before dawn yesterday morning.

It was at its brightest soon after 3 o'clock. Ferrymen and their regular owl travelers, who have been watching for it for weeks, and some of whom think they have descried it before, found it larger than they had expected, but less brilliant.

The tail, sweeping away to the southeast, could be plainly traced for from three to four times the apparent breadth between the horns of the fast waning moon which hung below and to the southward about on a level with Venus, the comet's closest neighbor.

Mackerel clouds veiled the display soon before 4 o'clock, but until nearly a quarter past or until the dawn was well advanced the pale outline of the visitor could be traced, like a streamer from the Milky Way.

Capt. Stephen Tinsler of the Jersey Central Railroad ferryboat Plainfield spied the comet rising above the Singer tower as the boat was lying in her slip at Communipaw before starting on her 3:15 o'clock trip to this city. Pilot Smith carried the word to the main deck, and the market gardeners, teamsters, and a few belated train travelers all crowded to the forward gates and had the best view.

The Plainfield on her 4 o'clock trip to Jersey connects with the first daylight train for many points. Her passengers saw the comet less distinctly over the vessel's wake, but when they looked back for it from the windows of the trains speeding across the salt meadows the clouds had gone, but the comet itself was lost in the sunrise glow and smoke haze of the city.

MAGAZINE BANKRUPTCY SUIT.

Creditors File a Petition Against the Van Norden Publishers.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Eastern Publishing Company of 12 West Twenty-third Street, which published the Van Norden Magazine, by Charles D. Ridgway, attorney for these creditors: Perkins, Goodwin & Co., $4,126, for paper; Raisbeck Electrotype Company, $230, and James W. Hoey, $4.

It was alleged that while insolvent the company on March 2 transferred to Henry Ernest Smith, a creditor, all its property and office furniture by giving him a chattel mortgage for $831, and the company sold the subscription list of the magazine and used the proceeds to pay an execution which had been entered against it. In March the President of the company called a meeting of creditors, informed them that the company was unable to pay its debts, and asked them to accept a compromise at 25 cents on the dollar. A committee of creditors examined the books in April, and the only tangible assets they found were uncollectible accounts, $4,000 for advertising in the magazine, and the only other assets are unpaid subscriptions of about $50,000 for capital stock in the company.

The company was incorporated on Jan. 17, 1906, with a capital stock of $500, which was afterward increased to $200,000, to publish the Van Norden Magazine, and it was generally understood that the money to finance the company was furnished by Warner Van Norden. Allen Francis Walker was President, and George Sprague, Jr., Treasurer. The magazine suspended publication with the March number.

OFFER SETTLEMENT TO HOCKING LOSERS

Pending Negotiations Fiske & Co. Bankruptcy Hearings Are Stopped.

PROPOSAL TO LATHROP FIRM

Trustee Hotchkiss Not Eager to Accept Terms, and Proposes to Make the Pool Crowd Show Their Profits.

Negotiations looking to a settlement of the affairs of the Stock Exchange firm of J. M. Fiske & Co., which went down with the bursting of the Hocking bubble, were stated to be the cause of the indefinite postponement yesterday of the bankruptcy hearings before United States Commissioner Alexander. But further statements from Ralph Wolf of 115 Broadway, counsel for Irving L. Ernst, receiver for J. M. Fiske & Co., and Henry D. Hotchkiss, 165 Broadway, Trustee for Lathrop, Haskins & Co., another firm which the collapse of the Hocking pool sent to the wall, indicated that a final agreement was not as near as some seemed to think.

Commissioner Alexander was as much surprised as any one else that the hearings before him had been discontinued. He appeared at first to think that he had been treated with scant respect in not having been notified. The hearing had been set for 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in his office in the Post Office Building, and he was at his desk promptly. But no one appeared, and when the reporters asked him if the hearing was to take place, he replied: "I suppose so: if it has been postponed they have not so much as called me on the 'phone about it."

When some one suggested that an explanation was due him, he said: "They are New York lawyers; there's a whole volume of explanation in that." He then called Mr. Wolf on the telephone, and later told the reporters the hearings were off for good, as Mr. Wolf said a settlement was likely.

When seen at his office Mr. Wolf at first expressed the opinion that prospects for an agreement satisfactory to the Fiske & Co. creditors were bright. He admitted that offers of money with which to pay the creditors had come to him, but declined to name the sources.

"All I can say," he declared, "is that I have received offers looking to a settlement, and I have not bothered to find out where the money was to come from. Money does not bear ear marks. The only thing that I have insisted on is the size of the check and its proper certification."

Asked for a statement on the progress of the negotiations, Mr. Wolf said:

"At present I am acting simply as a messenger boy, transmitting the offers I have received to Henry D. Hotchkiss, trustee for the creditors of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., and it is up to him whether or not a settlement is effected."

It is the general understanding that whoever is willing to put up the money refuses to do so unless an agreement to include all the creditors is reached, so that one settlement will clear up the matter finally, with no aftermath of threatened suits.

Mr. Wolf said that if no settlement took place there would be some interesting developments at the examination under the trusteeship before Referee Seaman Miller, 2 Rector Street, on May 13. He said he expected to subpoena the Mechanics' National Bank and the National City Bank for that hearing. As a whole, he thought that hearing would be extremely interesting.

But Mr. Hotchkiss later denied emphatically that any settlement was "up to him," saying that Mr. Wolf knew it wasn't when he said it. "I have declined all offers of settlement, which Mr. Wolf knows."

Then Mr. Hotchkiss said with great deliberation:

"Offers looking to a settlement have been made to me and declined. I refuse to buy a pig in a poke. I said to those here yesterday that I would not accept settlement until I knew what profits had been made, and they could not treat with me until they opened their books for my inspection."

The inference was that when Popper & Sternbach sold the Hocking stock held in Keene's name on a speculative account, at the top of the market, when it had presumably been bought at a low figure before the pool was formed, some one cleaned up a snug sum. Mr. Hotchkiss, therefore, refuses to talk about settlement at a specific sum until he knows, for the benefit of the creditors he represents, what those now apparently willing to settle got out of the transaction.

Creditors of Fiske & Co. met yesterday morning in the office of Referee Miller for the purpose of electing trustees. They elected Irving L. Ernst, who has been receiver for the firm; Lindsay Russell, 165 Broadway, and Harford T. Marshall, 34 Nassau Street, joint trustees to act for them. The bond was fixed at $50,000, it being stated that the cash assets in the hands of the receiver were $75,000.

YALE MEN WELL DEVELOPED.

Physique Excels That of College Men or Volunteers of 1864.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, May 5.—Statistics of Yale students just compiled by Dr. Frank Born, medical examiner of the university, show that the young men of to-day are physically far better developed than those of former years.

His table comparing the Yale senior of 1910 with 291 Yale and Harvard seniors measured by Dr. B. A. Gould in 1864 shows in every case a gain in physique for the present Yale seniors. The tables are given in The Yale Alumni Weekly, as follows:

	1910.	1864.	Difference. Plus.
Age, years	22.2	21.7	.4
Height, inches	68.1	68.09	.01
Weight, pounds	152.3	136.1	16.2
Girth, chest, normal, inches	36.9	35.3	1.6
Girth, chest, inspiration, in.	38.7	36.7	2.00
Girth, chest, expiration, in.	35.3	33.7	1.6

"For an explanation of the difference," says Dr. Born, "we have recourse to two great facts, namely, the increased facilities for exercising and physical development and the increasing number of students who are availing themselves of these privileges. A study of these figures not only demonstrates that there has been an increase in the growth power of the students, but also corroborates the assertion that the youth of the present day are better developed physically than those of past generations."

Dr. Born's table shows the better physical condition of the college student of to-day than that of the civil war volunteers not college men.

Dr. Born finds that 83 per cent. of the present senior class are taking part in some exercise, divided as follows: Football, 10 per cent.; baseball, 6 per cent.; crew, 14 per cent.; track athletics, 8 per cent.; outdoor games, as tennis, 26 per cent.; gymnasium, 24 per cent.

KATE BENDER DEAD.

Friend of Woman Says She Belonged to Family of Murderers.

RIO VISTA, Cal., May 5.—Kate Bender of the notorious family of Kansas murderers is dead here, according to a statement made to-day by John Collins, a resident of this place.

The woman, who was known as Mrs. Gavin, and later as Mrs. Peters, was found dead in a resort she conducted. Collins, who was her friend, said she revealed her identity to him several years ago, exacting a promise that he should not tell anybody until after her death. The woman apparently died from natural causes, and had been dead several days when her body was found.

Collins declares that she gave him a detailed account of many murders which she and her brothers committed in the Bender home at Cherryvale, Kan., in the seventies.

Miss Blackstone's Slayer Indicted.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 5.—Bertram G. Spencer, the self-confessed masked burglar, who killed Miss Martha B. Blackstone when he attempted to rob a house on March 31, was indicted for murder to-day.

BOOTBLACK TRIED SOME HIGH FINANCE

A TRICK ON THE BUYER

Despite His Agreement He Set Up in Business Close by and Got His Old Patrons.

High finance as applied to the bootblack business received a setback yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Whitney took cognizance of a contempt of court committed by Matteo Devenuto. He offended the court by plying the dauber and polishing brush at the southwest corner of Fifty-third Street and Eighth Avenue—and demonstrated that there is an humble way of committing the high-sounding crime of contumacy—even the performance of "humble, necessary toil," as his attorney phrased it.

According to the testimony Devenuto sold his business at Fifty-third Street and Eighth Avenue to Antonio Setteducati for $425. One of the articles of agreement was that the seller was not to set up in the bootblack trade within six blocks of his old stand.

A week later found him with two brand new chairs on the opposite corner, just across Eighth Avenue from his old place, calling out and luring his old customers to him. Setteducati rushed across the street for an explanation. Between passes with his whisk broom his rival explained that he was not in business.

"I have given up my license. I don't keep this stand; I work for Giuseppe Le Bosco. I get $10 the week. I must work. I have six little bambinos at home."

But Setteducati complained all day long as he saw the customers on whom he had counted when he gave up his $425 crossing the street. His tale of woe led a lone customer to advise him to consult a lawyer, which he did. He obtained an injunction against Devenuto's plying the bootblack trade within the agreed limit, but Devenuto disregarded it. He even got a second license in the name of the saloon keeper outside whose place he had his chairs. This was too much for his rival, who went to court to get him punished for contempt.

Devenuto was fined $50 for contempt of court.

The RAMRODDERS

The Big New Novel

By HOLMAN DAY
Author of "King Spruce"

AT last comes a political novel that tells an exciting story. The spirit of youth—in love and in affairs—is bound up in the life struggle of the "easy" boss—the kind who casually looks on at a "perfectly managed" election. This big novel is remarkable also for its humor. Not in years has there been a character to equal Thellismer Theraton in pointed, quaint, incisive sayings. He is a Maine type pictured full-length in this novel, and his philosophy will be quoted from Bangor to San Francisco. "There are some things in politics that have to be done as gentle and careful as picking a rose petal off a school ma'am's shoulder." With Frontispiece. Post 8vo. Cloth $1.50

MEXICAN RAILWAYS LISTED IN PARIS

MORE NOTES TAKEN ABROAD

Baltimore & Ohio Decides to Put Out $50,000,000 and Foreign Investors Will Take Much of It.

Further evidence of the foreign interest in American investments was supplied yesterday in that a new issue of Baltimore & Ohio notes, amounting to $40,000,000, which was arranged by the Directors will be placed in large part abroad, and in the announcement of the listing of the second preferred stock of the National Railways of Mexico on the Paris Bourse. The negotiations for the sale of $50,000,000 St. Paul bonds in Paris had progressed yesterday to a point which permitted William Rockefeller, one of the Directors of the road, to say that the transaction had been practically closed. Negotiations for other issues were said to be under way.

The Baltimore & Ohio note issue became known following a special meeting of the Directors yesterday afternoon. The recent issue of one-year notes by the Baltimore & Ohio was taken jointly by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Speyer & Co., and the understanding in the financial district yesterday was that these bankers will float the note issue now contemplated.

A large part of the proceeds will be used by the Baltimore & Ohio for the purchase of additional equipment, which Daniel Willard, the newly elected President of the Baltimore & Ohio, is understood to have personally recommended.

The reason for the placing of notes instead of bonds was that the management of the road was convinced that better terms could be had for bonds later than could be had now. It was the Harriman policy to resort to permanent financing only when conditions in the investment market were favorable, and this same policy is now being followed by the Baltimore & Ohio, in which the influence of the Harriman party is very strong. The major portion of the notes will be placed in this country, but foreign banking interests will participate in the flotation to an important extent.

Special interest attached to the announcement of the listing in Paris of the second preferred stock of the National Railways of Mexico for the reason that this is the first time that a stock listed on the New York Stock Exchange has ever been admitted to the Parquet or regular list of the Paris Bourse. The negotiations were directed by Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., who with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co., Hallgarten & Co., and other bankers were readjustment managers of the Mexican Railways. The interesting fact was made known yesterday that during the negotiations friendly representations in behalf of the listing were made to the French Government by the Mexican Government, which is directly interested in the National Railways of Mexico.

The belief is advanced by bankers that the listing of the Mexican stock will prove a wedge for the admission of American stocks to the official list of the Bourse. Several American stocks are now traded in in Paris, but they are in the Coulisse, which is equivalent to the former unlisted department of the New York Stock Exchange. Moreover, they are not traded in directly, but in the form of certificates issued against the stocks, whereas the stock of the National Railways of Mexico will be traded in directly. It is understood that about 50,000 shares of this stock have been forwarded to Paris in one-share certificates with a view to meeting the requirements of the individual small investor in France.

The pending issue of Big Four bonds, it was learned yesterday, will considerably exceed the $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 mentioned on Wednesday. It may amount to $20,000,000 or more. The New York Central's bankers were still non-committal yesterday as well as regards reports of other New York Central financing, including a reported issue of bonds by the New York Central itself in addition to the New York Central lines equipment trust bonds lately authorized.

Reports recurrent that the Harriman lines were placing a large issue of bonds were said to be based on the fact, not made known until yesterday, that the Southern Pacific, some weeks ago, sold $7,000,000 of refunding bonds to Kuhn Loeb & Co. and that the Union Pacific sold to the same bankers $[illegible],000,000 of its refunding bonds. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas's proposed bond issue will probably take the form of a newly authorized mortgage issue. The amount mentioned is $10,000,000, and it is again said that the bonds will likely be placed abroad.

BANK'S FIRST DIVIDEND.

Mechanics and Metals National Pays 3 Per Cent. for the Quarter.

The first dividend on the stock of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank since it was formed early in the year by the amalgamation of the Mechanics' National Bank and the National Copper Bank has been declared. It is 3 per cent. for the quarter and is payable May 10 to stockholders of record May 6.

The Mechanics' National Bank, which was one of the oldest banks in New York, was established in 1810. The National Copper Bank was one of the newer institutions on Wall Street, but had shown phenominally rapid development. Previous to its merger with the Mechanics' Natonal Bank ts captal was ncreased from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, and ts surplus was raised to $3,000,000 by the issuance of $1,000,000 of stock at 200.

hTe Mechanics' National Bank declared a special cash dividend for the purpose of equalizing the surpluses of the two institutions and took over the National Copper Bank through the issuance of $3,000,000 additional stock.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—There was less excitement in stock quotations on the local Stock Exchange to-day than in the two previous sessions. Lehigh Valley improved a fraction during the morning, and closed strong at 117. The traction stocks were firm. Philadelphia Electric and United Gas Improvement also hardened, the latter extending yesterday's advance to 84¾. Lake Superior rallied a point, to 22. Pennsylvania Steel warrants recovered above 7, and Cambria Steel was also in demand. The Tonopahs were quiet and firm. Vague rumors are floating about the Street predicting that something of an exceedingly encouraging nature is likely to be announced concerning the Tonopah Mining Company within a short time.

DROPS PLAN FOR WHEELING.

Bankers Leave Reorganizing Task to Wabash Terminal Committee.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Blair & Co., who as bankers for the Wheeling & Lake Erie had been working on a plan for the joint reorganization of the property and of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway, have given up the idea of a joint reorganization and decided to leave the task to the committees representing the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal bondholders. This authoritative announcement was made yesterday:

"The bankers in charge of the Wheeling & Lake Erie reorganization, who have been considering in connection therewith reorganization of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway Company, have decided to leave the latter task to the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal bondholders' committees.

"It was found that the cash requirements for the rehabilitation of the latter property were so considerable, and the situation generally involved so many complications, that a proper basis for the new capital required and a reasonable representation in any new scheme of the securities already outstanding could not be created with satisfaction to all interests concerned."

REWARDING INSURANCE MERIT.

The insurance business of this State is suffering more than is indicated by the striking figures which we discussed the other day. The Insurance Press remarks that the decrease of premiums on new business in 1909 of over $5,000,000 was in addition to a decrease the previous year. On the other hand, the increase in premiums by companies of other States of over $4,000,000 followed a decrease in 1908. The suggestion is first that the loss of the New York companies was the gain of the companies of other States, and second that the gain of the companies of other States was less due to their merits than to the embarrassment of the New York companies, due to the operation of the law limiting their business.

The motive of that law was as far as possible from ill-will toward the home companies. It was desire for their good, not malevolence, which limited their expenses in securing new business and which placed an absolute limit on their business regardless of the expense at which it was secured. In all business there is a limit at which the expense of enlargement is greater than the profit from it. It was thought that this limit had been reached in the insurance business, and it was felt that the business as it had been conducted was a menace to itself and to the community. The limit upon expense and upon excessive growth was imposed from regard for the interests of both the companies and the public, and was sustained by public opinion.

The limitations have done their work of reform, and it is time to consider when and how they may be relaxed without causing recurrence of the undesirable conditions. It is no part of insurance reform to stimulate the business of the competitors of home companies and to encourage citizens of New York to seek insurance in inferior or foreign companies. The time and manner of relaxing these safeguards are matters for consideration on which first thoughts may not be the best. A bill is offered this week in the Senate allowing relaxation in the limitations proportioned to the companies' business. Just as some public utilities are allowed to advance their dividends proportionately to the reduction of prices to the community, so it is proposed to allow the insurance companies to increase their business proportionately to the economies of their administration.

There would be no hope for the bill against the disapproval of the Governor, and on the other hand those who may be in doubt regarding the merits would have their doubts removed by the Governor's approval. If he were able to approve such a bill in his term of Governor it would go far to heal old wounds and to strengthen the impression that as a public man his conduct and his judgment are broad enough in conception to alter with conditions.

A FRESH PENSION "RAID."

We are glad that CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Colonel and Brevet Brigadier General of United States Volunteers, has raised his voice against the passage of the bill, now favorably reported to the House, to create a Civil War volunteer officers' "retired" list, with pay ranging from $400 to $2,400 yearly. According to the estimate of the Secretary of the Interior, this fresh raid on the Federal Treasury will cost $8,000,000 yearly, to be added to the millions upon millions in the ever-growing account on the Nation's pension rolls.

Mr. ADAMS speaks with authority. His was a brilliant record in the severest engagements of the civil war. He entered in 1861 as Lieutenant and was mustered out at its close with his present rank. In a letter addressed May 2 to Col. THOMAS L. LIVERMORE of Boston, Mr. ADAMS points out that the volunteer officers of the civil war did not go into the Army as a life occupation; they are not, therefore, on the same footing with those who have devoted their lives to military service, denying themselves the chances of betterment which civil life after the war so freely offered. It is not right, he stoutly affirms, that volunteers who held commissions ninety days, and performed any service whatever in this limited time, should now be "retired" on pay. He says:

> It is asked that an officer who, nearly half a century ago, enjoyed a Summer picnic at the expense of the United States Government, never, perhaps, having heard a hostile shot and having derived only advantage, physical, financial, and moral, from his youthful junket, is now to be retired if he so elects, and receive a liberal pension for the rest of his life as if he had been in the service during the whole intervening period, or until he arrived at the age of retirement.
> * * * Our pension laws, public and private, have by repeated amendments been made more liberal than any pension system ever previously enacted by any Government—so liberal, indeed, as to be a scandal.

Small wonder Mr. ADAMS characterizes the proposal that the ex-officers of volunteers should lend themselves to the extension of this pernicious system as an insult to their self-respect, and as an indication that those who make it display a "lack of that sense of patriotism and public spirit which caused us as younger men to go into the service."

"MEDDLESOME MATTIE."

When Mr. ROOSEVELT lately announced that he would never be "an international Meddlesome Mattie," he set the sages agog. He has a way of bestowing new fame on creatures of fiction by mentioning them in his discourses, but generally they are easily identified. Aunt Jane of Kentucky was soon found between book covers after his vitalizing touch had made her fame countrywide. But to many who esteemed themselves well read and familiar alike with folk tales and sophisticated fiction, Meddlesome Mattie was quite unknown.

"Matty," the cable dispatches spelled the name, and "Matty," to be sure, is known and honored wherever the National game stirs the heart of the populace. But Mr. MATHEWSON, though he is troublesome enough to the batters of opposing teams, is not in the least meddlesome. Moreover, Col. ROOSEVELT could never have spoken disparagingly of such physical prowess as MATTY'S.

The invaluable Bartlett, the Century Dictionary of Names, and all the extant lists of "Famous Personages of Fiction" were examined to no avail, and American scholarship was in despair until a small girl informed a reporter of The World that Meddlesome Mattie is in McGuffey's Reader. Matilda she was christened, and her likeness illustrates the versified tale of the woes her meddlesome habits brought upon her. As a work of reference McGuffey's Reader takes on a new importance. New editions of Bartlett and the various dictionaries will not neglect Meddlesome Mattie. Though he refuses to become an international Meddlesome Mattie, Mr. ROOSEVELT has established Meddlesome Mattie as a personage of international repute.

STATE-WIDE CITY PLANNING.

After several years spent in manifold and often ingenious efforts to arouse a reluctant public interest in the extremely important but somewhat dry subject of the congestion of population and its remedy in wisely planned distribution of population the Committee on Congestion considers the time ripe for definite steps toward the sane end desired.

The movement is to become State-wide, all the larger cities thus profiting by the study of city planning to which the committee has devoted itself literally day and night. In addition to the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen providing for an unpaid Commission on the Distribution of Population here, a bill authorizing the appointment of a similar commission has been introduced in the Legislature. This body if created will, perhaps, be the first in the country to seek the bottom causes for huddling people in unlimited numbers in unsanitary quarters, and to offer a definite, practical remedy. The subject is big and broad, with many ramifications and far-reaching possibilities for helping those people who now flounder helplessly and for reasons they cannot analyze.

The movement has the indorsement of the New York State Grange, President SCHURMAN of Cornell University, the Yonkers and Rochester Chambers of Commerce, and many other important organizations throughout the State.

The United States is far behind European countries in definite city planning, and the subject cannot be taken up too quickly or studied too thoroughly, for it means in the end better and brighter homes and a healthier and happier people.

PORTO RICO AS A RESORT.

Gov. COLTON of Porto Rico has made public the plans for the erection of a big hotel at San Juan, on that island. Only the lack of good hotel accommodations has hitherto kept Winter tourists away from Porto Rico. The weather conditions there from November to April are generally good. The scenery of the island is attractive, and there is no reason why it should not become as highly favored as a Winter resort as Bermuda, the Bahamas, or Jamaica. The island is our very own, and it is a possession worth knowing and bragging a little about. There are plenty of good roads for motor cars, and all the opportunities for sport any resort in the Antilles possesses. As a general thing the comparatively few Northern visitors to Porto Rico now stay only a few hours, because of the lack of inns.

A big modern hotel has been planned to stand on Government land, if Congress will cede the site. The inn will soon attract Winter tourists, and other inns will speedily be erected, and the influx of Northern visitors will not only increase the prosperity of Porto Rico but will serve to strengthen the bonds between the colonists and the United States. Many of them are already seeking citizenship.

WHO ARE THEY?

It would be of interest to know who are the instigators and advocates of the bill which passed the Assembly and is now in the Senate providing that the restrictions now applying to the old Albany Post Road shall be removed in order that a trolley line may be built along that avenue. It is safe to say that from Yonkers to Tarrytown 95 per cent. of the property owners are opposed to the bill and to the trolley line. All of them have held, many of them have bought, their property on the understanding of the existing covenant that no railroad shall invade the Post Road, or, as it is usually called nowadays, Broadway. The abutting property consists chiefly of large estates, so maintained as to give to the Post Road the general character of a parkway. As a parkway it should be kept, for certainly the building of a trolley line would quite destroy its present character. The erection of the poles and the installation of the wires would make it necessary to mutilate the trees lining the avenue and to destroy many of them. What is now a beautiful thoroughfare would become an altogether unpleasant gash in the face of nature.

It is not easy to see why any of the all-the-year residents of the towns and villages along the line, as distinguished from the owners of large places who have business in the city, should desire the construction of this trolley line, which would necessarily have the effect of reducing the market and assessable value of all the near-by property. If assessable valuations went down taxes would go up. The tax boards of Westchester have been disposed to place rather high valuations upon these large estates. Those valuations would have to be reduced, which would hardly benefit the smaller property owners. Broadway has now about all the vehicle traffic that it can safely and conveniently accommodate. The addition of a trolley line would make it a positively dangerous highway.

Moreover, a trolley line along Broadway would not in the slightest degree promote increase of population or the building of new residences—quite the contrary. If the line is a public necessity, of which there is exceedingly scant evidence, it would be to the advantage of the communities it served to lay out the line along highways further removed from the river. This might promote the eastward growth of the villages it connected. Such a project would not be tolerated for a moment in England, Germany, or France. There is no reason why it should be tolerated here. It is not necessary that the spirit of utility should become a spirit of destruction. When the vast preponderance of the public interest and desire is against the removal of the wholesome restriction now affecting the Post Road, it is hard to see how the Legislature could find any merit in the bill. The measure seems to represent a spirit of sheer perversity. It is to be hoped that the Senate will take that view of it.

A WOMAN'S SUPPLEMENT.

There is nothing extraordinary in the publication by The London Times, under its present management, of a weekly supplement for women. Latterly that newspaper has been devoting a great deal of thought and fancy to feminine dress and adornments, and has found space in its ample columns also for the consideration of many other matters once avoided as trivial in Printing House Square. But the reasons put forward for the publication of the new supplement are interesting and in some way extraordinary. For instance, The Times declares:

> The work and the play of men and of women is inextricably entwined and mutually supporting. It is recognized, indeed, that the social unit is not man, nor woman, but man and woman together. For this reason every educated woman nowadays reads her newspaper, and reads in it, moreover, just those items of general information which her father or her husband reads.

To say this seems to be equivalent to saying that there is no excuse whatever for a supplement exclusively for women. But The Times goes on to admit that woman is often heard to complain that "an unfair amount of space" is devoted in the newspapers to subjects which appeal only to men. The object of the new supplement, it seems, is to "embrace all the interests and activities of women, from politics to powder, from medicine to millinery," and "to keep its finger on all the work that women are doing for the nation, the empire, and the world," and most of its contributions will be from the pens of women.

It will not spread the "absurd idea of the antagonism or opposed interest between the sexes," but, presumably, it will let all the suffragists and suffragettes, militant or the reverse, have their say in a part of the paper which can be discarded by male readers who are not interested in the feminist idea. The London Times, we infer, enters upon this project with much seriousness, convinced that the social power of women, always great, is now greater than ever, satisfied that the intellectual force of women has grown, and firm in the conviction that "the day of the mannish woman" is over. If the "mannish woman" ever had a day we sincerely hope it is over. This Woman's Supplement may turn out to be a successful experiment. There is nothing new in the idea, of course, but it is likely that to make a good, broad-minded newspaper day by day, as richly varied in its contents as the life it portrays, is all that is necessary for success in modern journalism. Literature, the fine arts, social problems, the doings of noteworthy persons, charitable plans, sensible discussions of subjects of great moment, interest women as well as men. In this country the tendency in newspapers is not so strong toward special features for women as it used to be in the age of the long somnolence of The London Times.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Not a Song to Sing for Convicts.

Few of the people who visit jails—voluntarily—do so for any other reason than to gratify an idle and morbid curiosity by looking at the herded victims of vice and misfortune, and, for such prisoners as retain something of sensitiveness, the frequent appearance of these self-appointed inspectors adds a special torture to deprivation of liberty. That, at least, is often reported, and there is doubtless an element of truth in the complaint. The chances are, however, that the ordinary convict welcomes anything whatever that breaks the monotony of his existence, and that he gets more pleasure than pain from being the object of interest, wonder, and fear, emotions which he does not excite in his official guardians.

When GERALDINE FARRAR visited the Federal prison at Atlanta this week she seems to have gone, not to see misery, but to alleviate it—not to look at the prisoners, but to let them hear her. At her request they were assembled and she sang to them song after song of the old-fashioned, simple sort that everybody, good or bad, is fond of. That, of course, was very nice of Miss FARRAR—whom, fortunately, no cynic will suspect of seeking an advertisement, since she needs none—but one would like to know why she included among her selections "Home, Sweet Home" and sang it in a way that gave her auditors a cruelly poignant realization of their homelessness, certainly not mitigated by wandering through pleasures and palaces.

It is said that only "LUPO the Wolf" listened unmoved. The others were deeply moved, and some of them, including a well-known New York financier, sobbed audibly. Perhaps it was good for them thus to be stirred up, but it is hard to avoid the belief that if Miss FARRAR'S tact had equaled her kindness she would not have chosen that particular song to sing in such a company. One should not be too sure, however. Emotion is a queer thing and sentimentality is not the exclusive possession of the virtuous or the refined. Though the convicts could hardly have been happy while they wept, it may be that their unhappiness was of a kind they liked to have, if only for its dissimilarity from the many kinds they know too well.

Commuters Continue to Growl.

Westchester's commuters are not becoming reconciled as time passes to what they consider the cruel wrong soon to be inflicted on them by the New Haven Road. The more they study the new rates that go into effect on June 1 the more do they resent the amount of the advance over the former schedule, the less excuse do they see for one of the most prosperous roads in the country to exact from its best patrons 37 per cent. more than they have been paying, and the stronger is their determination to avoid if they can the paying of a higher tribute to the never-loved corporation.

An especially lancinating pain goes through the commuters when they think that though the fare between New York and Boston is to be raised only 10 cents, the increase for the towns only a few miles out in the suburbs is half as much. This they regard, and seemingly with reason, as an outrageous discrimination against the suburbanite and in favor of the through passenger. To the latter 10 cents is nothing, while to the former the frequently paid 5 cents soon mounts up to a whole lot. And even for the commuter who travels twice a day, year in and year out, the least of the new advances is almost 5 cents for each trip, and in the more remote towns it is considerably more.

Somewhat dubious, though they won't confess it, as to forcing the road to rescind its obnoxious order altogether, the commuters are studying the practicability of a curious scheme for extending their present privileges for at least a year. The old rates, they say, are in force till the end of May. Why not, therefore, just before the month closes, buy the first and highest-priced ticket book of the cheapest, or sliding scale, variety? That, if they are not mistaken, gives them, for a valuable consideration, the right—an option—to buy the remaining eleven books in the annual series, as the need for them comes round.

The argument is plausible, and the plan will doubtless be tried, but nobody is very confident of its success, as the so-called contract in the back of the ticket book gives the railroad a right to do about anything it pleases, and to the purchaser little more than the right to ride if the company hasn't tired of its bargain and happens to be running trains.

Important, but Not Interesting.

President TAFT, with somewhat cynical humor, advises the people who are exploiting what he says are imaginary grievances, like the Payne Tariff bill, to turn their attention and their vast elocutionary energies to a real one—the antiquated and complex forms of court procedure that result in "the law's delays."

About the reality of that grievance there is, of course, no fair question, and no question at all from anybody except the few who profit from those delays at the expense of the many. But somehow, though it is generally recognized that the postponement of justice is the denial of justice and that trials are conducted and suits decided in ways now amusing and now irritating to the lay mind, the facts lack public interest. This may be because of a long-established conviction, the fruit of much experience, that law has a special logic of its own and cannot be expected to follow the common sense rules under which the ordinary affairs of life are conducted.

At any rate, most of us refuse to get excited over the wrongs to which the President would divert our emotions, and we insist on worrying over the matters which he insists are either all right or in the way of becoming so. Instead of the campaign which he would welcome, others are waged that annoy him. It is sad, but it is also a little amusing. Also, such is life. It is one thing to make an issue, and quite another to get it taken up.

Mr. Hughes as Justice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have seen several editorials on the nomination and confirmation of Gov. Hughes for Justice of the United States Supreme Court, but none that in my judgment compare with yours in to-day's issue.

I greatly regret that we are to lose the Governor from the office which he has so greatly honored, but I am certain that no man could have been named who was on the whole so thoroughly well fitted for the position.

ATLANTIC AV. TRACK DISPUTE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article in your issue of the 2d inst. in regard to the condition of Atlantic Avenue states that the city paid part of the cost of the depression or elevation of the tracks in that avenue upon the distinct understanding that the Long Island Railroad Company would relinquish all claim to the surface, and when the improvement was completed the railroad repudiated the agreement.

This is such a common fallacy that it is not surprising that THE TIMES was misled in respect to it. It is, however, most unjust to the Long Island Railroad Company, as the exact contrary is the case.

The facts are that the plan for the improvement of Atlantic Avenue, which was subsequently carried out, was formulated by a commission appointed by the Mayor of Brooklyn to consider the subject, and after many hearings of property holders and negotiations with the railroad, by whom it was finally accepted, this plan was reported to the Mayor on Jan. 8, 1897, was approved by him and printed, and constitutes an official document of the city. So far from this report contemplating the removal of tracks from the surface of Atlantic Avenue, it expressly provides that after the removal of the steam rails the railroad should relay and operate an electric surface line over the tunnel and under the elevated road, thus, the commission says, "replacing the rapid transit trains by a much more convenient and efficient service for short distance radius," while "the through trains would be enabled to give through rapid transit by reason of few stoppages." Not only was this the case, but the report contains pictures showing the surface cars in operation.

This report was not only approved by the Mayor but by the public. The Corporation Counsel of Brooklyn then drew two acts which were afterward passed by the Legislature—one for the improvement as it has since been constructed, and the other for the operation of the surface road. This latter was made a separate act, as it was believed the Constitution so required.

The work of making the change was carried out by the same commission that reported the plan. By its direction the Long Island as a part of such construction laid down on the surface of its right of way the rails for a double surface railroad, spending in so doing $250,000. During the long time this work was going on no objection to this was ever made by the city or property holders. After the construction of all but a very small portion of the surface road was completed, and it was necessary to construct turnouts in the roadway at Atlantic Avenue adjoining the three abutments by which the tunnel tracks pass to the elevated structure, it became necessary to obtain the consent of the Supreme Court. Litigation then resulted, in which it was held that the railroad could not do this.

There is not a word in the act which says that the railroad shall surrender its exclusive right to the surface of the street, and if any idea had been entertained by it that its acceptance of the act would have that result it would not have accepted it. In particular it would not have spent the $250,000 in laying these surface tracks.

The property holders on Atlantic Avenue are anxious to have this surface railroad and a majority of them have given their consent to its construction.

The railroad, desiring to avoid litigation, has made an application to the Public Service Commission for a franchise to operate this surface railroad, practically ignoring its legal rights although not waiving them. Prolonged hearings have been had in regard to the matter, and it is now under consideration by the Public Service Commission.

It was the intention of the railroad to cover its right of way with grass, as is done in many cities, and it went to considerable expense in preparing the ground and sowing the seed. The litigation, however, prevented anything further being done in this direction, and the railroad is not to blame for its present dusty condition.

You will therefore see that so far as the railroad having repudiated any promises is concerned, it is really the sufferer by the repudiation by others of the agreement contained in the specific plan, upon the faith of which alone it undertook the construction of the Atlantic Avenue improvement. While the law may permit a municipality to do this, it would not permit it to be done by an individual or corporation, and no respectable business man would think of breaking an agreement of this description.

DELAYS ON THE ERIE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning fourteen Erie main line trains and New Jersey and New York commuter trains were delayed from twenty minutes to one and a half hours at the Hackensack drawbridge by reason of a brick schooner being wedged in the draw.

Several years ago the Erie, in association with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, the Jersey Central, and Pennsylvania Railroads, took up vigorously with the War Department the question of having the drawbridges on the Hackensack and Passaic Rivers closed for an hour or two in the morning and an hour or two in the evening in order that commuter traffic might be handled promptly. For many years, as is quite well known, the opening and closing of drawbridges during the rush hours has seriously delayed the suburban trains. Fully 70 per cent. of the delays to Erie commuter trains is due to open drawbridges. The Government some years ago issued instructions relative to the Harlem River drawbridges, but the traffic of the Hackensack and Passaic Rivers is hardly 10 per cent. of what it is on the Harlem River, yet the Government has steadfastly refused to put in effect such an order for these waterways.

This is a rather serious matter to railroads carrying New Jersey commuters, and any assistance you can give us toward agitating the subject I have no doubt will be thoroughly appreciated by the patrons of the railroads whose lines cross the Hackensack and Passaic Rivers. There is really not sufficient traffic on these rivers to justify taking the chances that commuters have to take in being seriously delayed as they were this morning.

Webster's $10,000 Fee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A correspondent in this morning's issue of THE TIMES thinks I am "mistaken in several particulars as to Webster's fee in Goodyear vs. Day." He then gives an account, with "particulars," of an entirely different suit from the one I had in mind—of which "particulars" I have said nothing—and which are wholly irrelevant to what I did say.

Mr. Goodyear's conclusive suit with Day occurred several years before the "1851-2 suit" which your correspondent quoted; and I remember, as a small boy, seeing a big pamphlet report of it in my grandfather's home, soon after Mr. Goodyear had visited him, and also hearing what I stated. This suit settled the matter at issue. If, however, Mr. Day tried five or six years later to reopen certain points in it, and failed even with Webster's help to do it, and paid $10,000 to find out that he had been originally beaten, that series of assertions I neither affirm nor deny. And the statement of your correspondent's father drawing the check named I may say the same about—except that I deny its having any pertinence whatever to what I said.

ADMINISTRATION SHELL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your comment on Mr. Wickersham's depiction of Mr. Taft as a coxswain is excellent, but incomplete.

The ideal coxswain is a clever steersman, careful not to drag his rudder, quick at understanding and obeying mandates he receives, fertile of resource in emergencies. He should, above all things, avoid wild steering and should weigh at the outside not over ninety pounds. The coxswain has no share in propelling the boat; he is simply so much dead weight for the oarsmen to pull, and must therefore earn his passage by nimbleness of wit and dexterity of action.

Mr. Wickersham presents to us the beautiful figure of the Administration shell, somewhat out of balance by reason of excess weight in the stern, which not only causes the boat to drag, but also lifts the bow out of water. This brings it about that the man in the bow seat, the Attorney General, does not reach the water at all with his oar, which either sweeps the air idly or sometimes interferes with the oar of the Secretary of the Treasury at No. 3. No. 2, the Secretary of the Interior, has caught a crab and is flat on his back in the bottom of the boat. No. 7, the Secretary of State, is entirely out of tune, being inclined to quicken the stroke in the effort to make up for lack of power; besides he puts his oar in too deep and splashes too much. The old farmer at No. 4 is rowing well, pulls his stroke through, and would do finely if there were any effective pulling on the other side of the boat to balance his good work. For lack of such balance the boat swings around instead of going ahead.

Unfortunately, the man who was put on the crew to be stroke and Captain has preferred the more comfortable seat of coxswain, and stroke's seat is left vacant.

The more one contemplates Mr. Wickersham's simile the more apt and admirable it appears. It is safe to predict for it an immortal fame equal to that which has attended Gen. Pope's announcement that he had fixed his headquarters in the saddle. NOV. CAES.

INEFFICIENT ORGANIZATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter of Mr. Charles Frederick Smith, M. E., under date of April 27, is extremely interesting and instructive. He is perfectly correct when he states that inefficiency in our workers is a very large factor in the present high cost of living.

In the light, however, of many years' connection with industrial enterprises and several years' close study of the amount and causes of such inefficiency, I am convinced that 75 per cent. of it is due to lack of instruction and proper conditions, and only about 25 per cent. to lack of incentive. It has been repeatedly demonstrated by investigation that the trouble was chiefly due to conditions over which the employe had no control, and, consequently, that all the incentive in the world, when applied directly to the unaided worker, would fail to produce the desired result.

When the conditions are made as perfect as possible; when adequate instruction is furnished the operator to enable him to make the best use of the conditions, then, and then only, is the time to give him a bonus to induce him to co-operate with one in the use of the facilities provided.

I know of one instance where twenty-three men were enabled to do three times as much work as formerly in a shop transportation gang because administrative methods had been so changed as to make it possible for the shop foreman to make definite requests in advance for the movement of commodities.

Any attempt to directly increase the efficiency of these men would have failed because the cause lay far back of them in the organization.

I am perfectly certain that inefficient organization and executive methods, far more than inefficient employes, are a larger factor in the present high cost of living than the causes to which it is usually attributed.

COLORADO FISHING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When W. H. Ballou in his letter published in THE TIMES on April 28, 1910, complains of the laws of New York State, which will not permit him to fish for trout unrestrictedly and thinks that he would have greater freedom in the Western States, he is greatly mistaken. Colorado, as well as all the States of this region, realize that they must commence protecting their game and fish and have elaborate game and fish laws.

"The open season for trout not less than seven inches in length (New York allows six-inch trout to be retained) shall begin May 25 and end Nov. 30 next ensuing," is the law of Colorado. A person may catch but twenty pounds in one day and must never have more than twenty-five pounds in his possession at one time. Trout may be caught for food purposes only and cannot be sold, unless taken from a private stream or lake. To transport within or without the State one must follow certain prescribed rules, and besides a fee of 25 cents is charged for each fish shipped to a point out of the State.

Mr. Ballou will find very good fishing in this State should he be willing to come so far and ready to hunt for the out-of-the-way places where the streams are not owned privately and have not been fished out, but he will have to pay a non-resident's fishing license of $2, and he will find that the laws are strictly enforced.

I have had many a good day's catch in the streams of Colorado, but any angler will agree with me that fishing is a luxury and that it is hard to save enough on one's meat bill to pay the expense of catching a mess of trout.

Increased Commutation Rates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the matter of increased commutation rates by the New Haven Road the difference is not that between the present "flat" rate and the new one, but between the present "scale" rate and the new "flat" rate. I live in Port Chester and I pay $80 a year for my ticket on the "scale" basis; on the new "flat" basis I will have to pay $118.80. That's jumping some, is it not?

The company seems to think it can persuade us that we are all using the present flat rate, which amounts to $99 a year, but the great majority of the commuters are on the "scale" basis. Therefore we must pay an increase of $38.80, not of $19.80. P. E. TIEMANN.

The speeches all were splendid,
And the list of guests (appended)
Of the Chinese who attended
Is just fine!

There was Gen. Ha Han.
There was Col. Hsu Chih Shan,
Not to mention Capt. Tsan,
And Shao Chung.
There was Col. Lu Yuen,
There was Col. Tien Haien,
Not to speak of Pang Tsen,
And Major Tung!

There were orators of note,
'Mong the many we might quote
Was the Hon. Choate—
Prandial bliss!
The effect of the translation
Of the jokes in his oration
Through Chinese interpretation,
Was like this:

"Ho, ho!" roared Capt. Tsan.
"Tee-hee!" from Gen. Han,
And Shao Chung.
But on one they didn't score.
On his own Celestial shore,
He had heard them all before—

ART MUSEUM GETS A RUBENS OF 1617

Some Unimportant Restorations to Picture, but Colors Are Fresh and Brilliant—G. A. Hearn's Donation.

The most important addition to the department of paintings of the Metropolitan Art Museum that has been made in recent years was put on exhibition for the first time yesterday, a remarkably fine Rubens, "The Wolf and the Fox Hunt." The picture has been purchased by the museum and is placed at the end of Gallery 27. It is a painting 12 feet 4 inches by 8 feet and shows the hunters closing in around the wolves and foxes, which the dogs are attacking. Two mounted figures at the side, the lady with a falcon, are supposed to represent Rubens and his first wife, Isabella Brant. A rider with a spear is coming forward a little to the left in the picture. In the centre three men with characteristic Rubens faces have one a club, one a horn, and the other a spear, and two men at the extreme left with spears are assisting the dogs in their attack on the animals.

The picture is one which is well known and is supposed to have been completed in 1617, when the artist was 40 years old. It is supposed to have been painted for Gen. Legranes, a patron of Rubens, commander of Marquis Spinola's artillery in Flanders. It passed later into the possession of Count Altimera, was taken from his descendants at the time of the Napoleonic wars and placed in the Louvre, and was exhibited there in 1814. The following year it was returned to its owners who, some time later, brought it again to Paris to be sold. The price set upon it was 80,000 francs ($16,000.) John Smith, the dealer and connoisseur, bought the picture for 50,000 francs ($10,000) in 1824. He in turn sold it to Alexander Baring, Esq., first Baron Ashburton, from whose descendants it was bought by Sully & Co., who sold it to the museum.

"Wolf and Fox Hunt" is pronounced by one reliable critic to be entirely by Rubens except the landscape, which he believes to have been the work of Jan Wildens. The picture is in a very satisfactory condition, with the colors remarkably fresh and brilliant. There have been some unimportant restorations, as is likely to be the case with a picture the age of this. The most important is a patch of two or three inches in the hair of the rider at the left and is inconspicuous.

George A. Hearn has made a valuable donation of pictures, making a notable addition to the museum. Last year Mr. Hearn made a proposition to the museum authorities, offering to give them five valuable paintings for Gallery 15 if they would place six American paintings, then hanging in that gallery, in another room, making a collection of foreign works in the former. At the same time Mr. Hearn offered to give enough other American works to make an entire American gallery. The offer was gratefully accepted. The five foreign pictures given for Gallery 15 are "The Earl of Arundel and His Grandson," by Van Dyck; "A Landscape," by Jone Crome, Sr.; "Mrs. Barnard," by Sir Joshua Reynolds; a "Landscape," by Cecil Lawson, and "Miss Baring," by Sir Thomas Lawrence.

The displaced pictures which form the nucleus of the gallery of American painters, No. 14, were "Peace and Plenty," by Inness; three landscapes by Wyant; "Indian Encampment," by Blakelock, and "Sanddunes," by Martin. The pictures now given for this gallery by Mr. Hearn are "Open Sea," Emil Carlsen; "Quadroon," George Fuller; "Spring," Lillian M. Genth; "Northeaster," Winslow Homer; "Evening Medfield," Inness; "Louise," Alphonse Jongers; "Gitana," John S. Sargent; "Edith," J. J. Shannon; "Moonrise," D. W. Tryon; "Pleiades," Elihu Vedder; "Harrower," Horatio Walker; "Adirondacks," Wyant. There are fourteen pictures in all in this gift, two being given in exchange for others loaned. Galleries 13, 14, and 15 will now be used solely for pictures given by Mr. Hearn or bought from the Hearn fund.

Two new purchases for the museum are "Portrait of a Lady," by Fantin-Latour, and "The Funeral," by Edouard Manet. Two new Rodins have also been added to the museum collection, gifts of Thomas F. Ryan: "Cupid and Psyche" and "Orpheus and Eurydice," purchased from the Yerkes collection. This makes three works by Rodin given by the same donor, the former, also a recent gift, "Pygmalian and Galatea." The two from the Yerkes sale were the first of the sculptor's work to be owned in this country. Seven drawings by Rodin have been purchased by the museum. [illegible] purchased by the museum at the Yerkes sale are placed on exhibition in the recent accessions room, where there are other interesting purchases and gifts.

IN THEO. PARKER'S MEMORY.

The 100th anniversary of the birth of Theodore Parker, the great liberal preacher, and the fiftieth anniversary of his death, both fall within this year, and the "liberal" churches are planning to recognize the occasions by conventions in several cities, including a meeting of the National Federation of Religious Liberals in Philadelphia May 10, 11, and an International Congress of Free Christian and Religious Progress at Berlin, Aug. 6 to 10.

Next Tuesday, May 10, is the anniversary of Theodore Parker's birth, and on that day the Philadelphia gathering will convene in the First Unitarian Church.

On Sunday a special Parker commemorative service will be held in the Church of the Messiah, New York, with such speakers as the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Crothers of Cambridge, Dr. Booker T. Washington, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, and the Rev. Dr. Frank G. Hall. An original poem will be read by the Rev. Dr. John Hayes Holmes, and an original hymn will be written for the service by the Rev. Theodore C. Williams of Boston.

At the International Congress of Free Christian and Religious Progress at Berlin, Aug. 6 to 10, the proceedings will be conducted chiefly in German, French, and English. There will be representatives of more than a dozen nations in attendance and more than twice that number of religious bodies. These range from Hicksite Quakers to Hindu Theists.

'MY MARYLAND,' NEW VERSION

Shorn of Its Martial and Southern Note for Singing in Schools.

BALTIMORE, May 5.—"Maryland, My Maryland," stripped of its martial lines and its pro-Southern sentiments, is being sung by the children of the Baltimore County public schools.

It is a strange song to most of the children, this new "Maryland, My Maryland," but they are drilled in it regularly at rehearsals for the music festival scheduled for May 27. On that day the public at large will have the first opportunity to hear the song sung to the original music, but with words so different that old-timers will be unable to recognize them.

John T. White, School Examiner for Allegany, wrote new words for the music, and the com[illegible] of James R. Randall has been rejected.

This is the way the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill of the Metropolitan Temple announced yesterday that he and other evangelical clergymen of this country are planning to counteract the "unchristian" influences of the Jeffries-Johnson prize fight in San Francisco on July 4.

As soon as the throngs of sporting men begin flocking into San Francisco, less than two months from now, several hundred Methodist, Baptist, and Congregational clergymen and church workers, trained in evangelical work, will put up tents and open headquarters in the earthquake city's Tenderloin, according to a plan of which Dr. Hill is one of the leaders.

There will be street processions, singing of sacred songs, hourly every day in San Francisco streets right up to the time of the fight, Dr. Hill says. When the fight actually takes place the evangelists may assemble and hold a religious meeting near the ring, if not actually in the structure in which the ring is located. Evangelical meetings are also planned to be held in a tent near the prize ring.

Dr. Hill and his fellow-clergymen have been closely watching the attitude of the California authorities regarding the Jeffries-Johnson fight for some time, according to Dr. Hill.

The Church Federation of San Francisco has already appealed to Gov. Gillett of California to prevent the fight. The congregation of the First Congregational Church of Oakland has also appealed to the authorities against the fight. The Rev. William Bader, pastor of San Francisco's Calvary Church, and other San Francisco clergymen have preached sermons against it. The Methodist Ministers' Associations of San Francisco, Oakland, and Berkeley will hold a conference to plan how to prevent the fight. The City Council of Berkeley has indorsed this action.

The movement against the fight has spread to Philadelphia, according to Dr. Hill. The Methodist Ministers' Association of that city has adopted resolutions denouncing it as a "moral calamity to the Nation," and calling on all Christian ministers of every sect throughout the country to unite in a protest to the Governor of California.

If this protest influences Gov. Gillett, the clergymen of the country will do nothing further, Dr. Hill said. If Gov. Gillett ignores the clergymen's protests many of the more outraged of the ministers have agreed, according to Dr. Hill, to organize the evangelical campaign in San Francisco's Tenderloin during the time of the fight.

The evangelical campaign will be conducted on the same lines adopted by "Gipsy" Smith in his evangelical campaign in the Chicago Tenderloin last Winter.

"A National prize fight to which sporting characters from all over the country swarm is a disgrace to present-day Christianity and a desecration of the Fourth of July," said Dr. Hill. "The Christian Church will be guilty of criminal neglect if the hordes of profligate and dissolute are allowed to get together without a counteracting influence.

"The churches should unite to stop this orgy. And they should seize upon the opportunity for Christian work. The powers of good must be marshaled against the powers of evil. Physical development is the foundation for physical and National greatness. But there should be no encouragement for turning the human body into a battering ram. To mutilate the image of God in humanity is a sickening and loathsome caricature of our so-called Christian civilization.

"The passive and complacent attitude of the officers of the law toward such a degredation is inconceivable. If the Governor and Sheriff will not interfere, there is only one thing for the Christian clergymen to do. We must immediately organize an evangelical campaign to overcome the evil influence of the prize fight.

"It is a great opportunity for Christianity. If it is a good thing to send missionaries to the heathen of foreign lands, it is certainly a much better thing to send missionaries among the heathen of this land. 'Gipsy' Smith led a vast procession of Christian workers through the Chicago Tenderloin last Winter, with marked success.

"Let another such procession be organized in San Francisco and on Sunday, July 3, when the camp of the prize fighters is filled with orgy seekers, let a Christian procession start through the prize fighters' camp, singing spiritual hymns and winding up in a great tabernacle tent, with a seating capacity of 10,000, where fervent Gospel services shall be conducted throughout the entire day.

"If this evangelical work is carried on faithfully there will be hundreds of conversions. Some of the strongest Christian workers of the present day are men who have been reclaimed from sinful pursuits. I myself know a number of converted prizefighters, and they never stand on a mission platform without delivering a knock-out blow to the enemy of souls. Billy Sunday, perhaps the greatest evangelist in this country, is a converted baseball player; John Callahan, the evangelist of the Bowery Mission, was a professional panhandler for fifteen years. We must carry out a flank movement on the stronghold of Satan. We must enthrone manhood over brutehood."

Mrs. E. H. Harriman expressed regret yesterday that publicity had been given to the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Harriman, to Charles Cary Rumsey, the sculptor, as, on account of her deep mourning, she wished her own personal affairs to be kept very quiet.

She confirmed the report, but had no statement to make, as the wedding will be a very quiet one for the reason of her mourning.

Thomas M. Mulry, President of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank and prominent in the city's charities, is seriously ill with typhoid fever in St. Vincent's Hospital, it was learned last night. His physician, Dr. Charles H. Lewis of 51 West Fifty-eighth Street, said last night that, while Mr. Mulry's condition was serious, there were hopes for his recovery unless complications set in.

Mr. Mulry has been in the hospital for two weeks. Three weeks ago he accidentally fell over a footstool in a dark bedroom in his home at 10 Perry Street, and received a severe scalp wound. Dr. Lewis was called to treat him, and discovered, after several days, that his patient had developed typhoid fever. He had him removed at once to St. Vincent's, where he is a private patient.

Marie Dressler, whom a very clever woman described last night as the human steam roller—only there never was one that could keep it up so long without assistance—came into the Herald Square Theatre last night, sent an audience into hysterics, almost put the furniture out of commission, and generally raised such a ruction as only a very large and very noisy and very clever person can raise without being arrested. At the end of the first act Miss Dressler, responding to the demands for a speech, said that she would like to tell the audience how she felt in her own language—only she was afraid of the police. Be that as it may, as another large person once remarked, he would have been a foolhardy policeman who laid a hand on Marie Dressler last night. For that audience was hers.

As a matter of fact, this very clever woman, whose fun is fun, though it may not be exactly what would be called ree-fined, has never had more opportunity than now to show what a variety of laugh-producing tricks she has up her ample sleeves. Almost from the first minute to the last—that is to say, when the stage was not given over to dancers and singers in the lavishly provided musical and spectacular part of the production—she was doing stunts. And doing them with such amazing cleverness and with such an injection of rich humor and unflagging spirit that her appeal was irresistible.

Somewhere in the world, somehow, there may be a man who will not laugh at Marie Dressler, but he is a man to be suspicious of. There is something wrong with his conscience. All of which remarks by way of introduction, while taking a long breath and wondering where to begin to tell what it is all about.

In "Tillie's Nightmare" Miss Dressler is set down as a boarding house drudge, but of course she doesn't look it in spite of the simple gingham gown which she wears in the first scene, and which is presently to give way to silks and velvets when Tillie, in an absurd dream of wealth, finds herself first in New York, then on board her own yacht, and finally high up among the clouds in an airship. Tillie falls overboard from the yacht into the sea, but that apparently isn't enough to wake her from her dream. It takes a tumble from the airship to bring that about, and to change all the supposed finery and wealth to boarding house primaries and all the people into their own simple former selves. But if Tillie has had as much amusement during her nightmare as the people in the audience had last night she will undoubtedly want to repeat the experience. Funny, though, she had hers before the rarebit, which only arrived in a tin bucket after her dream was out.

At the very outset Miss Dressler struck a rapid laughing pace in a song "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl," with an accompaniment pounded out by herself on an alleged piano, and her subsequent exhibitions as a shop girl, as a seasick person, and as one recovering from that malady under the ministration of champagne cannot be described.

The last was undoubtedly the funniest thing in the line of stage "jags" that has been seen in many years.

Again, in a song "What I Could Do on the Stage," with a burlesque imitation of Mme. Tetrazzini's singing of "Traviata" and ending with a rapid exit on a couch introduced for the purpose, she was indescribably amusing.

The art which produces these results may be broad, it is always put on in large washes and big strokes, but it invariably succeeds in what it aims at. And can any art do more? And Miss Dressler, though she may not be delicate, is likewise not vulgar in the sense in which so many things are vulgar on the stage. Neither what she says nor what she does need ever bring a blush. As a tonic she may be freely recommended, and the after effects will not be harmful. The same cannot be said of every one.

In building a show around Miss Dressler, Mr. Fields, with Ned Wayburn as stage manager, has apparently spent much time and money, and the result is an extraordinarily good entertainment. Though the star provides a large share of the laughter, there are other clever people to help out, Mr. Harvey, Mr. Burbaretto, Mr. Quinn, Miss Broske, and Miss Fanchonette being among those who keep things moving.

And the Original English Dancing Girls are so exceptionally light and rapid on their toes that their names at least deserve a mention. They are the Misses Eva and Ferrie Foltz, Eva Marlowe, and Nellie Winkie, and in a rapidfire pierrot dance, with skipping ropes, the audience couldn't seem to get enough of them.

A stunning finale to the first act showing Tillie's wedding is very rich in color and provides a top note in luxurious gowning, though the costumes throughout are stunning, and the girls in them well up to the best Broadway standard in looks. Mr. Smith's book serves admirably, and the music by A. Baldwin Sloane has plenty of brightness and go. Particularly pleasing is "I Want to Bring You a Ring" and "Be-Bee," the latter a pantomimic diversion which tells an amusing story in a charming way.

Miss Dressler's imitation of the newer craze in dancing was almost overlooked. But no one who sees "Tillie's Nightmare" will make the same mistake. It is only one more of her excrutiatingly funny stunts. A good idea forms the basis of the play and is very neatly and cleverly worked out. And though Miss Dressler is occasionally serious in a truly burlesque way there is a pretty touch of sentiment at the end that has a real heart-beat in it.

NEW 48TH STREET THEATRE.

Shubert House Will Be Near Times Square and Brady's The Playhouse.

The site of the new Shubert theatre on Forty-eighth Street, about which announcement was made some time ago, will be just off Times Square at 155-159 West Forty-eighth Street. The lots are now occupied by two five-story apartment buildings. The plot has a frontage of 95 feet on Forty-eighth Street, and is about 100 feet west of the site of William A. Brady's new theatre, The Playhouse. The land, it is said, has been leased for twenty-one years from the owner, Edward T. Davis, of Philadelphia.

Mr. Brady's new theatre, according to an announcement sent out from his office yesterday, will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1.

May Question Anna Held on Ziegfeld Debts.

The suit of Alfred Boullant against Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., the theatrical manager, to recover $20,000 on notes given in Biarritz, France, and which Ziegfeld alleges represent gambling debts, will again be heard in court to-day. Leon Lasky, Ziegfeld's counsel, has moved to vacate an order for the examination before trial of Anna Held, Ziegfeld's wife. The order to examine Miss Held was granted on the production of letters she is alleged to have written to Boullant on the subject of his action against her husband.

MAUDE ADAMS CITY'S GUEST.

Salt Lake City Council Welcomes Actress to Place of Her Birth.

Maude Adams is being unusually honored in Salt Lake City, according to a telegram received at the Frohman offices last night. She was welcomed last night by the City Council as a guest of the city, and as "the State's most illustrious daughter." The telegram, coming from a representative of Mr. Frohman, read:

"Salt Lake City Council to-night presented Miss Maude Adams an embossed copy of resolutions welcoming her to the city as an honored guest. The highest type of modest womanhood; idol of the American stage, and the State's most illustrious daughter. To-morrow Miss Adams gives a special matinée of 'What Every Woman Knows' for Orphans Home. Her welcome to the city of her birth eclipses everything ever witnessed here for enthusiasm."

Miss Adams began an engagement in Salt Lake City last night. She was born in that city, while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kiskadden, were members of a stock company in a local theatre, and she is looked upon as a native daughter of Utah. Her mother, Mrs. Annie Adams, as she was known on the stage, has been a resident of Salt Lake City in recent years.

STOPS 'GET BUSY WITH EMILY'

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 5.—Chief of Police Cowles to-night ordered the company controlled by Al H. Woods of New York not to produce the play, "Get Busy with Emily," at the Grand Opera House to-night. Woods's company launched the piece last night.

Chief Cowles, who acts as theatrical censor for the city, said to-day that if the managers of the theatre had not misrepresented the character of the farce to him he would not have allowed it to be given last night. He says that the play is indecent. Woods has the farce billed to open a long engagement in Chicago Sunday night at Cort's Theatre. The company left here early this evening for Chicago. In the company are Laura Guerite, William Hawtry, and Frederick Ober.

FRANK WORTHING'S CONDITION

Actor, Seen at Play Last Night, Denies He Broke Down in Pittsburg.

Mr. Frank Worthing was in the audience at the Herald Square Theatre last night, and took occasion to deny the story sent out from Pittsburg that he had broken down during a performance of "Is Matrimony a Failure?" in that city on Wednesday night.

Mr. Worthing has not been in entirely good health recently, but he said that he retired from the company in order to get a rest. He did not go on at all on Tuesday night. Instead he saw the performance of the play from the front, enjoyed it, and then caught a train for this city. Mr. Courtenay Foote, his successor in the rôle, appeared on that night as prearranged, and the story of Mr. Worthing's sudden breakdown was, therefore, unwarranted.

OPPOSES POLITICS IN SCHOOLS

President Winthrop Against Meetings in the School Buildings.

President Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., of the Board of Education lost no time last night at the annual dinner of the public lecture corps of the board at the Hotel Astor in turning down firmly a suggestion from Dr. Henry M. Leipziger, supervisor of lectures, that the public school buildings be used for political meetings.

Mr. Winthrop said the thing was impossible for the present. He spoke of it as only to be considered when the millennium shall have dawned.

In the course of his address last night, when the twenty-first year of the public school lecture system was being celebrated, Dr. Leipziger dwelt on the success of the work and the growing popular interest in it.

"Only yesterday," he said, "I received a request for the establishment of more lectures on economic and social topics. Twelve thousand young men, it is reckoned, are preparing to become voters each year, and in each of our great school houses should this array of young men be prepared by non-partisan teachers through the lessons of history and economics to become intelligent wielders of the right of suffrage."

President Winthrop, who was introduced immediately thereafter by Toastmaster W. F. Johnson, said Dr. Leipziger's lecture system had done much to extend the use of the public school buildings to the people, but that he for one could not bring himself to believe that they should be turned over to organizations as forums for political discussion and agitation.

"The time is not ripe for that," he said, with emphasis. "That may be all right when the millennium shall have arrived, but not now."

Don C. Seitz, business manager of The World, created some surprise by saying that the New York boy seemed to be shorn of a chance to make a living, the preference being given to boys and youths from other places. He told of a recent experience in dickering with a typographical union on the employment of apprentices. At first it was said that no apprentices were to be allowed, but on his protest it was agreed that only one for every twenty men should be employed, and only four in the entire plant. It was then stated, he said, that boys who had learned their trades outside of New York pressed on the employers so hard that they won over the home boys.

MRS. HERRIMAN DIES IN ROME.

Former Brooklyn Resident Was Well-Known Member of American Colony.

Word was received in Brooklyn last night of the death yesterday in Rome, Italy, of Mrs. Elizabeth Wyckoff Herriman, one of the best-known members of the American colony there. She and her husband, William H. Herriman, maintained a beautiful home and many prominent American visitors to Rome had been entertained by them.

Mr. and Mrs. Herriman formerly lived in Brooklyn, but they had made the Italian city their home for many years. She was born about seventy years ago in Manhattan and in her day was a belle of the old city. Mr. Herriman is a brother of the late Mrs. Caroline Herriman Polhemus, founder of the Polhemus Clinic of the Long Island College Hospital in Brooklyn, and of the Herriman Home, in Monsey, Rockland County, N. Y. Some months ago Mr. and Mrs. Herriman made a gift of $100,000 to this home. The couple had no children.

He had published many volumes of sermons. Among his other writings are "A Spring Holiday in Italy," "The Life of David as Reflected in His Psalms," and "The Victoria Cross."

HEARST THIRD TICKET LIKELY THIS FALL

STAND FOR VIRTUE ALONE

"The Other Parties Are Good," He Declares, "Because We Compel Them to be Good."

The Executive Committee of the Civic Alliance, the Hearst organization which was created last Fall out of the remnants of the Independence League after its primaries had been purloined by Tammany Hall, and on which backing Mr. Hearst ran for Mayor, polling a vote which astonished the "regulars," held a meeting at the Hotel Astor last night, at which it was indicated that the Hearst party will run an independent ticket in the election this Fall.

Mr. Hearst was present with Clarence J. Shearn, his personal counsel and close adviser. Both made speeches along the most radical independent lines. Mr. Hearst did not say that he would run as the head of a third ticket this Fall, but in his remarks he showed his old contempt for the two great parties and intimated that he is ready to follow the mandates of his organization.

Mr. Hearst's speech and that of Mr. Shearn were particularly interesting, in view of the recent speech made by John Temple Graves in Washington, in which he declared in effect that Mr. Hearst was ready and willing to return to the Democratic fold. There was nothing of this in the remarks last night.

Mr. Hearst said in part: "A great many people want to know if there is to be an alliance between the Democratic Party and the Independence League. I won't repeat to you what I have already said in interviews on that subject. The Independence League has shown that it held the balance of power in New York City and I think it is capable of showing that it can hold the balance of power in the State. In view of that fact it would be a crime for the Independence League to sacrifice its individuality.

"It might be necessary, no one can tell at this time, to combine with one party or the other to insure the election of good men, but so far as my experience goes, we have found that it is for the independents to make the stand and make the stand alone.

"When other parties are good it is usually because we compel them to be good, and in the coming campaign in this State it is probable that both parties will be controlled by the privileged classes. For every Aldridge there is a Taggart, and for every Murphy there is a Woodruff."

After Mr. Shearn had spoken, also arguing that the league maintain its individuality, the Chairman called upon representatives of the organization from all over the city and some men from out of town. Frequent references were made to the present controversy between Mayor Gaynor and Mr. Hearst over the Cohalan warrant, and all of them were met with pounding of feet and hisses.

"Aren't we glad to see that Gaynor is getting his?" shouted one speaker. "Of course we are. He is the man who might have been one of us and turned to Tammany only to be discredited this early in his day."

One or two of the speakers started to raise the cry that the members of the organization had not received the patronage that they deserved for the service given in the election of the Fusion ticket last Fall, but this talk was quickly choked off by some of the cooler heads, who declared that ideals in politics are more important than the spoils of war.

Resolutions were passed lauding Mr. Hearst for the part he played in the campaign last Fall and urging him to continue in the independent fight.

LONDON, May 5.—Commander Robert E. Peary delivered his first public lecture in Great Britain before a crowded audience in Queen's Hall to-night. Capt. Robert F. Scott, the antarctic explorer, presided. The audience cheered and applauded the lecturer repeatedly, and accorded a hearty vote of thanks to him at the conclusion of his address.

Commander Peary to-day presented to the Royal Geographical Society one of the sleds which he took to the north pole. He had named the sled Beaumont, after Admiral Sir Lewis A. Beaumont, who was a member of the British arctic expedition of 1875-6.

The Giants held an aeronautical meet at the Polo Grounds yesterday, "Bugs" Raymond taking first honors for altitude of flight, his performance in mid-air making Paulhan's best aerial sail seem like flying a kite. When "Bugs" started to ascend he kept right on going until he was hardly visible to the naked eye. Inasmuch as "Bugs" put so much effort into aviation, Philadelphia won the ball game in a walk, 9 to 3. The Giants emitted an abundance of bad baseball and maybe now it is all out of their systems and they will do better.

It was the kind of a ball game where you get quietly up out of your seat after the third inning and try to sneak to the "L" without any of your friends seeing you. And when they ask you next day if you saw the game you say, "No, I wasn't there." Oh, Ananias.

Raymond got flighty in the second, but in the third it seemed as if the Phillies were going to keep on pummeling him until the cows came home. All that the Phillies had to do was stick the bat in front of the ball and it rained safe hits. The ball, a bulb of the regulation size, suddenly assumed the proportions of a football, and you'd imagine the Horace Fogel troup was hitting it with a club as big as a bass fiddle.

In that fretful third round every man on the Philadelphia team took a crack at "Bugs" and then started all over again. Runs gushed over the plate like the wet flowing over Niagara. New York fans who never lost their temper when a pennant was at stake pulled their hats down over their eyes and said, "Please pass the headache powders."

With the cudgel the Giants found the ball just as often as a clock strikes 13. And on the bases they—well, you know how a man walks in his sleep.

For six innings Ewing, who formerly was a Cincinnati Red, was a miser with his hits and would give but one to the starving Giants. The crowd greeted Fletcher like a hunter returning from the jungle when he finally got a single in the seventh, their first rap of the game. In the ninth, with the score 9 to 0, the Giants started a rally. That's a fine time to bring out the rally thing, isn't it? Just like putting a new bolt on the old barn door after the thoroughbred has been stolen.

"Bugs" pitched marvelous ball in the first inning, not a hit, not anything. Two singles, a sacrifice, and Doolan's two-bagger gave two runs in the second. In bald, unpolished prose, the facts of the third inning are these: Titus sliced off a bunt. Safe. Bates poked to Devlin. Look at the ball shoot past Merkle, two yards wide. Titus scored, Bates at third. Grant grounded out, "Bugs" to Merkle. Magee chopped off another bunt, Bates scored. "Bugs" going up and up. Bransfield walked. Knabe singled to left. Magee scooted to third. "Bugs" is now heaving the ball as if he was putting the fifty-six-pound shot. Doolan lifted an infield fly to Doyle. Larry spilled it, Magee registering, but Doolan is out anyway, an infield fly being against the law, just like smoking in the Subway.

There isn't much more to worry you about. Dickson relieved Raymond and held the Phillies runless until he was taken out in the eighth to allow Becker to bat. Klawitter pitched the ninth, and two hits, two passes, and his own error gave the Philadelphia the ninth run. Klawitter had barrels of speed, but that's all.

Ewing up to this time had pitched a tip-top game. The Giants were helpless before him. In the ninth he weakened and Devore led off with a double. Doyle walked and Murray sinigled. Seymour's safety scored Devore and Doyle, and Murray scored when Fletcher forced Seymour out at third.

Postscript.—Yesterday's funny sketch at the Polo Grounds puts the Phillies in a tie with Pittsburg for first place. New York dropped to third.

Boston Cleverly Defeats Brooklyn.

Although outbatted, Boston took the opening game of the series from Brooklyn at Washington Park yesterday 1 to 0. Mattern kept the hits well scattered and was favored by phenomenal support at critical points. A remarkable one-handed catch by Sweeney, which he turned into a double play, saved the game in the sixth. Barger was equally effective except in the fifth, when Beck's double and Moran's single scored the only run. Both sides fielded without an error. The score:

TOO COLD IN BOSTON TO PLAY BASEBALL

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 5.—New England Spring weather, cold, cloudy, and windy, prevented the Yankees from playing here to-day against the Red Sox. The Boston management did not call the game off until it was absolutely necessary at the last moment. Although the sun came out after 3 o'clock it was cold and raw and was no kind of a day for baseball.

The Boston Americans have had the hardest kind of luck with the weather. This was the third day that a game has had to be postponed. In the last eight playing days the weather has been fine just once. Manager Stallings of the Yankees was satisfied not to play, because the cold weather would undoubtedly have had a bad effect on some of his young players. Warhop or Frill will pitch to-morrow, and Hall will twirl for Boston.

The seating accommodations at the Boston grounds have lately been increased, and the stands will now seat over 23,000, twice as many as when the grounds were opened in 1901.

Ambrose J. McConnell, second baseman of the Boston American League baseball team, is to be operated upon to-morrow for appendicitis. McConnell has complained for some time of pains in his right side, but it was only to-day that his trouble was found to be appendicitis.

Louis Leroy, the Indian pitcher, who has been with the Boston team this season up to the present time has been returned to the St. Paul club of the American Association, from which he was drafted. Leroy has at different times played with the New York Americans and other major league clubs.

Schmidt Drives in Winning Runs.

DETROIT, Mich., May 5.—In a game marked by one unusual inning, Detroit to-day beat Chicago on the Tigers' home field. Walsh was batted off the slab in the seventh, the home team having tied it with two out, and still havng Cobb on second, when Young was called in. He walked two men, filling the bases. Jennings sent Moriarty to bat, and Duffy called Scott into the game. Moriarty was then called back to the bench, without reaching the plate, and Schmidt, a left hand hitter, went to bat for the first time this year, and singled, scoring two runs and deciding the game. Summers was strong outside one inning, and Walsh was good until Stanage opened the seventh with a triple and the hitting began. Both teams fielded better than the figures show. Walsh was put off the field in the eighth, for talking from the bench. The score:

Joss had St. Louis shut-out till the ninth, when with two out Hoffman singled and stole and scored on Wallace's double. J. E. Davis Meadow Brook Master.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 5.—At a meeting of the members of the Meadow Brook Club held last night J. E. Davis, who is one of the younger members of the club, was elected Master of Hounds of the club for this year. Mr. Davis will, no doubt, make a good master, he being a Southerner and taking a great interest in both fox and drag hunting. With Mr. Davis in charge a big season in cross-country hunting is assured devotees of that sport next Winter. This Spring there was no regular master, Mr. Davis acting in that capacity always by request of the Hunt Committee, which had the hunting in charge at the Spring meets.

AITKEN'S LUCKY ESCAPE.

Auto Driver's Car Dashes Over Embankment on Atlanta Speedway.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 5.—John D. Aitken, during the automobile race meet, had a miraculous escape on the back stretch of the Atlanta Speedway to-day when his National forty, going seventy miles an hour, dashed into the inside fence and over the embankment. The front of the car was smashed, but Aitken and his mechanician, Wilson, escaped with scratches.

The accident happened in the forty-ninth mile of the 200-mile race, when Aitken was about two miles in the lead of his nearest competitor and giving promise of lowering the track record for the distance. The race was won by Harroun in a Marmon car. Strang was forty miles behind Harroun at the finish of the fifth race. He received second money, $300, while Harroun got the $5,000 Atlanta Speedway Trophy and $600.

One Atlanta track record was broken in to-day's racing, Ralph De Palma clipping 30.38 seconds off the twenty-mile record for cars of 451 to 600 cubic inches piston displacement, made by George Robertson in a Fiat last year.

An exciting feature of the late afternoon was the graceful manoeuvring of Charles K. Hamilton in an aeroplane at the time the 200-mile race was in progress. Hamilton made one flight of sixteen minutes, circling the race course repeatedly at a mile-a-minute clip. He brought the crowd to its feet with his daring "dips" in front of the grand stand.

At the conclusion of the races Hamilton made a short cross-country flight and manoeuvred over Papeville for several minutes. Then he returned to the course.

To-morrow Christie, De Palma, Harroun, and Lytle will go after the American track records for one mile. The summaries:

Miss Laura Fischer, the scratch player, yesterday defeated Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, the women's National indoor champion, in the final of the handicap singles tournament on the clay courts of the West Side Tennis Club, 238th Street and Review Place. The contest went the limit of three sets of fast driving and volleying before the American girl scored over the young English matron at 4—6, 6—3, and 6—3. In all respects the match was a most memorable one and a brilliant final for the opening tournament of the year upon the new field of the club. The summary:

Church League Gymnasts in Meet.

A high order of gymnastics will undoubtedly be exhibited in the triangular meet of the St. Agnes Athletic Association and St. Michael's Athletic Club teams of New York and the team of the Trinity Athletic Association of Hoboken, in St. Michael's Gymnasium, Ninety-ninth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, to-night. The meet will be held under the auspices of the Church Athletic League. Although the St. Michael's gymnasts have won the trophy for this meet for the last two years, the St. Agnes team promises to make a strong bid for the honors, as only a few nights ago the team defeated the Madison Square Men's Club by a score of 1,064 to 917 points. President Delaney of the Church Athletic League will be the referee of to-night's meet.

MASKETTE WINS IN TRACK RECORD TIME

It was a beautifully appropriate return to racing that James R. Keene's great filly Maskette made as a four-year-old at Aqueduct yesterday. She won. Yes, that was a foregone conclusion, and in winning in her own stout-hearted style she got to the winning post for the six and a half furlongs course in time that clipped four-fifths of a second from the track record and, incidentally, the pace she carried under her top weight of 122 pounds took her to the three-quarters in 1:11, time that equaled the world's record for the distance, though the record will not go to Maskette's credit, as it was for an intermediate distance in a contest over a longer course.

Dalmatian and Rocky O'Brien did make some contention, but Maskette, the filly that last season kept S. C. Hildreth, owner of the supposed crack three-year-old colt Fitz Herbert, side-stepping and dodging her, held them from the first jump, when for just an instant she was second to Louise S., which broke best. There was a shade of excuse for Rocky O'Brien, for he got away badly, and was ridden sluggishly in the early stage of the race, but Rocky somehow does not seem to belong in the same lot with Maskette.

The Keene filly, by the great horse and winner in England for the Keene colors, Disguise, and from Biturica, by Hamburg-Berridale, gives every promise of taking her place among the truly great race horses bred at Mr. Keene's Castleton Stud, in Kentucky, even if she does crowd the gallery a bit. Maskette was beaten but once last season, and then on the occasion of her last performance, until her triumphal re-entry yesterday. Firestone, stable mate to the side-stepping Fitz Herbert, then caught her under most unfavorable conditions of weather and track and won from her in a result that still has not convinced some observing turfmen.

Winning Widow, in front about all the way, and Seth, a son of Adam, racing for the Newcastle Stable in the sprint for maidens 2 years old, were returned winners in handy style. Barleythorpe, the colt for which James E. Gaffney paid a price said to have been $15,000 last Summer at Saratoga, reminded racegoers of his promise as a two-year-old by romping out in front all the way and easily beating the warm favorite Follie Levy.

The big surprise of the day cropped up in the fifth race when Our Hannah, at 30 to 1, galloped in front in the first half dozen strides and stayed there to the end.

The weather was just a trifle too cool for comfort, but the track was good and a fair crowd witnessed the races, and gossiped and speculated as much on the possible outcome of the pending legislation at Albany concerning the turf as over the races of the day.

Following the running of the first race Albert Simons, trainer for J. W. Schorr, the Memphis brewer, claimed Edda, running in the name of G. W. Berry, but said to be owned by Adolph Spreckels. Edda, entered to sell for $1,000, started favorite and finished second to Winning Widow. The Simons claim took her to the Simons stable for a cost price of $1,380.

Jockey Harold Shilling, whose return to riding made a race track sensation when the Stewards removed the suspension against him, was suspended again for five days for dereliction in the riding of the horse Euclid the day before. The summaries:

"It is very gratifying to the Board of Governors to report that the committee in charge of the first mortgage on the club's property, which fell due last October, has renewed the mortgage for five years at 4½ per cent.

"The committee has also made arrangements by which $300,000 of second mortgage bonds, falling due on Oct. 1, 1910, will be retired before maturity, payment already having been made to insure such retirement.

"All bondholders of the club are requested to present their bonds to the Knickerbocker Trust Company, 60 Broadway, which will pay the principal and the interest to the date of surrender, from the time of the last coupon payment.

"This is said to be the first time in history that a club, established on lines similar to the New York Athletic Club, has ever anticipated the retirement of club bonds before they fell due, and this notable achievement not only reflects credit on the financial genius of the officers and Governors, but is irrefutable proof of the fact that the New York Athletic Club is making increasingly rapid strides on the high road to prosperity and wealth.

"At a special meeting of the club on the evening of April 6 the club authorized that the first mortgage of $450,000 be increased to $650,000, and that the proceeds, viz., the sum of $200,000—together with money on hand, should be used to retire the bonds falling due Oct. 1, 1910.

GRANT HIGHER PAY TO CENTRAL'S MEN

LOWER RATE ON MAIN LINE

Because It Is an Easier Run—Increase Will Average Close to 20 Per Cent.

E. E. Clark and P. H. Morrissey, the arbitrators of the demands of the trainmen and conductors of the New York Central and other railroads, sent their award in the case of the New York Central to the officials of the road and to Grand Masters Lee and Garretson of the trainmen and conductors, respectively, yesterday, and both sides issued statements giving its main points.

The award also settles the question of the wage demands made on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, both these roads agreeing to be bound by the New York Central award. The arbitrators stated that the award in the case of the Vanderbilt roads west of Buffalo will not be issued before to-morrow.

In the case of the New York Central the award is a compromise between the original offer of the company and the Baltimore & Ohio award, when the demands of its men were arbitrated under the Erdmann act, but in a good many cases the award in the case of the Baltimore & Ohio is granted, to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1911. The following is the summary of the award as given out from General Manager Smith's office on behalf of the New York Central:

"The arbitrators' decision awards on the New York Central $2.40 per 100 miles to its through passenger conductors operating on its main line between New York and Buffalo. The present rate is $2. On its side lines it gives the B. & O. rate, $2.68.

"On the main line division passenger runs the award is $2.50, which is the same rate the company offered, until Jan. 1, 1911, when the B. & O. rate applies.

"On freight the arbitrators awarded the conductors $3.40 on the main line divisions, including the West Shore, until Jan. 1, 1911, when the B. & O. rate applies. The rate is now $3. On its side lines they were given the B. & O. rate of $3.63.

"The arbitrators have evidently recognized the higher speed facilities and favorable conditions under which the New York Central men work in its main line operation."

For brakemen, $1.50 per 100 miles.
Minimum for conductors, both steam and electric, $4.20 per day, $125 per month.
Assistant conductors, $3.35 per day; minimum, $100 per month.
Baggagemen, $2.75 per day; guarantee, $75 per month.
Brakemen, $2.55 per day; guarantee, $70 per month.

In overtime the rates are to be: Conductors, 42 cents per hour; assistant conductors, 33 cents per hour; baggagemen, 25 cents per hour; flagmen, 24 cents per hour; brakemen, 24 cents per hour.

Flagmen, $2.25 per 100 miles.
Brakemen, $2.42 per 100 miles.

One hundred miles or less, either straight away or turn around, to constitute a day. Time to begin at time required to report for duty and to end when released from duty at end of run. Overtime, pro rata, which is one-tenth of the rates named above per hour.

Local freight, pick-up and drop service:

Flagmen, $2.80 per 100 miles, or less.

Yard service establishes three classes of yards, which are, respectively, one, two, and three cents below the new Chicago standard rate with minimum of ten-hour work day. Overtime, pro rata.

The only exceptions to the above awards are on one series of passenger runs on the New York Central road alone, where a lower rate is awarded for the excessively long runs between New York and Buffalo on the four-track line, the rate of $2.40 per hundred miles for conductors with an equivalent rate for baggagemen and brakemen being established on those runs, which only affect a limited number of men. On three freight divisions a portion of the award is made effective as of April 1, 1910, the standard rate fixed effective Jan. 1, 1911. With these exceptions, which will not apply to any line except the New York Central proper, the contention of the committees and organizations is granted by the arbitrators, extends the standardization of wage in the Eastern territory and virtually guarantees its universal application.

While Assistant General Manager Crowley of the Central looks on the award as a compromise, Mr. Lee and Mr. Garretson look on it in the light of a victory for the men. Grand Master Garretson said last evening:

"Except for thirty-five crews, the award is practically the Baltimore & Ohio award. There are conditions along the route of the New York Central which perhaps required the modification. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and the Delaware & Hudson are bound by this award, with which we are very well satisfied."

Mr. Lee said:

"We have now practically standardized the wages on most of the large Eastern railroads. The Pennsylvania men are negotiating independently and are now getting more than we have demanded in some cases. We have brought about the Baltimore & Ohio terms on the Boston & Maine and the New Haven. The only large Eastern roads we have to confer with are the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Philadelphia & Reading, and the Erie. The New York, Ontario & Western men are now conferring with the officials of that line."

It was reported last evening by D. B. Robertson, the Chairman of the Grievance Committee of the Erie firemen, that the committee had reached a basis of agreement with the railroad, of which the details have yet to be worked out.

MILITIA TO QUELL STRIKERS.

Coal Miners' Threats Bring Them Out—Aliens Make Americans Cease Work.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 5.—Owing to the threatening attitude of striking coal miners at Westville, Ill., 200 militiamen to-night are camped in Danville ready to quell any physical outbreak. Nearly 1,000 foreigners to-day marched to four mine shafts, armed with stones and clubs, and carrying an American flag, and forced 200 union American miners to desist from repair work and the installing of safety devices. This work has been going on since mining ceased, April 1.

The foreign miners say that they are starving, and that the mine owners discriminate against them in employing Americans to do all the repair work. Many of them are said to be armed with knives and revolvers.

PITTSBURG, Kans., May 5.—A mob of 400 striking miners, mostly foreigners, attacked the mines of the Clemens Coal Company to-night and by threats forced the workers to leave. The strikers then broke the pumps of the mine, dismantled the gas engines, and threw the wreckage into the pit.

Threatening the working miners with death if they should return to work, the strikers next marched on the mines of the Cherokee, (Pittsburg Coal Company,) near-by, where they found only the enginemen and pumpmen, all miners being on strike. The enginemen and pumpmen were driven from the workings and threatened with violence if they returned.

Eight mines were visited by the mob. American strikers are said to have led the foreigners in their attack. The Executive Board of the United Mine Workers in this district deprecated the raids and declared that it would do all in its power to bring the offenders to justice.

CANNOT PREVENT FIGHT.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 5.—In response to scores of letters received at the Governor's office since the death of Tommy McCarthy, following his fight with Owen Moran in San Francisco last Friday night, urging that Gov. Gillett stop the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4, E. Forrest Mitchell, Executive Secretary to the Governor, to-day sent out answers, saying the the Governor was powerless to interfere.

This office is in receipt of your letter inclosing resolutions by the Ministerial Union relative to suppressing the Jeffries and Johnson prizefight, or contest, July 4, 1910.

Gov. Gillett is en route to Washington and probably will not return to Sacramento for a month. Lieutenant and Acting Gov. Porter will not be in this office for a week or ten days.

Replying to your letter in their absence permit me to say the Governor is not in favor of prizefights, that he has never attended one in his life, and says he never will. However, under the laws of California I believe he is helpless to prevent or suppress this so-called boxing contest, and because the law allows such contests, if the necessary permit has been granted by the local authorities. In this instance, I understand, this permit has been granted.

I would suggest you file your complaint with the District Attorney of Alameda County, and if this is a prizefight, and not a boxing contest, he has the right to put a stop to it. In all probability, however, the local authorities will be seriously handicapped until such time as the law is amended by the State Legislature so that the distinction is clearly shown between a prizefight and a so-called boxing contest.

JEFFRIES HELPS BUILDERS.

Special to The New York Times.

BEN LOMOND, Cal., May 5.—James J. Jeffries does not seem to worry over the fact that Jack Johnson and Sam Berger cannot agree on a referee for the big fight on July 4. He said to-day:

"This referee business is entirely in Berger's hands. I count on Sam to see that nobody is selected who would be personally objectionable to me."

Jeffries spent the morning in looking about Rowardennan with his wife and in helping a force of men to build a log cabin on the hotel lawn.

Jim Corbett is expected at Rowardennan June 1, but he will not be of much help to Jeffries as a boxing partner, as Jeffries expects to cut out boxing during the last three weeks of training, because of possible damage to his hands.

Jeff took on Papke and Joe Choynski for the first time this afternoon. In the first round with Papke he caught Billy with a right over one eye, raising a lump and blackening the eye. At the end of three rounds Papke was badly winded. He said when Jeff landed on him he thought his back was broken.

Three rounds with Choynski followed. Jeff fought a twenty-round draw with Choynski in 1897 when he was green and awkward. To-day Choynski couldn't have lasted half a round as Jeff was faster than he and toyed with him. After boxing Jeff spent an hour in the gymnasium.

Young O'Leary to Box Monte Attell.

Young O'Leary of New York and Monte Attell of Los Angeles will furnish the stellar attraction to-night at the National Sporting Club, 340 West Forty-fourth Street. The bout will be ten rounds. Tommy Hogan of Newark and Ralph Rose of New York are scheduled for the semi-final bout. Two preliminary bouts of six rounds will complete the programme.

BOXING AND WRESTLING.

To-night at the New Polo Athletic Association Charley Lawrence and Buddy Eichler meet in the main bout of the evening for ten rounds. The semi-final will bring together Tommy Tracey and Hughey Murphy in a six-round go. Another six-round bout will be between Ed. Rogers and Kid Taylor. Charley Gilbert and Patsey Lenox meet for four rounds. The curtain raiser will bring together Solly Pastor and Young Crowthers for four rounds.

Khyszko, the Polish wrestler who is to meet Frank Gotch in Chicago on May 30 for the world's championship at catch-as-catch-can, was matched yesterday with Dr. B. F. Roller of Seattle for a finish match in Buffalo, N. Y., on May 16.

James W. Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter, has been granted a permit by the Board of Supervisors to hold the Billy Papke-Joe Thomas contest at his Colma arena on May 14. From this action it is evident the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight say that the authorities are not moved by the protests of the ministers against prizefights.

The new Lehigh Athletic Club, at 1,847 Boston Road, will hold another boxing show to-morrow evening. The main go will be for ten rounds between Danny Goodman and Tommy Stagg, and the semi-final will be for six rounds between Hugh Murphy and Young Grim. There will also be an attractive programme of preliminary bouts.

The Olympia Athletic Club of Harlem will have Young Otto and "Fighting Dick" Nelson to meet in the stellar bout of ten rounds on next Monday night, and the way Otto has been disporting himself recently should make "Fighting Dick" use unusual care. On the following Monday, May 16, Frankie Burns, San Francisco's clever lightweight, will be Frankie Madden's opponent for ten rounds.

Willie Beecher and Boyo Driscoll have been matched to go ten rounds at the show of the Fairmont Athletic Club on next Tuesday night. Driscoll will find in Beecher one of the liveliest boys he has faced in the ring for a long time, and the bout should be a hummer.

Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, for ten rounds, will be the chief attraction at the National Sporting Club show of Friday night, May 13. This should be one of the best bouts of the season, and a knockout is one of the strong possibilities of the meeting.

Tennis Features at West Side Club.

A progressive mixed double event will be one of the many interesting features of the season on the West Side Tennis Club's courts, 238th Street and Broadway. The event has been scheduled for May 14, and the method of playing will be as follows: All teams will begin to play at the same time, and those at Court 1 will play the best of three out of five games. The defeated team will then go to Court 9, while the winning team remains at Court 1, where the players change partners with the winning team from Court 2. In every case except at Court 1 the winning team progresses, and the "visiting" woman starts to serve. When the team at Court 1 wins three games out of five, a bell will ring, and play on all the other courts must stop, when the winning teams progress, change partners, and resume play until the bell rings again. In case the score is even when the bell rings, one more point may be played to decide the tie. The men's handicap tournament will commence on May 21, and the regular continuous handicap tournament, which was omitted last year, will commence after the metropolitan tournament.

Kramer and Lawson to Race Again.

The card arranged for the Newark Velodrome track for Sunday afternoon contains many interesting features. Besides a match sprint race between Percy Lawrence and Charles Stein, the "infants" of the professional ranks, there will be six other events on the programme, including a one-mile "Repechage," a three-mile invitation and a two-mile invitation for the professionals, a three-mile open, and one-mile handicap for amateurs, with a half-mile novice race for an opener. The one-mile "Repechage" should be an exciting race. It will be run off in heats, with one man from each handicap mark to qualify for the final. Champion Kramer and Iver Lawson, being on scratch, are not required to ride in the trial heats. The amateurs will fight it out in the three-mile open and one-mile handicap.

New York Yacht Club Holds Meeting.

The New York Yacht Club held a meeting last night. There were about a hundred and fifty present. A historical sketch of the organization of the club in 1844 on the yacht Gimcrack, off the Battery, was presented, illustrated with stereopticon views.

Mineola Horse Show.

The ninth annual Mineola Horse Show will be held at the fair grounds, Mineola, L. I., Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Sept. 22, 23, and 24. The usual prizes in cash and cups will be offered for roadsters, breeding classes, heavy harness horses, and ponies in harness, polo ponies, saddle horses and ponies under saddle, and hunters and jumpers.

Two Newark anglers were surprised on Tuesday by catching twelve bluefish and half a bushel of one-pound weakfish in a seine at Seidler's Beach, Raritan Bay. A lot of menhaden and herring and seven shad were also caught. This is the earliest that bluefish and weakfish have been taken in the bay for many years.

Flounders are still plentiful around the Ulmer Park Pier. On Wednesday Charles Fisher and George Thomas of Bath Beach caught sixteen in less than one hour, and they were the heaviest collection that have been taken from that place in a long time.

The largest striped bass yet taken in California waters was caught by a Benicia fisherman recently. It was a female, 60 inches long, 35 inches in girth, 12 inches through at the pectoral fins, and 18 inches deep. It weighed 70 pounds, the roe itself weighing 9 pounds.

BAKERS ADMIT THEY NEED HANDS

TO CALL OUT HOTEL BAKERS

While the proprietors of the large bakeries asserted yesterday that the effects of the strike of the bakers are slowly wearing away, there was little evidence of an increase in the force of new men. At the Fleischmann bakery, Eighty-first Street and East End Avenue, it was said that some thirty-four new bakers were at work. This is little improvement as the bakery had more than thirty men on Wednesday. A representative of the Fleischmann Company said:

"We are getting along better and supplying more men. The new men are standing by us well and turning out a big output for the force we have employed. There is little disturbance."

The other big firms affected admitted that they had not nearly enough hands. In Brooklyn it was reported that the Hildebrand bakery had seventy-five men working under police protection. The union says that some of the men have quit in the biggest of the Brooklyn concerns.

It was announced by General Organizer Charles Iffland of the Journeymen Bakers and Confectioners' International Union that 500 French bakers in Manhattan will strike in the hotels and restaurants this afternoon, and that 2,000 Italian bakers will strike to-morrow.

"Unless there is a settlement before Monday," he said, "we will order all the bakers in the city on strike, including the English-speaking bakers. This will make a strike of 15,000 bakers altogether. In all 1,800 men have gained their demands, and settlements are still going on.

"The smaller firms which have settled are doing a big business, though they cannot supply all the demand, and most of the new customers they have obtained will stick to them."

Some of the striking bakers in Williamsburg gave the police considerable trouble yesterday in the vicinity of Lee Avenue and Heyward Street. In the immediate neighborhood is the big head baking concern of the firm of Probst & Schomacher, from whose place a number of men have gone on strike. The majority of their men have refused to go out on the ground that they are satisfied with existing conditions.

About a dozen strikers and sympathizers intercepted the new hands and tried to coerce them into quitting their jobs yesterday. There was a clash which brought policemen. Harry Zimmerman of Bayonne, N. J., was roughly handled before a policeman went to his aid.

Michael Schaeffer of 260 Cooper Street became so violent that he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was taken to the Clymer Street Police Station and locked up.

Joseph Ambrose, a varnisher, of 1,821 Avenue A was arrested at Seventy-second Street and Avenue A last evening for throwing stones at George Bachschmidt, a driver for the Herschman & Bleire bakery at Seventy-second Street and Avenue A. The bakers are on strike there, and as the driver left the bakery a number of boys stoned him. The only one Patrolman Martin could catch was Ambrose.

COMPANY G WINS MEET.

Company G, with a total of 20 points, won the annual Spring games of the Fourth Regiment of New Jersey last night at the armory, Jersey City, with Company B second, with 14 points, and Company D third, with 11. There were ten events on the programme, five being closed to the regiment.

The feature event was the two-mile open run. Twenty men faced the starter, with M. Deveney of the Xavier Athletic Association on scratch. The latter ran a fine race, but was only able to finish in third place, but had he not been fouled on the final lap by H. Biddle of the Mohawk Athletic Club would probably have finished second. In the final lap the Xavier man was running close to Biddle and about to pass the latter, when he elbowed him and knocked Deveney out of his stride. When the event was finished the judges disqualified Biddle.

A. L. Miller, the champion miler of the Jersey City High School, running in the colors of Company G from scratch in the mile handicap, won the event in easy style. The summaries:

Columbia Athletes at Annapolis.

The first big track meet on Columbia's Spring schedule is that with the Navy runners at Annapolis to-morrow afternoon, the meet being held in conjunction with the crew races on the Severn between the same colleges. The team will leave for Annapolis to-day at noon, the following men making up the squad: Jacobs, Paton, Stewart, Boorman, Trask, McConnell, Counselman, Verplanck, Maurice, Laguardia, Lamb, Dorr, Liebowitz, H. S. Babcock, T. S. Babcock, Roos, MacKenzie, Ward, Benson, Robinson, Townsend, Bender, and Corwin. A special train has been chartered by the Columbia crew management on the Pennsylvania Road to leave for Annapolis to-night. It is expected that a large number of Columbia men will go down to see the track meet and a crew race.

Columbia Crew at Annapolis.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 5.—The Columbia rowing squad, under Coach James Rice, arrived in Annapolis this morning in time to get acquainted with conditions on the river before racing the Midshipmen on Saturday. The crew was out both morning and afternoon, and Rice said that his charges covered about ten miles in all. The upper course was used, as the outer course, where the race will be rowed, if conditions permit, was rather rough. Rice said that the Columbia men are in good shape for the contest. The crew rowed as follows: Bow, Steinschneider; 2 Clapp; 3, Hamann; 4, Dellenger; 5, Culnan; 6, Saunders; 7, Miller; stroke, Murphy; coxswain, Eddison. Pitt, substitute, and Manager Malon are also in the party.

CLABBY BEATS "DIXIE KID."

James Clabby came out of the West last night and at the Empire Athletic Club lifted the scalp not of Mike "Twin" Sullivan, who had been scheduled to meet the Milwaukee welterweight, but did not do so for financial reasons of his own, but of George Brown, "The Dixie Kid," of San Francisco, the recognized welterweight champion.

Judging solely by what Clabby succeeded in doing to Brown and Sullivan's already established ability, it was rather fortunate for the Boston fighter that penuriousness prevented him from participating in the final bout. Clabby is certainly a good fighter, and demonstrated clearly that he would probably have beaten Brown even if the latter had been in perfect shape and not an eleventh-hour substitute.

Clabby started the third round by smashing Brown's face with a hard right hook. The negro put two lefts to the face and got a stiff right to the nose for his trouble. Clabby put two rights to the stomach and followed this with another to the jaw as Brown missed vicious right and left hand swings. The fourth and fifth rounds were duplicates of what had gone before, with every round marked by long periods of wrestling and hard infighting.

The Milwaukee lad gibed and taunted the negro for his inability to land as the sixth round started, and Brown stuck his tongue out as the retort courteous. A half second later it was almost cut in two by a vicious right uppercut that all but upset the black man. Clabby jabbed and jabbed away at Brown's sore nose and had it sadly puffed as the gong sounded.

Breaking out of a clinch in the seventh Clabby landed a hard right uppercut to the jaw that weakened the negro considerably and he hung on hard. Clabby followed this with three hard lefts to the face and another right uppercut to the jaw, and the negro showed that he was sadly disheartened by his inability to send over a damaging punch.

The ninth saw them wrestling more than they fought, with Brown very tired and exceedingly disheartened. He was making the worst showing of his career in New York, and the knowledge of it showed him up still more. As the gong rang the negro rushed Clabby off his feet and both fell through the ropes, the white man underneath.

When they regained their feet Clabby stuck to jabbing and did it most effectively. The end of the round and the fight saw a badly battered and tired negro and an absolutely unmarked and unfatigued white man receive the cheers of the crowd.

In the semi-final of six rounds "Kid" Saunders gave "Fighting" Jack Nelson, who was anything but what his sobriquet indicated, a terrible beating. Tommy Ginty put it over Ed Cunningham in a six-round preliminary.

SAVAGE WHIPS WILDFANG.

Canadian Clearly Outboxed in Fight at Long Acre A. C.

Danny Savage of Orange, N. J., had no difficulty in defeating Young Wildfang of Canada last night in the ten-round bout at the Long Acre Athletic Club. The fighting was rather slow for the first few rounds, but after that the two had a lively session and the last two rounds in particular were exceedingly fast. Once or twice it looked as if Savage could have put his opponent out had he wished to follow up his advantage, but the break away was always slow, and the Orange boy apparently had no relish for hustling matters.

It was a case of a slugger against a boxer of good calibre. Wildfang could not break through his opponent's guard but very few times, and his blows were not accurate, even when the opening did present itself. On the other hand, Savage might be said to have fought his battle with one hand, for his right came into play but very little during the first eight rounds, and in the final two there was little more disposition to use this member. At any rate, the Jersey lad was effective with his left and beat a lively tattoo on Wildfang's face that worried the Canadian not a little. Many of the jabs lacked steam, but there were several that jarred Wildfang decidedly, and on several occasions he seemed to be in distress, but came back strong with the opening of the next round. If nothing else, Wildfang demonstrated that it takes more than the ordinary blow to send him to sleep.

Six of the liveliest rounds of the evening came in the semi-final bout, when Frankie Fay and young Adolph paired up. The first round was tame compared to those which followed, but even then there were some lively exchanges. It was Fay who had a slight advantage at the finish, having forced the fighting from the start, and in the second a heavy uppercut dropped the Frenchman to his knees, but he was up again almost immediately. Both men drew the crimson in the third round, and there was much display of it to the end of the fight. Adolph seemed to be content to send in an occasional wallop and then play on the defensive, while Fay was ready at all times to mix matters and did score heavily with a right-hand uppercut.

CLOSE SCORE AT POLO.

The second game of the polo tournament for the May Regimental trophy of Squadron A yesterday at Van Cortlandt Park was won by Capt. Smidt's team from the quartet captained by Capt. H. Goddard by the net score of 4½ to 2¾. There was a marked improvement in the play over that of the first game, due in a large measure to the extra practice. The contest was a very interesting one, with the teams fairly evenly matched. Two changes were made in the line-up during the game. T. S. Farrelly replaced R. C. Randolph on the winning team, while Lorillard Spencer, Jr., relieved D. Ely on Capt. Goddard's team.

The winning team conceded the losers 3 goals, which, according to the score, was a fair handicap. The final game will be played at 4 P. M. to-morrow at Van Cortlandt Park between the Blues and Team 4. The line-up:

TRAVIS WINS LOW SCORE GOLF TROPHY

With characteristic precision Walter Travis, the Metropolitan champion, easily won low score trophy in the eighteen-hole qualifying round of the invitation tournament at the Garden City Golf Club yesterday. The Garden City wizard went out in 38 and home in 39 for a 77, which was only two strokes more than par for the course.

Other prominent amateurs competing were Fred Herreshoff of Westbrook and Jerome D. Travers of Montclair. The first named putted weakly, but, even so, got around in 82, while Travers had an 84. G. W. White, a lad from the Cutler School, led both with an 80. Thomas M. Sherman of Utica, son of Vice President Sherman, qualified with 86.

The most interesting match in the first round resulted from the meeting of Travers and White. A better long game than that shown by the Oakland player has rarely been seen in this vicinity, and he generally had Travers playing the odd from 25 to 30 yards back after every drive. In the long run, however, the greater experience of the Montclair crack told, and he won by a 3 and 1 margin.

Travers reached the turn in 29 to the other's 40, but at match play they were all square. Had the former champion not missed short puts at the twelfth and fourteenth greens he would have won more easily, but as it was he got around in 77, excellent work, considering that he is nowhere near the top of his game.

Herreshoff had the easiest kind of a match with W. R. Cleghorn of Ekwanok, and Travis was always up against W. W. Taylor of Ardsley. Robert C. Watson, the United States Golf Association Secretary, disposed of James D. Foot of Apawamis, and "Spotty" Bowers sprang a surprise by beating John M. Ward, and Sherman won his match quite handily. The scores follow:

First Sixteen.—Walter J. Travis, Garden City, 77; G. W. White, Oakland, 80; Fred Herreshoff, Westbrook, 82; J. D. Travers, Montclair, 84; W. R. Simons, Dyker Meadow, 85; T. M. Sherman, Utica, 86; M. N. Buckner, Garden City, 86; W. W. Taylor, Ardsley, 87; J. D. Foot, Apawamis, 87; S. D. Bowers, Brooklawn, 87; P. R. Jennings Garden City, 88; F. W. L. Fullerton, Canoe Brook, 88; W. R. Cleghorn, Ekwanok, 88; John M. Ward, Westbrook, 88; R. C. Watson, Westbrook, 89; L. A. Hamilton, Englewood, 89.

First Sixteen.—First Round—Herreshoff beat Cleghorn, 8 up and 7 to play; R. C. Watson beat Foot, 5 up and 4 to play; Simons beat Fullerton, 5 up and 4 to play; Travers beat White, 3 up and 1 to play; Sherman beat Buckner, 5 up and 4 to play; Bowers beat Ward, 3 up and 2 to play; Hamilton beat Jennings, 4 up and 3 to play; Travis beat Taylor, 3 up and 1 to play.

"ADD-OUT"
The proper touch to the proper play will decide the set. But without the "L. & U." Patented Slotted Throat Racket you can't teach the little ball "eating-out-of-hand" tricks.
The "L. & U." Racket is the best. The Slot in the Throat makes it the best. The Slot in the Throat adds to the strength, reduces the weight, and "flexibilizes" the handle. All the "top-notchers" say it's the best. So we're modestly echoing what everybody says. For this "best" $8—or less. Rackets restrung.

Down, Now Up

Example No. 23

In 1899 Northern Pacific 4s sold at 106; they are now 100, a decline of 6 points. We were then selling Grand River Coal & Coke first 6s at 90; they are now 97, an advance of 7 points. Meanwhile, holders of the latter bonds have enjoyed a 7% income.

Recurring Opportunities

We now offer, with equal confidence, to yield over 7%, the first mortgage bonds of the principal coal company on the NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES in the West. The "BIG FOUR" spent over $3,000,000 rebuilding a division just to handle the coal company's traffic.

PRESSURE ON COPPER ISSUES

In spite of a very considerable volume of profit taking, invited by the sharp advances of preceding sessions and a professional drive against prices in which the copper shares were selected to bear the brunt of the attack stocks were again up from 1 to 2 points or more at the close of yesterday's market. The factor in the further rise was the continued influence of Wednesday's news of the sales of great quantities of our securities to Europe. Definite announcements regarding the amounts and the issues involved were still largely lacking owing to the fact that the formal steps in connection with the closing of these transactions are in several instances still to be taken, but confirmation of a general kind regarding the sales was forthcoming and again served to remove the apprehensions which our unfavorable foreign trade relations had spread. A specific piece of information of a very pleasant kind relating to the receptive attitude of the French financial world toward our securities was contained in the announcement of the listing on the parquet of the Bourse in Paris of the securities of the National Railways of Mexico. While these securities have in a way the support of the Mexican Government, which is a large holder of certain classes of the issues, and are, therefore, differentiated from the ordinary run of American stocks and bonds, yet their listing together with the dealings in the Paris outside market in other American shares and the present placements of our railroad bonds justify the belief that before long a regular and well-established market will have been made in the French market for the best of our securities and a new and extensive supply of capital thereby placed at our disposal. Miscellaneous news of interest to financial markets was not of any particular moment, although attention was attracted, of course, to the optimistic interviews from Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Corey on the eve of their departure for extended European trips. Grain markets which are of course closely watched just now were very strong, the impetus coming from Chicago, where reports of damage to the crops were again numerous and widely circulated.

In the foreign exchange market recovery in quotations followed the sensational declines of Wednesday, although the advances were limited by knowledge of the fact that a large amount of bills must be created in the course of the bond sales now under way to Europe. Our own money market displayed signs of ease again, losses by the banks to the Sub-Treasury having been very moderate and receipts of funds from the interior heavy, owing to the attractive interest rates in effect for some days. The Bank of England's weekly return disclosed the full effect of the recent gold shipments and the general strength of the bank's position in the absence of any undue stress in connection with the payments of the long deferred taxes appears to be finding a reflection in the English money market.

Sears-Roebuck was a shade easier. Street's again was dull at 15. Chicago Traction and Elevated bonds were fairly active. In the afternoon Shipbuilding closed at 79. OUTSIDE SECURITIES

RECOVERY IN HEINZE STOCK

Ohio Copper, Which Has Been Conspicuously Weak in Recent Markets, Recovers Some of Its Loss.

There was some irregularity in the movement of the curb issues yesterday, although the general trend was upward, and some marked recoveries from the low points were made among the issues which have been conspicuously weak in recent markets. Ohio Copper sold up to 2¼ after transactions of 19,700. Butte Coalition sold 1,000 between 18 and 19⅛, closing at 19. Giroux and Greene-Cananea each gained ¼ on the day's trading. Nevada Consolidated closed even with the opening level at 19. Ray Central sold 7,600 between 1 1-16 and 2¼. The close was at 2 3-16, ⅛ above the opening price. Ray Consolidated was one of the exceptions to the upward movement, losing ⅜ on the day.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

Room traders on the Consolidated Stock Exchange who had started to again attack the market were twisted badly in the closing dealings. The market was a broad one, the sales totaling 134,720 shares, with fifty-five different stocks making up the list for the day. United States Steel common continued to lead as to volume, with its total 41,460 shares. It failed to sell under 81⅝, compared with a low on the New York Stock Exchange of 81¼, but its high for the day was only 82⅞, against 83 on the other board.

For information apply to the Commanding Officer.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Friendless Copper Stocks.

The copper stocks offered themselves yesterday as a very convenient weapon for an attack on the market by bears who want to cover their commitments as cheaply as possible. The stocks went down without any resistance to speak of, for the general market, much to the disgust of those who had looked for better things from it, paid little attention to what was going on in the copper issues. Under the circumstances it was hardly worth while to push things, and the subsequent covering of shorts was a material factor in the final advance of the whole market. Copper stocks seemed so entirely friendless that the fact suggested the query as to whether there may not possibly be a purpose in the matter.

French Investments in Our Bonds.

While St. Paul bonds would be new to the French investor in a large degree, New York City revenue warrants are well known both to investment institutions and to investors in France. In the course of their examination into French banking customs, the members of the National Monetary Commission discovered that a number of the large French banking institutions had a real liking for the revenue warrants. Baron Brincard of the Crédit Lyonnaise, in analyzing the report of his institution for the commission informed them that it held from time to time large amounts of the revenue bonds, as much as two or three million dollars of them. This banking concern is one of the greatest in France, and its peculiar relation to investors was explained by Baron Brincard to the commission in his statement that anything he recommended the institution's customers bought. He said that this was true even with very large issues, adding, "The bonds do not remain long in the market because in our country savings are very extended. Every one saves his money. The small savings of France are the wealth of the country. By examining the balances of the accounts of our customers we can know whether they want to invest or not, and then we endeavor to have stocks and bonds to offer to them as they require them; but this is variable. Sometimes we might have a large issue, $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 of bonds taken by the public in four or five days."

How the Bear Sees It.

The disgruntled bear was heard from yesterday for his view of the placing of so many American bond issues on the other side of the water just at present. The announcement of some of these issues and the hope that others would follow them, as some have, gave heart to the stock market on Wednesday, when prices rose all through the list and there was real elation at the prospect that foreign purchases of our bonds would offset other items which else might have called for a continuance of the gold export movement. The bear, however, saw no good in this movement, as well he might not in view of the four to five point advances recorded against him in the space of two days. The way the bear put it was that we were increasing our foreign indebtedness and adding just so much to the sum we would annually have to pay abroad. He failed to find any merit in the suggestion that while we are getting money from abroad now we may be making such a good showing in trade by the time interest day comes around that we can pay the interest on these new securities as well as on many others by exporting wheat or cotton or some other commodity rather than money.

New York Central Wage Award.

One of the points of the New York Central wage award, announced yesterday, in which the financial district took special interest, was that the contentions of the New York Central management in respect to the wages of men employed on long through hauls were sustained by the arbitrators, who thus went on record as upholding the contentions of the management of the road in this matter against the contention of the men. All the more interest was taken in this fact because both the arbitrators were formerly heads of railroad labor organizations and thus were eminently qualified to see things from the point of view of the railroad employe. The New York Central management has now got from two men whom labor leaders cannot but regard as fairly disposed toward railroad employes a verdict as to what is fair compensation for the men in view of present high cost of living. It is regarded as peculiarly opportune that this verdict should be rendered by men as closely in sympathy with railroad employes as are the two arbitrators who have settled this New York Central dispute.

Poor Price for Exchange Seat.

It is usual for the valuation put on memberships in the Stock Exchange to decline on the eve of the dull Summer season, but the slump of $10,000 from the last previous sale revealed in the transfer of a membership yesterday at $75,000 indicated something more than a seasonal decline. The last sale was on March 11. Since then brokers have been uneasy over the interference of the Federal authorities in what has always been considered legitimate speculation in the cotton market, and within the last week another source of apprehension has arisen in the persistent rumors from Washington that the activities of Attorney General Wickersham will go further than the elimination of bucket shops. Another factor, of course, has been the severe decline in the market itself. Less than a year ago a Stock Exchange seat sold at $94,000. Yesterday's price is the lowest since 1908, when a sale was made at $60,000.

Crop Improvement in Ohio.

The improvement in crop conditions in the Middle West over the reports made in April, when the drought was at its worst, shows in the Ohio State report made public yesterday. It gives the condition of Winter wheat for May as 85 per cent. of normal, as against 83 per cent. reported last month, and 66 per cent. a year ago. The acreage abandoned in Ohio was small. Insect damage amounted to only 2 per cent. The oats acreage reported is 98 per cent. of last year.

BANK CLEARINGS LARGEST YET

Record for April Ahead of Any Other April Ever Reported.

The aggregate bank clearings in April, according to Bradstreet's figures, is $13,853,841,411, and is the largest ever reported for any other April. Bradstreet's says:

"Irregular trade conditions throughout most of April naturally tended to diminish the volume of bank clearings for that month. Yet the total of exchanges for the country as a whole, especially as speculation and trade and industry, felt the application of check reins."

The total given shows a loss of 6.6 per cent. from that set forth in March, and, excluding February, it is the lightest total reported since last September. Compared with April, 1909, there is an increase of 2.3 per cent., and the advance over April, 1908, when dullness prevailed, is 45 per cent.

THE LONDON MARKET.

Bank of England Rate Unchanged—Holiday in Paris and Berlin.

LONDON, May 5.—Money was plentiful to-day, and discounts were quiet.

The Stock Exchange started cheerfully, and there was a further general hardening of prices on cheap money prospects, but the absence of any reduction in the Bank of England's rate, and the statement not being as good as anticipated, caused a slight reaction during the afternoon. Consols were easier, and at the close showed a loss of one-eighth. Home rails attracted investors, and Mexican rails and rubber shares rose on fresh speculative buying. Foreigners and Kaffirs were quiet, owing to the holiday on the Continent.

American securities opened firm on fair buying, but eased off on the absence of any change in the bank rate. News of the placing of American bonds in Europe helped sentiment, while New York support hardened values during the afternoon. On slackened support prices eased off near the close and the final tone was steady, with prices below the best.

Money, 2½@3 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¼ per cent.; for three months' bills 3¼ per cent.

Bullion amounting to £226,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

PARIS, May 5.—To-day is a holiday on the Bourse.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 5.—The local market opened strong and held steady during the first hour, but toward noon sold off fractionally all around on profit taking. Trading continued rather quiet and irregular until the last hour, when, in sympathy with the strength which at that time developed in the New York market, prices advanced rapidly all through the list. Amalgamated sold up to 66⅝, Lake to 53, North Butte to 32, and North Lake to 11½.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Grains Recover from Early Weakness—Provisions Firm on Light Hog Receipts—Cotton Dull.

The weather report showed the developments of a marked low depression along the Rocky Mountain region, with precipitation all along the plateau region, where rain has been needed, and it was still raining in the morning, with indications favoring further precipitation. This, with a decline in the cables, brought about a lower opening through the entire list. The opening quotations, however, were low for the morning, and prices soon turned strong, advancing 1@1½c a bushel for the active deliveries, while the Chicago May was up 2½c. The advance seemed to be very largely due to the insistence of the bull interest that crops are steadily deteriorating, and the favorable weather conditions were not enough to make up even partially for the damage already done. The bull holdings seem to be large enough to still dominate the market actions. There was complaint of need of rain in the Northwest, although the need is not yet believed to be pressing. After advancing to new high levels for the movement prices showed a little reaction, but were fairly steady during the afternoon. Cash demand is reported slow. Cash wheat quoted No. 2 red, Winter, $1.16 nominal, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.17½, free on board, afloat for export; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.21¼ nominal; No. 2 hard, Winter, nominal; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.08½.

Trade in corn was narrow with prices showing a little improvement. The near-by deliveries were quite firm and the position of cash corn seems to be improving. The shipments into distribution have been liberal of late, and this has taken quite a little pressure off the market. Cash corn quoted No. 2, 69c nominal, elevator, domestic basis; steamer, 65c nominal, elevator, export basis.

The oat market early showed a somewhat easier tone, with the reports of more favorable weather conditions for the crop and rains and warmer weather in the Southwest. The pressure was not large, however, and later there was a better tone and some improvement in values. Cash oats quoted 45½@48c; white clipped, 46½@52c.

The provision market continues very sensitive and seems to be easily influenced by buying orders. Live hogs were again higher at the West on small receipts, while the packing returns for the past week showed a decrease of nearly 200,000 hogs, compared with a year ago. Prices advanced and the close was firm.

COTTON.

The cotton market was quiet and firm early, dull and easier after midday. The action of the market is not very pronounced either way. There was some buying apparently by the bull interest early, and some moderate lines of cotton were taken, while July shorts seem to be good buyers. The buying by outside interest was seemingly based on the reports of probable large decrease in stocks within the next few weeks. The bull claim is that probably 150,000 bales will be shipped out. It is generally admitted that the shipments are likely to run over 100,000 bales. Receipts are running rather moderately here, but even at the rate of the past few days the total for the month might easily assume very important proportions. The crop news was mixed. The higher temperatures and rains in the Far West are a very favorable condition, and if the precipitation extends over the belt it will be a very favorable development. There are so many complaints and conflicting statements regarding the situation that the trade seems to be very much mixed over the actual crop situation. The deliveries on contract to-day were 19,400 bales, making a total of 192,300 bales tendered on contracts this month, while the sales of cotton other than on contract have been 14,300 bales.

Southern spot markets unchanged.

COFFEE.

Coffee quotations failed to respond to the announcement that 75,000 bags of the valorization article had been sold on the basis of 9½ cents for Santos 4s in this country. Sales were only 4,500 bags, while prices showed comparatively little change, opening quiet, unchanged, to 5 points higher, and closing quiet, net unchanged to 6 points higher.

It is stated that the valorization sales announced yesterday brings the total amount of Government coffee sold in this country since the first of the year up to 200,000 bags, 125,000 bags having been sold last February. The price secured for the latest block seem to show a considerable premium over the regular market. Owing to a holiday, there were no cables from Europe. Rio was barely steady, with the quotation showing a decline of 125 reis from the last previous price, while Santos was weak and unchanged. The rate of Brazilian Exchange on London is now up to 16 1-16d. Spot coffee quiet, 8⅝c for Rio No. 7.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

An important transaction in the realty market yesterday which shows the northward trend of the retail shopping centre was the purchase by Oppenheim, Collins & Co., the cloak and suit house now located at 33 and 35 West Thirty-fourth Street, of the adjoining property, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street, a lot 24 by 98.9, from Mrs. Katherine F. D. Harnett.

It is the intention of the new owners to raze the old dwelling now on the lot and erect a structure similar to their present eleven-story building for their own use. The enlarged structure will have a frontage of 72 feet on Thirty-fourth Street, extending through to Thirty-fifth Street, where the frontage is sixty feet. Work will be started at once.

Important Seventh Avenue Purchase.

Jesse T. Meeker has sold for Jacob R. Thoman to William H. and Frederick Hussey the property on the east side of Seventh Avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets, known as 455, 457, and 459 Seventh Avenue, on a plot 51.3 by 60.

Mr. Meeker also negotiated the sale of 453 Seventh Avenue, a gore plot, with a frontage of 17.1 feet on Seventh Avenue by 60 feet in depth, for the Chase estate to the same purchasers, the sale having just been confirmed by the Supreme Court. This gore plot rounds out the adjoining lot to the south, which runs back 130 feet, to within about 45 feet of Thirty-fifth Street, and which separates the adjacent 68 feet to the north on Seventh Avenue from the property owned by William H. and Frederick Hussey.

By obtaining this gore, with the property just sold, they now control a plot with a frontage of 100 feet on Seventh Avenue, by 130 feet in depth, connecting with 165 and 167 West Thirty-fourth Street, giving them an outlet on Thirty-fourth Street with a frontage of 41 feet. The entire plot contains over 12,445 square feet.

Quick Resale in Loft Zone.

Sol Stern has sold for the John E. Olson Construction Company the eight-story and basement modern fireproof store and loft building 41 East Twenty-first Street, between Broadway and Fourth Avenue.

This property was taken by the sellers about three weeks ago in part payment for the nine-story office building 39 and 41 East Twenty-eighth Street, and this quick resale is another evidence of the demand for first-class properties in what has come to be known as the new Fourth Avenue district.

New York Cab Co. Sells 32d St. Plot.

The Alliance Realty Company has bought from the New York Cab Company the plot 116 West Thirty-second Street, 21.10 by 193.6, running through to 119 West Thirty-first Street.

The buyers own fifty feet adjoining, giving them a plot 70.10 by 197.6, facing the new Gimble store and the main entrance to the Pennsylvania Station.

West 71st Street Houses Sold for Improvement.

Building activity in the Sherman Square section, which has recently been apparent through a number of sales in that locality and the change from residence to business purposes of many Seventy-second Street houses, received an additional impetus yesterday by the sale through Edward C. Williams & Co., for the estate of Edward J. King, of the three four-story dwellings, each 20 by 100.5, at 138, 140, and 142 West Seventy-first Street. The plot was sold to the Herald Square Holding Company, (Arnstein & Levy and George Backer,) and will probably be improved in the near future with a high-class apartment.

The plot is very accessible to the Subway and surface car lines, being within a block of the Seventy-second Street Subway station, and is assured of permanent light on the west, as it adjoins the rectory of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament.

The same brokers negotiated the recent sale of 235 to 239 West Seventy-fourth Street to the Herald Square Holding Company. These properties have since been resold to A. L. Mordecai & Son, who will turn them over to the Joseph H. Davis Building Company for improvement with an eight-story apartment house.

The Shuberts' 48th Street Theatre.

It was announced yesterday that the Shuberts expect to begin work at an early date on their new Forty-eighth Street theatre. Some time ago the Shuberts obtained a twenty-one years' lease from Edward T. Davis of Philadelphia on the property owned by him at 155 to 159 West Forty-eighth Street, having a frontage of 95 feet. Two five-story houses, known as the Sherman flats, occupy the plot, and they will soon be torn down. The site is 150 feet from Seventh Avenue and is 100 feet west of the theatre now being erected by William A. Brady on the former property of the Christian Science church.

$325,000 Loan for New Apartment.

An eight-story fireproof apartment house will be erected on the plot, 150 by 100, on the north side of 121st Street, 175 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, purchased Tuesday by the Sethlow Realty Company, of which Louis Eisenberg is President.

William S. Baker, who negotiated the sale, has secured a building and permanent loan of $325,000 from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company for the erection of the structure. Ground will be broken at once.

LITTLE FARMS IN NEW YORK CITY

Annadale, Staten Island

The response was immediate. Last Saturday and Sunday, the first days of Little Farms, the visitors flocked out by the trainload. They walked up the beautiful, wide Jefferson Boulevard leading to the Country Club on the hill where they sat on the porch overlooking all of the Little Farms in the making and enjoying a magnificent view of Staten Island with the Ocean as a background. Expressions of approval were heard on all sides. This is what one of the visitors said: "I had no idea that Little Farms was so close to Broadway and that the property was right at the station. What beautiful bungalows you are building! How can you do so much work in so little time? How can you give so much for so little money?"

There are 100,000 families in New York City who want one of our Little Farms if they only knew it. They never will know it unless they visit Little Farms and see for themselves. Will the New Yorker ever learn to look ahead? Manhattan Island (above 42d Street) was a solid mass of "little farms" only a few years ago. New York has never stopped growing. It never will.

We are creating seven hundred Little Farms on Staten Island, within fifty minutes and a ten-cent commutation fare from Broadway—We are landscaping them—planting on each farm a great variety of the finest fruit, shade and flowering shrubs. Everything is done in a wholesale way, and as a result we sell you upon payment of $10 down and $6 per month a complete country place—on which we build a bungalow that you can pay for at a lower cost than the rent of the cheapest seashore cottage. We give you for $600 or less value you could not duplicate for $1,200, and on terms within the limits of the most moderate purse.

Here is a chance to grow your own vegetables, raise your own fruits and work among your own flowers. Here is the chance to enjoy your summer days, swept by the breezes of the old Atlantic, with boating and fishing close at hand, and less than an hour from your work.

DON'T MISS THE FIRST EXCURSIONS—THIS IS YOUR CHANCE. Some day big New York will grow right over your Little Farm and make you rich.

Only 4½% Interest on Unpaid Balances

FARM PLANTING

Every farm, except those in the wooded sections, is planted, at our expense, with 100 of the choicest productions in fruit trees, bushes, vines, perennials and hardy shrubs and plants as follows:

2 Apple
2 Cherry
2 Peach
2 Pear
2 Plum
9 Blackberry
9 Currant
9 Gooseberry
9 Raspberry
12 Grape Vines
2 Honeysuckle
2 Climber Roses
2 Spirea
2 Peonies
12 Hardy Flowers
18 Shrubs
2 Norway Spruce
2 Shade Trees

Every farm is laid out by us to conform to the best ideals of artistic gardening and fruit growing—locations being provided on which to put the house and places for the outbuildings, chicken yard, grape arbors, etc.

ONE HUNDRED BUNGALOWS
ON LITTLE PAYMENTS

Our new type of bungalows are different from anything you ever saw around New York. They harmonize with the natural surroundings, and yet each one has its own individuality, demonstrating that as much beauty and style can be put into a bungalow costing $1,000 or $2,000 as in the Summer mansion of the wealthy man. We have plans of bungalows costing from $780 to $3,500.

ANTHONY HUHNA.—A meeting of creditors of Anthony Huhna, undertaker, of 50 Sixth Avenue, was held yesterday at the office of Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, at 68 William Street, and Robert A. Inch was elected trustee with a bond of $6,000. The nominal assets are $13,765, mostly in outstanding accounts for balance due on funerals.

J. B. HACKETT COMPANY.—Judge Whitney of the Supreme Court has appointed Howard E. Brown receiver of the J. B. Hackett Company, manufacturer's agent for steam specialties of 5 Beekman Street, in proceedings for the voluntary dissolution of the corporation which were begun by the Directors on Jan. 21 last. The liabilities are $3,516 and the assets $653.

JACOB KRAMER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Jacob Kramer, wholesale dealer in butter, eggs, and groceries at 250 St. Nicholas Avenue, by these creditors: William W. Elzea, $3,638; James Rowland & Co., $778, and Charles H. Zinn, $636. It was alleged that he was insolvent, made preferential payments of $500, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $500.

WECHSLER, LAUFER & CO.—A meeting of creditors of Wechsler, Laufer & Co., wholesale dealers in hats, of 190 Greene Street, was held yesterday at the office of Nathaniel S. Smith, referee in bankruptcy, at 68 William Street, and Gilbert Sayres was elected trustee with a bond of $20,000. The schedules showed liabilities of $108,356 and nominal assets of $90,096. Out of Town.

BOSTON, May 5.—Frederick S. Donnell, broker living at Youngs Hotel, this morning made a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are scheduled at $118,534, of which $105,286 is secured in stocks and bonds, the estimated value of which is $81,500. Unsecured claims amount to $12,707, the estate of F. A. Brooks, this city, being the largest individual claimant, for $3,600 on a judgment. F. W. Mason & Co., 53 State Street, appear as creditors for $1,340 on a contract agreement, and the petitioner owes the Bacon Associates, 35 Congress Street, $750 for rent. The assets are scheduled nominally at $81,500, but this amount is offset in the schedule, a secured claim, making the net practically nothing.

CORONER HAD A GUN, POLICEMAN THOUGHT

QUARRELSOME, OTHERS SAY

And Acted as If He Was Intoxicated—Lieut. McAuliffe, Who Arrested Him, Said to be Noted for Courtesy.

The trial of Police Lieutenant Timothy J. McAuliffe of the Alexander Avenue Station, the Bronx, who arrested Coroner A. F. Schwannecke on a charge of disorderly conduct while the Coroner was in the station investigating a murder on the night of April 15, and for which arrest Mayor Gaynor publicly apologized to the Coroner, was practically concluded yesterday. Two more witnesses will be called to testify to McAuliffe's good character this morning, and Third Deputy Commissioner Walsh will probably announce his decision this week. Many witnesses were examined yesterday, including Coroner Schwannecke and McAuliffe. Policemen and detectives who were on duty that night in the station testified that in their opinion the Coroner was intoxicated.

Policeman Charles Bartemus, who arrested the Coroner, said that the latter threatened to shoot him, and made a movement as if to draw a gun. A whole platoon of police swore that McAuliffe did not say that he did not "care a damn" for Mayor Gaynor, Police Commissioner Baker, or Inspector Flood, as several witnesses, including Richard W. Hill, the Coroner's clerk, who was the first witness yesterday, had said.

Florence Sullivan, McAuliffe's lawyer, quoted a section of the Criminal Code to prove that a Coroner has no right to hold an inquisition until he has viewed the body of a dead person, which he did not do in the case of Robert Fullen, then under investigation. Coroner Schwannecke suddenly jumped to his feet at this and demanded that the lawyer cite the opinion of the Court of Appeals on the subject.

"Your Honor," said Mr. Sullivan, turning to Commissioner Walsh, "I desire to call your attention to the disorderly inclination and disposition of the Coroner. He is illustrating to you the truth of our charge that he was disorderly in the station house."

Policeman Gilbert C. Farrell testified that Coroner Schwannecke came into the station with half a dozen witnesses about midnight on April 15 and started his investigation in the Captain's room. After it had proceeded about an hour, he said, during which time the Coroner was speaking in a very loud voice, Lieut. McAuliffe went into the room and asked the Coroner to speak more quietly as the noise interfered with his work. He said McAuliffe also upbraided the Coroner for his manner of examining a woman witness who carried a child in her arms. The Coroner, he said, ordered McAuliffe from the room and put his hands on him for the purpose of ejecting him. Whereupon, he said, McAuliffe turned on the Coroner and had him arrested.

"Did the Coroner appear to be intoxicated?" asked Lawyer Sullivan.

"He had the general appearance of a man who had been drinking," replied Farrell. "His face was flushed and he was talking loudly."

Policeman Charles Bartemus said that when he tried to arraign the Coroner, Schwannecke put his hand in his back pocket and exclaimed: "Touch me and I'll shoot you." He said the Coroner knocked over a chair and tore a calendar off the wall. When he tried to stop him, he said, the Coroner threatened to hit him over the head with his cane. Finally, he said, the Coroner left the station and the policeman followed him into the street. In a few minutes he returned, Bartemus said, and another argument arose over the question of bail. The Coroner all the time, the witness declared, kept calling the Lieutenant "a curly headed cur" and other names. About 2:30 o'clock Capt. Naughton came in and ordered the Coroner released.

Louis Grenner, a business man of the Bronx, testified that he had known Coroner Schwannecke for fifteen years, and that the Coroner had a reputation for being quarrelsome. Former Coroner O'Gorman said he had known McAuliffe a long time and had always found him a capable, courteous, and efficient policeman.

"Was Coroner Schwannecke drunk that night?" asked his lawyer of McAuliffe.

"He had every appearance of being so," replied McAuliffe. "He was flushed, excited, and it was impossible to reason with him."

"Why did you arrest him?" asked Commissioner Walsh.

"Because," replied McAuliffe, "the noise he was making was interfering with my work, and because he attempted to assault me when I told him to be quiet."

Several witnesses testified that the Coroner had a quarrelsome disposition, while McAuliffe was noted for his courtesy and forbearance.

STUYVESANT FISH, JR., TO WED

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—The engagement is announced of Miss Mildred Dick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evans R. Dick, who formerly lived in this city, and Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., of New York, a member of one of the best-known old families of that city.

Miss Dick's brothers are Fairman Rogers Dick and Evans R. Dick, Jr., both of whom are well known in Philadelphia. The members of the family have made their home in New York City for the last six years, and the Dick home on the Hudson is one of the show places of that part of the country. Miss Dick's mother before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Tatham.

Young Stuyvesant Fish, son of the railroad magnate who opposed E. H. Harriman in the railway business, coming out second best, was graduated from Yale in 1906. He at once went to work in the railroad shops of the West, saying that he meant to learn the business from the bottom up. He worked for some time in the shops of the Illinois Central, took a course in the traffic department, and then went to work for the Rock Island. For a while he was an assistant station agent at a small place.

In May, 1908, he decided to study banking in New York, and went to work for Saloman & Co. Last May he bought a seat on the New York Stock Exchange, where he has been since.

EDUCATION VS. ALCOHOLISM.

Prof. Peterson Pleads for a Campaign to Teach the Public.

Dr. Frederick Peterson, Professor of Psychiatry at Columbia University, in the course of a lecture on "The Prevention of Alcoholism," delivered before the New York Academy of Medicine last night, said that as a result of years of study he believed the only efficient method in which to ward off the evils due to drink was the institution of a campaign of education in this country such as is now being successfully waged against tuberculosis.

Dr. Peterson believes that the facts as to evils of alcoholism should be taught in the public schools and that the statistics that tell the story of its ravages against mankind should be spread broadcast through the country, where every man, woman, and child can see, read, and study them.

The speaker said that it was known that between 20 and 25 per cent. of all the insane in this country owe their insanity to alcohol; that of the 4,000,000 paupers in the United States 2,000,000 owe their dependence to alcohol; that 75 per cent. of all the crime committed in the United States is due to intemperance, and that every year in this country there is an average of 365,000 (1,000 a day) arrests in this country for drunkenness.

Thirty years ago, he said, the medical profession as a whole showed little interest in attacks upon alcohol. In those days, he said, physicians were rather the promoters of the use of alcohol as a stimulant and as a remedial agent in many diseases.

But now the generals in the vast crusade are such men as Sir Victor Horsley in England, Bunge and Forel in Switzerland, and Kraepelin in Germany, and everywhere on both sides of the Atlantic medical men are the foremost opposers of the use of spirituous liquors as a beverage or even as an agent in the treatment of disease.

POINT FOR EQUITABLE TRUST.

Order for an Accounting in Cobalt Mining Suit Modified by the Court.

The Equitable Trust Company obtained yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Whitney a modification of an order for the production of its ledgers, journals, and other books in a suit arising out of the failure of the Cobalt Exploration Company. The order was modified on the ground that it was unnecessarily harsh to the defendants and would make an unnecessary disclosure to persons not parties to the action.

The suit was brought by Dunnelle Van Schaick, as the assignee of Thomas B. Adams, against the Equitable Trust Company and Grant Hugh Browne for an accounting of the Cobalt Exploration Company. Van Schaick alleges in his complaint that the corporation was launched as a $5,000,000 New Jersey affair to exploit mines on a 1,500-acre tract in the Cobalt district of the Province of Ontario. Adams, who assigned to him, took $3,000 worth of stock. Altogether $373,000 was paid in. When the company failed Van Schaick alleges the Equitable Trust Company, which underwrote the project, returned but $50,000 to the shareholders, and wrongfully retained and wasted and squandered the remainder by misapplying it to improper purposes. The trust company's officials make a general denial of all of Van Schaick's allegations.

MORE HOLDEN TREASURES GO.

The sale of Edwin Babcock Holden's collection of Americana, mezzotints, etchings, examples of the old masters and fine engravings of all periods, was concluded in the American Art Galleries last night, the total for the day being $5,741 and the grand total $92,053.50. To-day his collection of historical china and medals will be disposed of, and it is expected that from $8,000 to $9,000 more will be realized.

The most interesting item sold yesterday was a portrait by Col. John Trumbull of Hannah, oldest daughter of John and Abigail Stockton of Morven, Princeton, N. J., sister of Richard Stockton, New Jersey signer of the Declaration of Independence, and wife of Elias Boudinot, who was prominent in the American Revolution. The portrait was from the E. Frossard collection. A memorandum on the back is signed "J. T.," the painter's initials. After spirited competition the portrait was knocked down to Ernest Dressel North for $860. It could not be learned for whom he was acting, but it was rumored that he bought it for Mrs. Alexander of Hoboken.

WHITE SLAVERS TAKE TO FLIGHT

FIND FLATS DISMANTLED

Strong Suspicion That the Prisoner Secretly Informed Them He Meant to Tell All.

The detectives who left the District Attorney's office on Wednesday night, primed with the addresses which Harry Levinson's confession had furnished of places of exchange where girls are kept for out-of-town shipment, reported to Mr. Whitman yesterday morning that they had found the apartments deserted.

Detectives Thomas, Leigh, Rayens, and Russo, carrying with them descriptions, names, and street numbers, scoured the east side for the men and women Levinson had described as leaders. Their clues led only to flats from which the tenants had but recently fled, with overturned chairs and bureau drawers awry, giving every evidence of a hasty departure.

In two cases at least the detectives found that they had come only two hours too late, and they are wondering whether the mere fact that Levinson was behind the bars and had promised a confession was sufficient to start the hegira. There is a possibility that the man himself secretly informed his friends that he was about to confess.

Levinson and his lawyer spent the greater part of yesterday morning and afternoon talking to Mr. Whitman, and if his story can be corroborated it will be of great use to the Grand Jury.

Levinson's own life, as he is unfolding it, was a vicious one. He was once extradited on a larceny charge from New York to Boston, where he has a wife and three children. He was with another woman at the time of his arrest on Friday morning, and among his belongings was found a letter of recent date from a girl in Seattle, telling him that, for a while at least, she would be unable to send him any more money. Though he was an east side "peddler," with few apparent attractions and little visible wealth, his hand reached out across the country.

Mr. Whitman will send for Levinson's brother.

Counsel for Belle Moore, the woman charged with selling two young girls of American birth to the District Attorney's agent, required the District Attorney yesterday to furnish the names of the witnesses which had been omitted from the back of the indictments. It was thought that among these would be found the names of the two college women whom Mr. Reynolds sent out as underworld investigators, but there appeared only the names George A. Miller, the man who passed the money in each case, and one Amy Jackson. Some jumped to the conclusion that the latter was one of the two investigators, but this was authoritatively denied.

Counsel later in the day moved for a reduction of the bail from $25,000, but Judge Crain denied the motion, and also one for an inspection of the Grand Jury minutes. The lawyers are making capital of the publicity given to the arrests of their clients, and are complaining of "sensational plays" on the part of Mr. Whitman. They will argue in the Supreme Court for a change of venue.

Judge Crain, however, promised to reconsider the bail motion if the cases were not brought to trial before May 20. Assistant District Attorney Press hopes to have them disposed of by that time.

Levinson has told Mr. Whitman that the traffic has been dwindling so rapidly since the 1st of January in this city that it is now almost impossible to prosper at it, and that it is small wonder the women exchanges were found deserted. Mr. Whitman is not sure just how much of this he should believe, for, perilous as Levinson paints recent trade conditions, he was willing to sell two girls for $40.

Probation Officer Coleman, from the Tombs Court, took to Assistant District Attorney Reynolds yesterday May Schuyler, an eighteen-year-old girl, who had been arrested in the street. Three years ago, she told Magistrate Barlow, she lived with her parents, at 47 Concord Street, Brooklyn, and was employed in an art supply store. One night, in a moving-picture show, she met a man who persuaded her to remain with him. He took her from flat to flat, she says, and ever since has taken all her money.

The girl was in tears as she talked. She asked to be sent to the Magdalen Home, and this will be done. Meanwhile Mr. Reynolds is looking for the man.

COMMERCE CHAMBER VOTE.

Institution Holds Its 142d Annual Meeting and Hears a Tax Law Report.

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, which was the 142d in the history of that body, the resignation of A. Barton Hepburn as Chairman of the Executive Committee after a service of seven years was accepted with regrets. Mr. Hepburn was succeeded by George F. Seward. President J. Edward Simmons was re-elected and Mr. Hepburn, Otto T. Bannard, and Arthur C. Jones were elected Vice Presidents, to serve four years, succeeding John Claflin, Stewart L. Woodford, and W. Bayard Cutting.

William A. Nash was elected for a three-year term, to succeed the late John S. Kennedy. The other officers were re-elected. Among the changes in committees was the election of George B. Cortelyou to membership in the Committee on Finance and Currency. Welding Ring was elected Chairman of the Committee on State and Municipal Taxation. Jacob H. Schiff was made a member of the Board of Trustees of the real estate of the Chamber, taking the place of Mr. Kennedy.

A long report on the law of the State in relation to the taxation of personal property was submitted for the consideration of the Chamber by George F. Seward, Chairman of the Committee on State and Municipal Taxation. It was prepared for the committee by W. G. Wright, and will be taken up for discussion later in connection with the proposed amendment to the State tax law exempting personal property in New York City from taxation. In submitting the report the committee expresses its judgment that if the proposed bill is desirable it should be made applicable to the State at large. On this point the committee's report said:

> Now, if general property is to be exempted in New York City so far as personal subjects are concerned, while real and personal property are to remain taxable within present limits outside of New York City, the situation will be illogical to a degree.
> The result would be that all effort to provide revenue for the State under the General Property Tax system would be abandoned, and further searches would be begun to discover new subjects for special levies or to discover what special levies can be made heavier.

It has this to say of the general considerations of the personal property tax:

> Few people understand why the taxation of personal property under the general property tax system has been already abandoned in large part, and is likely to be abandoned altogether. One often hears intelligent people deploring what they assume to be the fact that the wealth of the rich escapes taxation.
> They do not remember that so far as the money of the rich is invested directly in real property it is subject to taxation directly on the property, and when invested in securities it pays equally on the property behind the securities.
> They do not remember also that there are taxes levied outside of the general property tax law which are practically taxes on personal property. The tax on the shares of banks, that on the capital of individual bankers, the franchise tax on corporations, the inheritance tax, the mortgage recording tax, and the tax on stock transfers are all personal taxes in substance and effect, if not in classification and form.
> The cry that the wealth of the rich escapes taxation is heard constantly. It is a cry often raised for political purposes. It will be raised with greater force, if the law decrees that personal property shall be made exempt in this centre of wealth, while it remains necessary for the farmer to pay on his cattle, his implements, and his household goods, and the country storekeeper on his stock in trade.

The Chamber in a resolution condemned the erection of a new County Court House in City Hall Park.

QUEENS GRAFT HUNT DETHRONES HARVEY

SOME UNEASY LEADERS

Grand Jury Expected to Inquire Whose Money Built the Cassidy Democratic Club.

The movement of most consequence yesterday in the Queens graft development was that which emerged on the surface of things in the Shinnecock Club, where Herbert Harvey, ex-Sheriff, has told the others when to bow ever since the name of Gresser figured in public life. Harvey is no more. John J. Halleran, a Gaynor appointee who took the measure of the new political spirit by raising the assessment on his own residence from something like $3,500 to $7,500 shortly after Mr. Gaynor was elected, is in his place.

Halleran, who is a Tax Commissioner, is said in Queens to stand well with Gaynor, which is the present equivalent of what standing well with Murphy was in the days of Cassidy's power and standing well with Croker meant when "Paddy" Mara openly said the word that decided things.

No formal announcement has been made that Halleran is the man to whom the Shinnecockers must rally, but quiet information to that effect has permeated the political mass, and Halleran's sudden rise was the topic most discussed in the crossroads meeting places yesterday.

The pressure which has been forcing Harvey into retirement as a boss of the first rank is contained in the ferment of exposure that is finding its way from the various committees of indignant citizens through the offices of Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick and Mayor Gaynor into the hands of the Queens County Grand Jury.

What is regarded as a test case will be taken up by the Grand Jury this morning, when it is expected that District Attorney De Witt will submit the Fosdick report of the case of Mathew J. Goldner. As this report attacks an official who is allied both to the old régime and the new, every one in Queens is waiting to see what the Grand Jury will do. It is generally conceded that both the Cassidy machine and the Harvey machine will find common cause here against the movement that promises results for them that are equally bad.

The Cassidy Democratic Club, adjoining the new Queens Court House, was built by Mathew J. Goldner and Cassidy jointly, it was learned yesterday, and for a long time was held in the name of these two men, although used as the property of the club which they dominated. To determine where the funds were raised that went into its erection will be one of the things the Grand Jury is expected to look into.

The report on Borough President Gresser which has been held back since Monday pending the receipt of further corroborative testimony, is still in Commissioner Fosdick's office. The witness for whom Commissioner Fosdick was waiting was found yesterday, and is expected to appear this morning.
